FITCH R. WILLIAMS ADDRESSED MEETING

Pointed at Importance of Trout and Bass Propagation.

The usual attendance was present at the Community Men's Club meeting at the Methodist church Monday evening. An oyster "feed" was one of the features and the program following interesting and instructive.

Fitch R. Williams, of Elk Rapids was the speaker of the evening in the absence of Rollie L. Lewis. He precluded his talk by telling of the duties of the state bar examining board, of which he is a member.

The main course of his talk, however, was on a subject of vital interest to Charlevoix and the entire county—that of re-stocking our many lakes and streams with bass and brook trout. He urged that a county-wide project in this direction be launched and that bass and trout ponds be established at suitable points. He gave a review of fish culture and pointed out steps taken by other communities over the state through associations of commerce, Isaac Walton leagues and organizations of like nature. He also stated that full cooperation of the state conservation department could be had.

Several local men present at the meeting gave their views on the subject. It is generally conceded that Northern Michigan presents no better tourist attraction than the fishing in its lakes and streams. Stover creek was cited as a possible location for rearing ponds, and, in view of the interest shown, it is possible that action may be taken in the near future towards bass and trout propagation at Charlevoix.

POLAR BEARS STOPPED BOYNE CITY INDIANS

Win by 33 to 13 Coast. Meet Road
City Here Tonight

The Charlevoix Polar Bears added another scalp to their string last Thursday evening in the local gym by defeating the highly-touted Boyne City Indians 33 to 13. It evened the count between the two fives, Boyne having won a previous one-point victory on their own court.

Boyne put up hardly enough opposition to make the game interesting.

Charlevoix led 11 to 4 at the first quarter, 16 to 6 at the half and 25 to 9 at the end of the third frame.

Substitutions were made freely by both sides, Tooley and Mangos of the visiting team going out on faults.

Scoring honors for the Polar Bears were evenly divided. Kipke made 7, Todd 7, Davenport 6, Gimble 7 and Ikens 6. Brotherton scored 7 points for Boyne.

In a game both interesting and funny, Charlevoix business men topped Boyne City business men 14 to 12. The visitors led until the final quarter. We call honors for original costumes a draw.

The Polar Bears are taking on the Cements at Petoskey Wednesday night and stack-up against the Reed City independents here Thursday night. The game will be played between the two hockey games of the winter sports program, starting at 7:45. Reed City is one of the strongest Central Michigan teams and are undefeated so far this season.

EAST JORDAN MEN JAIL- ED FOR STEALING FUR

Attempt to Sell Fox Skin at Boyne City Excited Suspicion

Curzon Kent and Frank Decker, Jr. of East Jordan, offered a fox skin for sale at Boyne City last Saturday.
They told a long story of where and how they trapped it. The story excited suspicion and Conservation Officer Ed. Deuel was notified and he took them into custody on account of their having no trappers' license.

Then the fur dealers around the county were asked if they were short a fox skin. The firm of Milstein &
Co. of East Jordan had lost a skin and described it as having two holes in its belly. The skin did not answer the description, but Milstein & Co.
wanted to take a look at the skin and so they drove over. On examination they turned the skin inside out and showed two gashes made by the teeth of a dog which had been sewn up and could not be seen from the fur side.

It was then the men confessed that their story was false. Sheriff Vaughan has them in custody and they will be charged with breaking and entering, meanwhile they are in jail.—Boyne

AT THE MOVIES

Esther Ralston Enacts Strong Character Part.

As Lena Smith, fought against, stripped of her child and jailed, Esther Ralston has the strongest dramatic role of her screen career in Paramount's "The Case of Lena Smith," which Josef von Sternberg directed and which the Palace Theatre will feature next Saturday and Sunday.

This star, known as "Paramount's gorgeous blonde," is the most elated person in Hollywood for being given the leading role in this tragic romance of a Hungarian peasant girl and also for the opportunity to work under the direction of Josef von Sternberg, who has produced four consecutive successes for Paramount within the last year and a half.

In the vivid holiday costume of the peasant girl, Esther Ralston has dropped her dancing pumps for red leather boots, her tight fitting evening gowns for fifteen petticoats and her diamond necklaces for black and rose head shawls. In the Prater, the Coney Island of Vienna, where she goes for adventure, Miss Ralston wears this interesting costume.

There are many reasons for the ease of steering the new Ford

THE new Ford is exceptionally easy to steer because of the well-proportioned weight of the car, the steel-spoke wheels, the co-ordinated design of springs and shock absorbers, the size and design of the steering wheel, and the simple mechanical construction of the steering gear.

The Ford steering gear is of the worm and sector type used on high-priced cars and is three-quarter irreversible.

In simple, non-technical language, this means that the car responds easily and quickly to the steering wheel, yet there is no danger of the wheel being jerked from the hands of the driver by ruts or bumps in the road. A light touch guides the car, yet you always have that necessary feel-of-the-road so essential to good driving.

Strength of materials and careful workmanship give unusual stability to the Ford steering gear and housing.

The steering worm, for instance, is splined to the steering worm shaft and is stronger, of course, than if a single key were used to hold the shaft and worm together. The steering worm sector is forged and machined in the same piece with its shaft.

The housing of the steering gear mechanism is made of three steel forgings, electrically welded together.
This housing is then electrically welded to the steering column. Such a one-piece steel unit is naturally much sturdier than if several parts were used and bolted or riveted together.

Throughout the new Ford steering mechanism is so simple in design and so carefully made that it requires practically no attention.

The only thing for you to do is to have the front steering spindles, spindle connecting rods, and drag link lubricated every 500 miles and the steering gear lubri-cated every 2000 miles.

For this work, you will find it best to consult the Ford dealer. He has been specially trained and equipped to help you get the greatest possible use from your car over the longest period of time at a minimum of trouble and expense.

WINTER CARNIVAL A GREAT SUCCESS

EVENTS ATTRACTED ENTIRE NORTH MICHIGAN REGION

Fine Weather, Well Planned and Executed Program Made 5th
Annual Carnival Best Ever

Two perfect February days, a well planned and executed program covering both afternoon and evening, and an attendance representing the entire Northern Michigan region, were three most important features contributing to the success of Charlevoix's 5th annual winter carnival last week Wednesday and Thursday. The program went through without a hitch and the event will go down in the annals of Northern Michigan winter sports history as the most successful ever staged.

Old Sol burst forth in all his radiance, lending full co-operation to the carnival sponsors. Taking advantage of the moderate temperature, crowds gathered from Petoskey, Boyne City, East Jordan, Harbor Springs, Central Lake, Traverse City and Cheboygan. Schools were dismissed both afternoons and the whole region enjoyed the fun.

Horse Races Draw Crowd.

The first event of Wednesday's program, horse races scheduled to be held on Bridge street, were transferred to Antrim street to escape traffic congestion and at the same time provide a half-mile straight-away track.

The first race was a tie. Jesse Smith's "Henry Direct" and Dr. Newman's "Alice Gordon" each won a heat. In the second race Jesse Smith's "Little Story" won both heats handily. Floyd Black's "Mary St. James" was second and Ralph Bacot's "Diana" third. An excellent horse blanket went to first prize winners and halter to second place winners.

Following the horse races, one heat of ski-joring races was held. William Woods took first prize, Fred Hardy second, Earl Harrington third.

LaBlanc Won Dog Race.

Dog sled races held on Bridge street closed the afternoon program. The usual free-for-all fight between the canine participants caused no little excitement for spectators. When finally untangled after the melee, George LaBlanc repeated his last year's performance by winning the first race. Glen Dixon's entry was second and Donald McHugh third. In the second race two Boyne City entries, who arrived too late for the first heat, captured first and third prizes, Godfrey Heller placing first and Lester Juvenville third. George LaBlanc took second place.

Skating Events Draw Big Entry.

George Beemnn handled the skating races, opening the events on the Wednesday evening program. A large crowd of spectators lined the municipal rink and the program was carried through without a hitch. Seventeen entries were out for the first event, the race for boys 12 years and under.

They were divided into three heats, with first two places in each heat competing in the finals. Heats winners were Bill Bergman, Bruce Withers, George Smith, Drew Young, Harold Bolton and Robert Livingston. In the final heat George Smith led the field for first prize, with Drew Young taking second.

Fourteen entries made up two heats in the single event open under 10 years. Heat winners were Nor-

LOCAL ENTRANTS COP PETOSKEY CARNIVAL PRIZES

Little Barbara Jean Bradley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fny Bradley, was awarded third prize of $10.00 in the Petoskey winter carnival parade Tuesday.

The little Miss represented "Miss Charlevoix." Her costume depicted a polar bear cub and she rode proudly in her decorated sled drawn by George Roderick's bull dog, who also was decked out for the occasion. Little Miss Bradley carried out her part like a veteran performer and won her share of applause from the spectators.

Fred Hardy, local ski jumper, placed third in competition at Petoskey Tuesday afternoon. Fred won the event there last year.

First prize in the fox chase on Little Traverse Bay went to Raymond Nowland's entry. A hound owned by Monte Withers took second prize and a Petoskey entry third. Charlevoix will have a large entry in the skating races today (Wednesday) and expect to bring home additional awards.

In the closest race of the evening, Janet Livingston carried off first prize in the contest for girls under 14. Byrnee Lamphear trailed her closely all the way to win second prize.

The men's free-for-all with 11 entries, turned out to be a beautiful race between Dr. Claire Cartier of Grand Rapids, and Dick Marshall, this city. The former took first by winning in the 5-lap grind. Marshall placed second.

As a final wind-up of the skating events, a free-for-all girls race was put on as an extra feature. Eight entries started. Byrnee Lamphear carried off first prize and Betty Cartier second. Janet Livingston, one of the most likely contenders, fell on the second curve and was unable to continue.

During the program of skating races, a committee was busy on Bridge street preparing the hill for coasting. The track was in fine shape and a large crowd turned out for the fun. Prizes for the longest run were awarded as follows: First, Devere Bird; second, Eugene Stroud; third, Will C. Bellinger, fourth, Harry Ochs.

Thursday Program Best Ever.

Charlevoix continued as the center of attraction.

POLAR BEARS TOP REED CITY QUINT

HAND THEM FIRST DEFEAT BY A SCORE OF 22 TO 18.

Petoskey Cements Fell Last Wednesday Evening 31 to 11 in a Lopsided Encounter.

The Charlevoix Polar Bears packed away two victories in successive nights last week, the first at the expense of the Petoskey Cements at Petoskey Wednesday evening and the second a win over the hitherto undefeated Reed City independents on the local coast Thursday evening.

The Polar Bears were altogether too fast and clever for the Petoskey Cements, winning easily by a score of 31 to 11. The Cements scored but three field goals during the game, those by Ernst and Beer. Murray, Beer, Ernst and Henry made free throws. Todd was Charlevoix's high point man with five goals. Gimble sank four and Davenport three.

In the game Thursday evening, the Polar Bears stopped the fast Reed City independent team for the first time this season. Composed of several members of Reed City's former state championship high school five, this organization has been taking "em all into camp down through the central part of the state. Unfortunately the visitors did not arrive in Charlevoix until well after 9:00 o'clock Thursday evening. Motor trouble near Kewadin necessitated procuring another machine to finish the trip. A packed gym waited patiently for the game to get underway.

The Polar Bears led the fray from the first until the final whistle. They had the advantage of a 6 to 2 score at the end of the first quarter, led 17 to 7 at the half and 20 to 11 at the finish of the third period. Reed City staged a desperate rally in the final quarter, outscoring Charlevoix 7 to 2, but were unable to overcome the locals lead. The final score found them trailing 22 to 18. The game was fast and cleanly played throughout. Charlevoix will play a return game at Reed City February 22.

Scoring honors for the Polar Bears were divided evenly between five of the players. Davenport, Cooper, Ikens, Kipke and Todd scoring four points each. Gimble scored one basket for the extra two points.

Monthly Meeting of the W. C. T. U.

The regular monthly meeting of the W. C. T. U. was held at the home of Mrs. John Burns on Grant street. Twenty members were present. Mrs. S. M. Rife, the president, presided. After the usual business session was over, Mrs. J. J. Simmons read a splendid paper, "The Citizen and His Duty." Mrs. Simmons presented some good material for thought and consideration. Mrs. Tony Novotny rendered a beautiful piano solo.

Baxter W. R. C. will give a public tea Thursday afternoon, February 21st, at the home of Mrs. Fred Christensen on May street. Members are urged to bring their husbands. Price 15 cents.—Adv. 7t1 pd.

CHARLEVOIX TOO GOOD FOR JORDAN

TOP VISITORS 33 TO 9 HERE ON TUESDAY EVENING.

Bill Novak Stars in One-sided Contest—Juniors Mark Up Win While Reserves Lose.

East Jordan high school furnished little opposition for Coach Kipke's Red and White basketball team in their game at the gym Tuesday evening. Charlevoix was superior in every department, winning by a lopsided score of 33 to 9.

Opening their offense with a new style of floor play, Charlevoix first scored on a goal by Max Novak. Bill Novak then took over scoring responsibilities and netted 9 points before the period ended. Rex Supernaw marked up a free throw to bring Charlevoix's total to 12, while East Jordan came through with a free throw for 1 point.

Both teams played a strong defense during the second and third periods. Charlevoix counted 4 points in each of the two stanzas and East Jordan 2. The Red and White led 16 to 3 at the half and 20 to 5 at the end of the third period.

Charlevoix went on another scoring spree in the final quarter which netted them 13 points. Bill Novak accounted for 5, Cornie McCall, substituting for Marshall made 4. Rex Supernaw 2 and Max Novak 2. Jordan slipped through for two goals to bring their total to 9.

Shepard, East Jordan forward, started for the visiting five. Bill Novak made a total of 18 points to lead his team in scoring honors. Max Novak made 6, Cornie McCall 4, Rex Supernaw 3 and Marshall 2.

In the semi-final game of the evening, East Jordan reserves won an overtime contest from Charlevoix reserves 14 to 12. The visitors led 4 to 0 at the first quarter and 9 to 3 at the half. Charlevoix held them scoreless during the third period, while bringing the score to a 9 to 9 tie. The two teams battled on even terms during the fourth period and the final whistle found them again deadlocked 12 to 12. Jordan slipped through with a goal to win in the overtime period.

The local junior high gave Charlevoix the first victory of the evening by defeating the Jordan juniors in the curtain-opener 10-9. Joe Smith was the Charlevoix junior's star, accounting for most of their scores.

CITY WILL MAINTAIN HILL FOR COASTING

Plan to Keep Track Iced and Guard Street Intersections.

An announcement of interest to local winter sports enthusiasts, especially those who enjoy coasting, is the information that the city will maintain the Bridge street hill for coasting Thursday afternoons and Sunday afternoons and evenings for the balance of the winter season.

We are told that the hill will be kept iced and in good condition. Watchmen will be posted to guard street intersections and everything possible done to further the sports. It is a nice bit of co-operation and winter sports enthusiasts will no doubt appreciate it.

"THE CITIZEN, AND HIS DUTY"

PAPER GIVEN BY MRS. SIMMONS
AT W. C. T. U. MEET.

Part Women Should Play in Government—Affairs Outlined in Decisive Manner.

All good or evil comes from some thought. All laws, systems and programs have to be thought out so it is a very important thing that our thoughts are trained and educated along lines that eventually bring the best results. So in citizenship we need a high ideal to work to and a plan that will in time educate our children and all foreign children so that all workers will think and all thinkers will work.

Millions are forced to face life without this fine equipment. They lack the energy and hope and more than this, the conditions are too hard, too many of the doors of opportunity are shut against them. Every man has a responsibility for his own life; he must not play the coward and charge all his misfortunes to fate. Yet society also—society the condition-maker—has a heavy responsibility for each man's life. It is clear that the Father has put us all into each other's care in this world, and yet we are not caring for each other in the spirit of justice and humanity. Instead of living for each other we are living on each other. Instead of trying to put something into life to enrich others, we are usually trying to take something out of life to enrich ourselves.

The social problem is the problem of humanity, our cruel unbrotherly system that had existed on earth for thousands of years was not right because it was old and always had been so. Social customs are right only because they square with eternal justice with the brotherly principle of the Golden Rule. This is the hope of men. There is no other hope.

I believe today women give a finer appreciation to the better things in government. They are the inspiration for education and harmony, while the men have put more emphasis on the economic problems, and I think our government more than ever needs just our interest in it to balance all public affairs. As citizens, we are just as responsible for the men that are elected to office as the men are, and every woman should feel the importance of her duty as a citizen to the community in which she lives and to her nation. I think the women of America should have a great rally song. You know they say we elected Hoover, and I believe he should put a woman in his cabinet. Why do we stand back and let men run the government entirely, when it has never been done so well as since women have had a part in running it. I believe as women, we look at industrial problems with more unbiased minds than the men and now, as we apparently stand just outside public affairs, are more unselfish and can give a fairer view to different situations.

Men seem to think that women are an influence that they must accept in politics, but are not quite ready to recognize, at least not any more than they can help. Especially the older politicians still try to dictate, and some of the younger ones seem to try and dictate too, and forget that it is not for personal grievances of our government we stand. I hope as women we are always broad-minded enough to do the best for humanity. And I feel that in the future men will feel the need of women in government, just as they have felt her need in the home.

There has been some discussion of the suggestion that, in the interests of a high grade judiciary, and the divorce of the selection from politics, it would be better if all our judges were appointive rather than elective. In the English and Canadian practice the judiciary is uniformly appointive. The same thing is true of the federal judiciary of the United States. Why not in the state and municipal courts as well? Every intelligent and impartial observer must be convinced that the appointive system would be the better. It would secure a higher grade of judges, beyond question. The election would be freer from the scramble of nominations and elections. When a judge, every six years, must come before the public for re-nomination and re-election, it is obvious that one who wishes to stay in office is tempted constantly to keep an eye open to the next election. To a high-minded man it cannot be agreeable to be compelled to enter into the open competition of politics to secure a seat upon the bench. With the appointing power held responsible for the character of the judges named, great care would be taken in their selection.

To change Michigan's system would require a constitutional amendment. It would need effort and time. But it might be well worth while.

HIGHWAY TANGLE IS NOW SETTLED

CITY TO GRANT 33-FOOT ROAD.
WAY TO CHARLEVOIX TWP.

Action Taken by City Council Monday Night Closes Long Controversy Over the Matter

Inasmuch as the Courier took the public's stand in regard to the removal of a fence between the city auto park and Boulder Park subdivision, and granting of a highway right of way for the extension of Park avenue as shown on original plans, we take considerable satisfaction in announcing to our readers that the matter has apparently been brought to a peaceful conclusion.

At a meeting of the city council Monday evening, members of that body accepted the recommendation of Mayor Borgeon that if the Hair interests dedicate to Charlevoix township 33 feet of their property adjoining the city auto park for highway purposes, the city also dedicate 33 feet off the auto park, making a 66-foot highway to Boulder Park. The recommendation contained a condition that no action be taken until snow is off the ground so that property lines might be determined.

Inasmuch as Mrs. Hair of Boyne City has already given Charlevoix township a quit claim deed to the north 33 feet of her property, the matter may be considered definitely settled.

We regret having been drawn into the controversy, but this paper always has and always will take a stand for what we believe to be right when the public is concerned. The objections to the request made by Charlevoix township were so small, and of so little consequence, that we could at no time figure why there should have been any argument in the first place. The council could have taken similar action in the past and saved our embarrassment for all concerned. Our hope now is that it does not take Supervisor Cook as long to get the city's deed to the 33 feet as it has to get them to bring the matter to a head.

GROUP BACKS GILBERT RE-ELECTION

BOYNE CITY FORMS "GILBERT FOR JUDGE" CLUB.

Boyne City Editor Points to Candidate's Fine Record and Urges Customary Second Term.

With the contest for judgeship of the 13th judicial district a three-way race, various groups are active in the cause of their favorite candidate. Over Boyne City way they have organized a "Gilbert for Judge" club and are active sponsoring his candidacy.

Editor Hair of the Boyne Citizen speaks through his columns of Judge Gilbert's fine record and expresses himself as being in favor of the customary second term. Editor Hair's views on the subject coincide with ours and we are republishing below the text of his article:

"Circuit Judge Parm C. Gilbert dropped in amongst us Monday and gave out the information in the form of announcement cards that he would appreciate the customary second term as judge of this circuit.

"The Editor has not had the misfortune to have been brought with force and arms before the judge in his official capacity, and so has no direct personal knowledge as to what the result of such an adventure might be, but from what we hear of from others, about the only criticism that has been brought is that Judge Gilbert is not lenient with lawbreakers—especially repeaters—and that he is impatient with technicalities unnecessary delays, continuances, motions, etc., that tends to befuddle and obstruct justice.

"We hear a lot of very favorable comments on Judge Gilbert, both as a man and as a judge, and inquiry indicates that he will have a very large majority in this city, and also throughout the county for that matter. Inasmuch as he has had the office only one term and is entitled to a second term by custom, and the fact that his two opponents also are from his end of the district—one being from Traverse City and the other from Elk Rapids—he is entitled to the whole-hearted support of the voters of Charlevoix county.

"As an evidence of support and appreciation, about 30 business men of the city and vicinity gathered at the Wolverine Hotel Monday evening and had Judge Gilbert as their guest at a supper-lunch. Following which, Mayor Vought called for order and introduced Bill Pearson (which is also a universal custom) and Bill gave a fine get-together-anti-harmony-hustle-Republican address that was cheered lustily. Judge Gilbert then addressed the men and gave some of his experiences and of his work and efforts in bringing about speedy justice in the suppression of crime at a minimum expense throughout this district.

"After some further discussion it was unanimously agreed to organize a 'Gilbert for Judge' club and Mayor Vought was elected president and E. A. Ruegger was elected secretary of the club. Ward chairmen for the 2nd, 3rd, and 4th wards were appointed as follows: H. M. Steimel for 2nd ward, Alex Heller for 3rd ward and Roy Scott for the 4th ward. 1st ward chairman will be Art Chipman. A vigorous canvass will be made to get out a large vote at the primary election.

HIGH SCHOOL BAND TO HAVE NATTY NEW UNIFORMS

Following a series of successful benefit affairs to raise funds, uniforms have been ordered for the Charlevoix high school band and it is planned they will blossom out in their new regalia at the basketball tournament in March. Fred E. Cartier measured the band members Tuesday and the order has gone out. The school colors, Red and White, have been featured in the selection of material shades. The cloth will be maroon red with braids of a darker shade and white. The proceeds from operettas, basketball games and other affairs has been given over to the fund, which, according to reports, totals well over $300.

CORRESPONDENCE

BEAVER ISLAND NEWS.

After two weeks without mail, we got our first class mail across the ice on February 3rd. Five passengers also made the trip.

A very pleasant birthday party was given in honor of the two Pischner ground hogs, Enid, age 20 years, and Charlie, age 16 years, on Ground Hog Day. There were present about 36 young people who knew how to have a good time. Supper was served by the boy's sister, Evelyn Pischner.

On Sunday evening, February 3rd, a meeting of the Game Protective Club was held in the town hall, where they also had a game of basketball between the Beaver Island Independents and the Beaver Island All-Stars. After the game, which would be easier told than written, a lunch was served to all present.

On January 21st, Arthur C. Pischner, son of H. R. Pischner, and Miss Mary McCann, daughter of M. J. McCann, were united in marriage. The ceremony was performed by Father Neubecker at his residence. Following a supper at the home of the bride's parents, where about 70 people were served, young and old joined in a very jolly party featured by dancing. The young couple will stay around here getting acquainted with friends until the ice is fit to travel on.

Chas. G. Tilley died at his home at St. James, February 3rd, after a long illness. Mr. Tilley was born July 12, 1853, at Auburn, N. Y. He came with his parents to Lake Leelanau, Mich., at the age of 12 years. He was married September 20, 1885, to Miss Mary Boyes, later moving to Northport. This wife died in 1894. Mr. Tilley was again married on May 19, 1896, to Emma Redford of Northport. The couple resided there until 1896, when they came to Beaver Island. Mr. Tilley is survived by his wife and seven children, viz: Mrs. Sybil Larsen, St. James; Mrs. Mne Barnhardt, Detroit; Mrs. Maude Arnold, Lansing; Charles and Guelma, still at home. There is also one sister, Mrs. Emma Lalonde of Gladstone, Mich., and six grandchildren.

EVELINE

Fine February weather. Our items were snowed under last week.

The cars are buzzing on the new Lake Shore road these days. Seems good to see them again.

Mrs. Lizzie Cooper writes from California that they are having very comfortable weather there.

Mr. and Mrs. Al Freiberg of East Jordan, drove up with their car and spent Sunday at their cottage here.

Star of Hope Sunday school re-organized at Mountain school house last Sunday and will meet hereafter at eleven a. m.

Mrs. Katie Walker is able to be out again since her illness with the flu and was over to her mother's birthday dinner Sunday. Mrs. Cooper is fortunate in being one of the great people whose birthday comes in February.

Com. William Palmer made the school a friendly visit last week. He told us that an apple a day would keep the M. D. away, and that an onion a day would keep everybody away. The teacher is glad to have

Two Bottles of This Master Medicine Enabled Him to Start Work Again.

MR. JOHN FLASHER

The records of Konjola, the super-medicine, fairly overflow with splendid experiences. Success is possible because Konjola goes to the very source of the ailment. Konjola aims first to root the cause, not the effect.

Take, for instance, the case of Mr. John Flasher, 502 Jackson street, Big Rapids, Michigan, who sent in the following endorsement:

"For the past few years I have suffered intense agony from rheumatism. As I am 70 years old I little thought I would ever get any relief from my pains. My legs and arms were always swollen and it seemed that my entire body was a solid mass of aches and pains. Because of this I was unable to work.

"I heard about Konjola and decided to give it a trial. Two bottles put me back to work and after completing the third bottle, all my aches and pains had disappeared. I was once feeble, but now I am as strong as ever. To all who suffer as I did I say, take Konjola."

Konjola is sold in Charlevoix at F. J. Fessenden's drug store and by all the best druggists throughout this entire section.

anyone call. Don't knock; walk right in.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Sanderson and two sons of Mountain district, made a trip across the lake and visited Sunday afternoon at the home of Frank Emons. Mr. Sanderson says that when they came to a soft place his wife would say, "Let me take the snow shoe, for if you fall in you can swim and I can't."

(Too late for last week.)
Nice winter weather.
Lyle Walker is back to school again.

There were 23 people at Sunday school last Sunday.

George Miller has his little cottage ready for occupancy. Mr. Sears and wife are now in Florida, it is supposed.

Silos on the farms of Robt. Sherman and Mr. Secord were blown down during Tuesday's big storm of two weeks ago.

People were glad to see the snow plow come through on the flat road again Sunday. It has been about three weeks since cars were able to get through.

While cutting wood last week, Mr. Knudsen had the misfortune to sever the end of the middle finger, just in front of the first joint, with an axe. Dr. Armstrong sewed the member together, but it is not known as yet whether it will grow together again as the bone was cut clear through.

Mr. Knudsen started in on his fingers. Commissioner Palmer has sent out the circulars for the 7th and 8th grade reading work and the pupils will have to get busy on the reading work. Homer Evans and Dale Kiser are the only ones to take the work here. Dale is finishing on the eighth. Bernard Best says he is anxious to have Mr. Palmer come around and hear him read. He is just starting in the third grade work.

BARNARD

The Misses Margaret and Ruth Matchett spent the week end at their home.

Miss Chew and several of the older pupils attended the winter sports in Charlevoix on Thursday.

We are glad to know that Phelps is booming once more. They report receiving 2,292 pounds of cream worth $323.65 week before last.

George Block and his band boys are on the job at 12 o'clock every Sunday for a good practice before Sunday school time. Mr. Block is to be commended for his faithfulness in this work. He is talking of starting a singing class in connection.

NORWOOD

Guy Empey spent the week end with friends at Central Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Richardson were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Parsons of Atwood last Thursday.

No longer is it necessary for traffic to travel on snow shoes and by means of horses, as our road is open for cars.

Mrs. William Alward very pleasantly entertained several members of the L. A. S. at a pot luck dinner at her country home last Wednesday.

Rev. Sanford again filled the pulpit at Norwood Sunday, speaking on the topic "Bearing Burdens," which was very interesting to those present.

Mrs. Lashbrook reports that the during the month of January was 89 per cent, which is good considering the severe storms and cold weather. Isa Alward, one of Ellsworth's enthusiastic fox hunters, accompanied by his wife, are visiting relatives at Norwood for a few days. Mr. Alward says he would give the fox a try with his two fine hounds if he could find a track.

Eleanor Tumath and Richard Farmer have been chosen to do the bookkeeping for the tournament.

Miss Thomas (telling about corrective drill for speed tests)—"You see, if you make too many errors on your speed test, you will have quite a lot of drill work to do."

REV. HERMAN BURNS LEAVES LOCAL FIELD

Assumes New Charge at Imlay City Sunday, February 17th

Rev. Herman Burns, pastor of the Charlevoix Baptist church for the past five years, preached his farewell sermon Sunday evening, and Tuesday left for his new field of labor at Imlay City, Michigan.

A parsonage is furnished, being located in the same block and opposite the church. He will preach his first sermon there on Sunday, February 17th.

Dr. Burns began active work in Charlevoix October 1, 1922 as convention pastor of the state organization. In October, 1924, he again entered the local field and continued until last Sunday evening. His work here was marked with success and the church has grown under his leadership. With Rev. and Mrs. Burns go the best wishes of Charlevoix citizens for success in their new field of endeavor.

The ladies of the Church of God will hold a Bake Goods sale at Staley Bros. hardware store Saturday, February 16. We will have a good line of "cups." Don't forget the day, date and place.—Adv. 7-1.

AT THE MOVIES

Does Billie Dove Love Only Brunettes—in Films.

Billie Dove's screen lovers are not all dark.

She may or may not prefer brunettes—but thus far her taste in leading men has leaned very strongly in that direction. In her new First National picture, "Adoration," Antonio Moreno is cast opposite her. This film by the way comes to the Palace Theater next Saturday and Sunday and was directed by Frank Lloyd.

Other leading men in her recent pictures, all of whom were dark, included Lloyd Hughes, Donald Reed, Clive Brook, Gilbert Roland and Ben Lyon. Even Larry Kent has dark brown hair.

This is all rather odd, because Miss Dove herself is a brunette. But once a fortune teller told Billie that—"Many, many dark men will cross your path!"

So maybe that accounts for it!

Mrs. Swinton's piano classes which are held on Saturday afternoons at 1:30 and 2:30, are open to anyone wishing to observe the work. To parents who are interested in this method of beginning piano lessons for their children, Mrs. Swinton will be glad to furnish information.—Adv. 7-2.

D. 1929, at the opening of the Court on that day, and that all persons interested in such lands or any part thereof, desiring to contest the lien claimed thereon by the State of Michigan, for such taxes, interest and charges, or any part thereof, shall appear in said Court, and file with the clerk thereof their objections thereto on or before the first day of the term of this Court above mentioned, and that in default thereof the same will be taken as confessed and a decree will be taken and entered as prayed for in said petition. And it is further ordered that in pursuance of said decree the lands described in said petition for which a decree of sale shall be made, will be sold for the several taxes, interest and charges thereon as determined by such decree, on the first Tuesday in May thereafter, beginning at 10 o'clock a. m. on said day, or on the day or days subsequent thereto as may be necessary to complete the sale of said lands and of each and every parcel thereof, at the office of the County Treasurer, or at such convenient place as shall be selected by him at the county seat of the County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan; and that the sale then and there made will be a public sale, and each parcel described in the decree shall be separately exposed for sale for the total taxes, interest and charges, and the sale shall be made to the person paying the full amount charged against such parcel, and accepting a conveyance of the smallest undivided fee simple interest therein; or, if no person will pay the taxes and charges and take a conveyance of less than the entire thereof, then the whole parcel shall be offered and sold. If any parcel of land cannot be sold for taxes, interest and charges, such parcel shall be passed over for the time being, and shall, on the succeeding day, or before the close of the sale, be reoffered, and if, on such second offer, or during such sale, the same cannot be sold for the amount aforesaid, the County Treasurer shall bid off the same in the name of the State.

Witness the Hon. Parm C. Gilbert, Circuit Judge, and the seal of said Circuit Court of Charlevoix County this 17th day of December, A. D. 1928.

COUNTERSIGNED, (Seal) GEORGE A. RODERICK, Clerk.

PARM C. GILBERT, Circuit Judge.

STATE OF MICHIGAN

To the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix, in Chancery:

The petition of Oramel B. Fuller, Auditor General of the State of Michigan, for and in behalf of said State, respectfully shows that the list of lands hereinafter set forth and marked "Schedule A," contains a description of all lands in said County of Charlevoix upon which taxes were assessed for the years mentioned therein, and which were returned as delinquent for non-payment of taxes, and which taxes have not been paid, together with the total amount of such taxes, with interest computed thereon to the time fixed for sale, and collection fee and expenses, as provided by law, extended against each of said parcels of land.

Your petitioner further shows to the Court that said lands were returned to the Auditor General under the provisions of Act 206 of the Public Acts of 1893, as delinquent for non-payment of said taxes for said years respectively, and that said taxes remain unpaid; except that lands included in said "Schedule A" for taxes of 1890 or prior years were returned to the Auditor General as delinquent for said taxes under the provisions of the general tax laws in force prior to the passage of Act 200 of the Public Acts of 1891, and of which lands remain unpaid.

Your petitioner further shows that in all cases where lands are included in "Schedule A" as aforesaid for taxes of 1890 or of any prior year, said lands have not been sold for said taxes or have been heretofore sold for said delinquent taxes and the sale or sales so made have been set aside by a court of competent jurisdiction, or have been cancelled as provided by law.

Your petition further shows and avers that the taxes, interest, collection fee and expenses set forth in said "Schedule A," are a valid lien on the several parcels of lands described in said schedule.

Your petitioner further shows that the said taxes on the said described lands have remained unpaid for more than one year after they were returned as delinquent; and the said taxes not having been paid, and the same being now due and remaining unpaid as above set forth, your petitioner prays a decree in favor of the State of Michigan against each parcel of said lands, for the payment of the several amounts of taxes, interest, collection fee and expenses, as computed and extended in said schedule against the several parcels of land contained therein, and in default of payment of the said several sums computed and extended against said lands, that each of said parcels of land may be sold for the amounts due thereon, as provided by law, to pay the lien aforesaid.

And your petitioner will ever pray, etc.

Dated December 10, 1928.

ORAMEL B. FULLER,

Auditor General of the State of Michigan, for and in behalf of said State.

"Lucky Guys"

There is many an unwise person who has given his hard-earned coin to some clever talker who promised big things. When the promised "million" failed to arrive, he certainly was disappointed,—and broke—and then he called the wise people "lucky guys," but they aren't "lucky guys," for there is no luck in the saving game. It is just character and common sense. We welcome savings accounts, large or small, of men, women and children and pay 4 per cent interest on every dollar deposited.

BIRTHDAY PARTY A BRILLIANT AFFAIR

Dickens Club Members Observe the Birth of Noted Humorist.

A very pleasant affair was the luncheon tendered the members of Charles Dickens Club by its executive committee, at the home of the president, Mrs. Henry Partridge, Monday afternoon, in honor of the one hundred seventeenth birthday of Charles Dickens.

The spirit of St. Valentine's Day was present in the attractive decorations and the excellent menu. Games following the luncheon tested the memories of the ladies regarding Dickens writings and their ability as artists portraying his characters. Had this gifted humorist been present at some of our winter sports he might have written the clever sketch of Mr. Whiskle on Skates, read by Mrs. H. A. Craig from Pickwick Papers. Miss Shirley Partridge favored the club with the beautiful little story of this author, "A Child's Dream of a Star."

Recognition is made each year, on or near February 7, of the birth of the famous author for whom the club is named, and the members were unanimous in voting this entertainment one of the best.

Brown will change his Sweaters next week. All Sweaters to be closed out at cost and below cost prices. Read his adv. on page 4.—Adv. 761.

ter of interest in all Northern Michigan Thursday, the final day of the city's 5th annual winter carnival. Every city and village in the region was represented in the crowd of spectators on hand for the events. Petoskey sent a large quota, together with others from Boyne City, East Jordan, Harbor Springs and even Cheboygan.

Parade a Big Success.

The annual carnival parade, opening event of the Thursday afternoon program, was led by the high school band, the procession stretching out a half mile. Every branch of winter sports was represented—Skiers, snow shoers and skaters in costume, race horses, dog teams, skijoring mounts and all. A galaxy of floats were entered, first prize going to a load of little girls dressed in bunting and named "Our Polar Cubs." Dr. C. J. Winder, Charlevoix; Lester Naylor, Boyne City, and O. W. Johnson, Petoskey, were the judges.

Another float depicting "Quebec in the Eighties," was also a feature, including the Petoskey American Legion and Kiwanis outfits, were also prominent in the parade. Several original comic costumes caused no little merriment and, everything considered, the parade was a great success.

Hardy Again Ski Champ.

The feature event of the Thursday afternoon program was the annual Lake Charlevoix Winter Club ski tournament at Mt. McSaubia. Fred Hardy, regional champion, repeated his last year's performance by winning the event. To Earl Harrington of this city went the prize for the longest jump. These two skiers were the only ones to make their trials without a spill. They were successful on all three attempts. Following are the entries and results of their attempts: Earl Harrington completed three successful trials. On the first he jumped 30 feet, second 32 feet and 38 feet for first prize for distance. Hardy completed three successful trials. The distance was 35 feet both times, but he fell back to 32 feet in his trial for distance. Bill Woods, local entrant, jumped 43 feet and 46 feet on his two trials, but spilled both times. Charles Kleinhaus, Petoskey, made two leaps of 36 and 40 feet. Harold Baird, Petoskey, made 32 and 35 feet on his two trials, while Geo. Wachelin, recently from Norway, leaped 40 and 39 feet on his two attempts. All of those above named were disqualified after falling in both attempts. Had Woods been successful in his two trials, he would have won the event easily, outdistancing all other entrants.

High School Tied Petoskey.

The opening event of the evening program, a hockey game between Petoskey Winter Club Juniors and Charlevoix high school team, resulted in a 1 to 1 tie. It was the first time this season a local team has been able to hold the more experienced Petoskey outfit. Hooker scored for Petoskey in the first period and LaBlanc evoked the count for Charlevoix in the third. The line-ups were: Petoskey: Erfoorth, center; Mitchell and Saunders, wings; Hooker and Herick, defense; Jespersen, goalie. Charlevoix: Gill, center; Kirby and LaBlanc, wings; Swanson and Foster, defense; Christiansen, goalie.

Seniors Defeated 6 to 1.

Charlevoix did not fare so well in the hockey game between the Charlevoix and Petoskey winter club teams. The visitors carried off the honors 6 to 1, showing superiority in every department. Playing for Charlevoix were John Knight, center; Sharrow and Cartier, wings; Foster and Crockett, defense; Kelderhouse, goalie. Charlevoix: Gill, center; Kirby and LaBlanc, wings; Swanson and Foster, defense; Christiansen, goalie. Charlevoix was weak in goal defense, while Petoskey showed greater superiority in working the puck into position to score.

Carnival a Great Success.

Everything considered, the 5th annual winter carnival was a great success. Director McHugh had his events well planned and committees assisting carried out their duties with dispatch.

SET COASTING BOBS GIVEN WINTER CLUB

Material, Labor and Funds Donated by Local Business Men.

A pair of 20-foot coasting bobs equipped with all latest devices including windshield, electric lights, etc., will be presented the Charlevoix Winter Club at the Thursday afternoon holiday program this week.

Construction of the new bobs was brought about through the efforts of a group of public spirited citizens, led, we believe, by Burton Brooks. Lumber was donated by the Charlevoix Lumber Co. and W. E. Parmelee. Henry Johnston donated the labor and Charlevoix business men generally, gave funds to purchase accessories such as paint, iron, etc.

The motive is to give a pair of community bobs for use by citizens not owning a set, and, at the same time, promote the idea of city-owned, club-owned or group-owned bobs.

ANNUAL MISSIONARY MEETING LAST WEEK

Methodist Organization Met With Its President, Mrs. Beaman

The annual luncheon of the missionary societies of the Methodist church was held at the home of the president, Mrs. Ada Beaman, Wednesday, February 6th at one o'clock. Mrs. Nettie Hurd of Petoskey, district corresponding secretary of the W. H. M. S. was the guest-speaker. A fine attendance and a hearty good-fellowship made for a successful meeting. Mrs. Hurd's talk was helpful and inspiring, she brought so much to encourage and aid in this worthwhile work. She stressed the district convention to be held in Cadillac in May, also the national meeting to be held in Grand Rapids in October.

A short business meeting followed Mrs. Hurd's talk and a social time brought the closing all too soon. The meeting adjourned to meet with Mrs. Gornell in March.

Political Announcement

To the Voters of the 15th Judicial District:

Your attention is invited to the following:

The conduct of court proceedings should be prompt and the law should be enforced with energy.

During the past five years all such cases and proceedings that were undisposed of when Judge Gilbert was elected, have been heard, decided or dismissed. Court dockets have been cleared and kept clear.

Every case ready for trial has been brought to hearing.

The plan of having the jury report on second day of term makes it possible to put them to work immediately and thus avoid delay and expense. The handling of those accused and convicted of offenses has been such as to encourage the officers and deter other persons from criminal acts.

Costs imposed and collected have gone a long way toward paying court expenses.

Large sums have been collected for support of infant children, minors and abandoned widows. The attorneys have aided in these accomplishments and by the united efforts of attorneys and the court, it has become very unusual for cases to be continued. Some delays are necessary, but others should not be granted.

Do you hope to improve on these things by turning Judge Gilbert out at the end of his first term? The court belongs to the public and the decision now rests with each voter.—Adv. 711.

Political Announcement

To the Voters of the Third Ward:

I am a candidate for Alderman of the Third Ward at the primary election March 4, and a report is being circulated that I cannot hold the office, if elected, for the reason that I am carrying mail to and from trains.

My contract with the government does not bar me from holding such office and, if elected, I will do my very best for the people. I will appreciate your support March 4. Respectfully, Jesse Smith. Adv. 7-12.

Registration Notice

To the Qualified Electors of the City of Charlevoix, State of Michigan:

Notice is hereby given that in conformity with the Michigan election law, the undersigned City Clerk, will, upon any day except Sunday and a legal holiday, the day of primary election, receive for registration the name of any legal voter in said city not already registered, who may apply to me personally for such registration. Provided, however, that I can receive no name for registration during the time intervening between the second Saturday before the day of election, or the day of primary election.

You are further notified, that I will be in my office February 23rd, 1929, from 8 o'clock a. m. until 8 o'clock p. m. that day, for the purpose of registering such of the qualified electors in said city as shall properly apply therefor.

COURIER, CHARLEVOIX, MICH., WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 20, 1929

PRICE $2.00 PER YEAR

PIONEER TELLS OF EARLY DAYS

RECALLS GROWTH OF CHARLEVOIX SINCE YEAR 1865.

Elizabeth Whitney Williams is Earliest Pioneer of Northern Michigan Region.

We are indebted to Elizabeth Whitney Williams, author of "A Child of the Sea," for the following article covering the progress of Charlevoix. Mrs. Williams was born on Mackinac Island and is approaching her 85th birthday. It is believed she is the earliest living pioneer of this region. Her mind is unusually alert for one of such advanced years and her narrative will no doubt be of great interest to our readers.

"Much has been told about Charlevoix and its surroundings, yet much more can be told of how it has grown from a wilderness into a beautiful little city with its fine resorts that are filled every season with people from all parts of the United States, also some from abroad.

"Charlevoix was first called 'Pine River' and after the trouble with the Mormons and the fishermen in 1852 and 1853, the place was settled by a few families of Mormons sent over from Beaver Island by James J. Strang, who was called the Mormon king. They also settled at East Jordan and named the place East Jordan, and also called the little island in South Arm 'Holy Island.' Strang preached there several times to his people. After Strang's death in 1856 the Mormons all vacated the places they had occupied and very few people came until about 1857.

"Among the earliest settlers were Seth Mason and Morris J. Stockman, who came with their families, bought land and made homes. John S. Dixon and family had come in 1854, but having trouble with his Mormon neighbors, moved to Northport. Things were settled when he came back. He was later appointed Charlevoix's first postmaster. Mr. Dixon prospered and built a nice home and owned the land where The Inn now stands. Mrs. Dixon was appointed by the government as Indian school teacher. Her school was at Greensburg Hill. She was a faithful teacher and was greatly loved by all the Indians.

"Myself and husband (Clement VanRiper), came to Charlevoix in 1865 and built the first house on Bridge street south of the river. Mr. Mason and Mr. Stockman had come from Lake Huron. They bought land and built homes and from that time on the place has grown until it is one of the finest resorts in Northern Michigan. We sold our property to Amos Fox. He built a nice dock and kept a store. He also built the Fountain City House, which still remains and is filled every summer with guests. It is now owned by Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Bedford.

"This is only a short sketch of what Charlevoix has accomplished in its short time of growth. We wish all success to come as the years pass by. My home is now here and I am satisfied to be where all is so beautiful and quiet and peaceful."

FIREMAN'S ANNUAL MASQUERADE FRIDAY

Prizes for Best Costumes Are Now on Display.

An event of more than usual interest this week is the annual firemen's masquerade ball, which will be held Friday evening, February 22nd, at the high school gymnasium.

Prizes posted for the best costumes are now on display in the window of the Charlevoix Hardware Co. The ladies' first and second prizes are a set of water glasses and atomizer. Gentlemen's prizes are a combination set including bill fold, key container and cigarette case and a silk neck scarf as second award.

This annual Washington's birthday event is always well attended and provides an excellent evening of fun. Weststaff's orchestra is billed to furnish music.

Websters Entertain

Mr. and Mrs. Clare Webster were hosts Thursday evening at their home on Petoskey avenue at a six o'clock potluck supper. Following the supper the fourteen guests attended the Cadillac-Polar Bear basketball game, after which they returned to the Webster home to play bridge for the remainder of the evening.

Another Eastern Star play at gym Tuesday evening, February 26. This one will eclipse all previous. Don't miss it.—Adv. 811.

FEBRUARY COURT TERM ADJOURNED TO FRIDAY

Four Cases on Criminal Docket and Others Were Settled

The February term of circuit court adjourned Wednesday afternoon and will convene again Friday. None of the four criminal cases on the docket came before a jury.

Edwin Ewing, Boyne Falls, and Harry Roof, Boyne City, pleaded guilty to violation of the liquor law. They were placed on probation until the May term of court. Curzon Kent and Frank Decker, East Jordan, charged with breaking and entering, also pleaded guilty and are being held for sentence. It is understood the case of L. T. Rouse, charged with violation of the election laws, was settled out of court. Several chancery cases and issues of fact and law were settled.

MESDAMES McMILLAN AND CAREY HOSTESSES

Mrs. F. E. McMillan and Mrs. Leo Carey were joint hostesses at the McMillan home on Park avenue on Friday evening and Saturday afternoon. Six tables of bridge were in play on both occasions. Mrs. Clare Webster won first prize and Mrs. Verle Crandall the consolation at the Friday evening event. Mrs. Charles Hamlin won first prize and Mrs. Robert Hamilton the consolation on Saturday afternoon.

FATHER AND SON BANQUET TUESDAY

ONE HUNDRED FORTY PRESENT AT ANNUAL AFFAIR.

Excellent Banquet Dinner and Fine Program Mark Event as Most Successful Ever Held.

The annual Father and Son banquet held at the Methodist church Tuesday evening will go down in history as an outstanding success from point of attendance, quality of banquet dinner and program and henceforth each father and son present derived from the address delivered by W. Ray Barnes of Petoskey, speaker of the evening.

Following divine blessing asked by Rev. John E. Lockyer of the entertaining church, one hundred forty were seated to an excellent banquet dinner served by the Methodist ladies. Orchestra music during the dinner hour was an appreciated feature. Rev. B. G. Mattson, toastmaster of the evening, opened the program with brief remarks. Two fine vocal selections by the high school male quartette received spontaneous applause, as did also solos by Harber Kirby and Dr. Frank H. Wilkinson.

Speaking in behalf of the fathers, Dr. C. J. Winder gave a short and appropriate talk. Lee Shapton answered for the sons, thanking the fathers for the many advantages provided for the mental and physical welfare of the boys of our city.

W. Ray Barnes of Petoskey, was the speaker of the evening. His subject was "Building for Service." Mr. Barnes made apologies for newspaper notices announcing him as being popularly known at the Edgar Guest of Northern Michigan. His apologies were entirely unnecessary, however, for his address and short poems of his own composition certainly upheld the cognomen bestowed upon him by the press. Mr. Barnes held the audience spellbound by his address for an hour. His talk spiced with witty short stories at times, but otherwise drove straight to the hearts of his listeners with a message full of inspiration gained from wide personal experience and a sympathetic knowledge of his subject. Each father and son present were sent home with a far better understanding of their duties toward one another.

BIRTHDAY AFFAIR AT FAY BRADLEY HOME

Mrs. Fay Bradley entertained Monday afternoon at the Bradley home on Clinton street in honor of her small daughter, Barbara Jane, the occasion marking her fourth birthday anniversary. Eight guests were present to enjoy an afternoon of games and the usual birthday lunch. Table decorations were carried out in pink and white as well as four small cakes each surmounted by a pink candle, to mark the number of years of the small hostess.

The Queen Esther Society will hold a conundrum supper at the M. E. church, Wednesday, February 27th.—Adv. 811.

EASTERN STARS GIVE "ROSETIME"

HIGH SCHOOL GYMNASIUM NEXT TUESDAY EVENING.

Local Talent Will Entertain With Clever Musical Comedy of Unusual Brilliance.

Don't fail to see "Rosetime" Tuesday night, February 26th, at the high school auditorium. It combines humor, romance and music into one of the best home talent shows of the year. A talented cast of local men and women will present the play under the auspices of the Order of Eastern Stars.

The script carries the cast through a plot in which a modern young lady enters the motion picture profession, rises to stardom and passes through many experiences. Come and see a movie in the making. The parts of Ma and Pa Perkins are very ably taken by Mrs. Mildred Lamphear and Dr. C. J. Winder. Miss Ethel Mellin as Rose Perkins is a very charming leading lady and George Beeman makes a splendid leading man. Altho the movie director, Oscar North, has to show Percy, the Englishman, Fay Bradley, how to register for the silver sheet, his "Love," "Fear" and "Respect," he needs no help to register pain when the bee stings him. Props, O'Reilly, the property man for the film company, Warren W. Kibler, vies with Percy for laughs as these are real comedy roles. Miss LaRue Hargman is a clever French vaup in the part of Mlle. Deauxville. Bahe Burdette, darling of the screen, is portrayed by Miss Maile Turpin. "Squint," Camera Man, Dr. V. L. Miller, admits Props and me are as dumb as oysters. Mrs. Leona McKinley is a charming French maid while Mrs. E. C. Sterritt and Mrs. Cordelia Kelderhouse do their side-splitting hit as the village gossips.

Rhythm, clever costumes, snappy songs and dances on the part of the sixteen girls and eight boys as follows:

Boys—Lloyd Swartout, Stanley Hammond, John Critchlow, Stanley Cartier, Gerald Roderick, Bill Brown, Bud Gill, Bob Foster.

LOCAL SKATERS BEST IN NORTH

CARRY AWAY HONORS AT PETOSKEY WINTER CARNIVAL

R. W. Shanks of Cadillac, Win. F. Skating Contest With Lee Caldwell, Second.

Ice champions for Northern Michigan were named at Petoskey last Wednesday afternoon when the annual Petoskey festival ice races were held at the city park rink under the direction of Wilson McDonald. Charlevoix flashed a lot of fine skaters, who skated right off with the major share of the regional honors. The fancy skating event went to R. W. Shanks of Cadillac. Second place went to Lee Caldwell and third place to William Adams, Sr., both of Petoskey. Andy Smith of Charlevoix showed a lot of ability, but his skates were not the proper type for this department. With suitable equipment he should make an excellent showing in another year.

Charlevoix won the boys' and girls' relay events handsly. The Charlevoix girls' team was made up of the Misses Cartier, Lamphear, Usher and Marshall. Petoskey won second honors with the Misses Edyvean, Webb, Gilbert and Chichester. On the championship boys' team from Charlevoix were Foster, Marshall, Novak and Livingston. On the Petoskey team which took second honors were Fay, Erforth, Wells and Hooker.

Couple Races. Richard Marshall and George Bergman won the couple skating for men for Charlevoix. William Novak and Robert Foster of the same team were second. Bernice Lamphear and Frances Marshall won for the Charlevoix girls' team, with Jean Webb and Esther Chichester second for Petoskey.

Richard Marshall won the class A men's half mile title. He was with the Charlevoix team. Frank Erforth, Petoskey, was second and R. Upton, Petoskey, third. In the class B division, Charlevoix made a clean sweep with David Livingston, first; Billy Novak, second and Bobby Foster, third. In class C they duplicated with Horace Potter, first; Drew Young, second, and Bobby Livingston, third.

Frances Marshall won the class A title for girls, with Jean Webb, second, and Kathryn Edyvean, third. In class B, Miss Edith Chichester is the champion, with Miss Jane Upton, second, both of Petoskey. For class C, Charlevoix won all three places with Byrce Lamphear, first; Alice Usher, second, and Betty Cartier, third.

Each of the divisions carried the regional title.

MASONS GIVE WELL AT TENED DANCING PARTY

The second of a series of Masonic parties was held in the temple Tuesday evening with a record number of members and guests in attendance. The house committee deserve credit for their originality in decorations as well as their ingenuity in entertaining. Carnival favors were given for some of the numbers and this, with some old-time circle one-steps, broke up all formality. A vote was taken before closing to determine if the committee should continue the dances and was passed without a dissenting murmur.

RECORD ATTENDANCE AT P. T. A. MEETING

Midnet Band and Declamation Contest Were Features.

The announcement that the Midnet Band would play at the P. T. A. meeting last Wednesday evening drew the largest attendance of the year and the little people gave several numbers which were well received. Another attraction was the recitation of three of the orations in the high school declamation contest by Mary Orlovski, Eloise Tillotson and Dorothy Griffin. The opening "sing," led by Mr. Kirby, also was much enjoyed.

At the business session it was voted to give a local talent musical entertainment, the proceeds to be used to complete the victrola payments. It was also voted to buy a new picture for use this year in the grades to promote P. T. A. attendance. The president, Dr. McMillan, stressed the importance of the organization and urged everyone to reserve the second Wednesday of the month for the meetings.

The speaker engaged for the evening having been called out of town, Supt. Otterbein was asked at the last moment to take his place, and gave an interesting talk, the background of which was a personal experience dealing with a problem of delinquency.

Refreshments were served after the program and opportunity given for social intercourse.

CHARLEVOIX FIVE LOSE AT GAYLORD

DROP AN OVER-TIME CONTEST THERE FRIDAY NIGHT.

Traverse City and Harbor Springs Come Here This Week for Important Contests.

In one of the closest games of the season so far, Charlevoix high school basketballers lost to Gaylord on Gaylord's court last Friday evening. In spite of a small court with rows of supporting posts which greatly handicapped team work, the Red and White terrors led their opponents through two periods and forced the contest into an overtime period. The local five was handicapped by the absence of Marshall, regular forward, who is out on account of eye infection.

Strong defensive play by both teams marked the opening quarter which ended with the score 3 to 3. The advantage passed from one team to the other in the next two periods. Charlevoix led 10 to 9 at the half and 13 to 12 at the third intermission. Gaylord scored three points in the final period while Charlevoix made two and the whistle found the count again tied 15 to 15. Gaylord came through with a goal in the overtime period for her winning points. Max Novak scored 9 points for Charlevoix, Bill Novak 5 and Rex Supernaw 1. Schure, Gaylord forward, made 7 points for his team. Fitzpatrick, guard, scored 4.

Charlevoix takes on two of the strongest teams in Northern Michigan this week. Thursday evening they play Traverse City in the local gym and Saturday evening Harbor Springs. Traverse has defeated Petoskey, Manistee, Ludington and Cadillac. They downed Reed City twice for that team's first defeat in years. If Charlevoix can get by with a win they should be on top of the Northern Michigan heap. They have no set up in the Harbor game either, in spite of the fact that they are the favorites.

Petoskey last week in this team and Boyne City just recently dropped a contest to them. A good turn out will help a winning spirit. Be there.

Valentine Party

In honor of St. Valentine, a party was given February 14 by Miss Noreen Moran. The game of "hearts" was played, Miss Mary Lemieux winning the honors for the girls and Maxwell Novak winning honors for the boys. Those present were Madeleine Lemieux, Dorothy Withers, Myrtle O'Neil, Frances Milner, Lola Fessen-den, Mary Lemieux, Edna Brown, Marian Bartlett, Madlyn Yettaw, Fera Crandall, Mary Simmons, Angie Scott, Gerald Roderick, Charles Bieha, "Bud" Gill, Stanley Hammond, Vernon Gimble, Bill Foster, Marcus Smith, Maxwell Novak and Bob Foster. Following cards an Italian dish of "Dago hash" was served and the rest of the evening passed in entertainment and dancing.

PRESS OF DISTRICT LAUD PARM GILBERT

SET FORTH HIS SPLENDID RECORD IN PAST TERM.

Conduct of Duties Beyond Reproach and Should Be Sufficient Reason for Re-election.

From various places throughout the district comes favorable reports on the past record of Parm C. Gilbert of Traverse City, who is seeking nomination for re-election as circuit judge of the 13th judicial circuit at the primary election March 4. From all we can gather the only objections to Judge Gilbert's performance of duties comes from certain groups who are not in sympathy with his stand on the liquor question. To our knowledge, no one has been able to assail his conduct of the office in other respects. His record alone should be sufficient reason for re-election. We take the following article from the Manistee Herald as a criterion of opinion:

"Circuit Judge Parm C. Gilbert of Traverse City, whose first term expires with this year, will have opportunity in two quarters this coming primary election. Hon. J. J. Tweedle, a veteran of the Grand Traverse bar, with a large acquaintance in two of the counties of the judicial circuit—Grand Traverse and Leelanaw; and Fitch R. Williams, well known in both Antrim and Charlevoix counties, in both of which counties he has law offices, will contest his nomination for circuit judge.

"Judge Gilbert has made an enviable record in his first term on the bench, and has received several assignments to preside in other circuits—a recognition that pleases his friends.

"Judge Gilbert has speeded up work in Antrim county's circuit court, and cases no longer drag from term to term unless the judge is convinced there are valid reasons—not excuses—for delay.

"The maintainings of the circuit court is expensive—during a jury term the cost is $100 a day. Judge Gilbert has so apportioned his assessing of costs that the complete expense of the circuit court to Antrim county is paid back by those who are convicted in his court. The heavy expense, it is pointed out, is not assessed on the county tax roll.

"The circuit court can do a great deal, either to help or to hinder the officers of a county who are anxious to curb the making and sale of liquors, and thus protect the young people and the families of the older people. Judge Gilbert has antagonized certain sections of society by his stand on the liquor question and his treatment of liquor law violators, but his friends point out that other sections of society—those who helped to beat out Al Smith and Tammany—will pull a heavy vote for the present circuit judge."

To the Voters of the City of Charlevoix:

I take this opportunity of announcing my candidacy for Mayor at the primary election, March 4, and at the request of many supporters am stating my qualifications to hold the office I am seeking.

I have served two terms as Mayor of my home city and was previously a member of the council; was chairman of three Liberty Loan drives and fuel director during the war. In my church connections I held a stewardship 18 years, was choir leader, teacher and member of building committee. I have filled chairs in Masonic, K. of P. and I. O. O. F. lodges. I was state dentist several years and active in Dental Society work. Was a member of school board for many years and chairman of the building committee of a half million dollar school.

My attitude on city government is entirely democratic and to the best interests of taxpayers. I believe in full cooperation of city governmental and civic bodies and will strive to attain that spirit. I have made no appointment promises, nor will I do so.

In view of my past experience, I feel that I am fully qualified to hold the office, and earnestly solicit your support.

Wm. Walker took a load of beans to Charlevoix Saturday.

J. E. Knudsen and family attended church at Ironton last Sunday.

Mrs. Robert Sherman attended the Ladies' Aid meeting at Ironton Wednesday.

J. Morse went to his home near Central Lake last Friday afternoon to spend the week end with relatives there.

Mr. and Mrs. Kiser entertained Mr. and Mrs. Spidle, Mr. Whalen and Mrs. Thomas and children to a beautiful dinner last Wednesday.

Lance Kemp made a trip to Phelps with a load of cream Saturday. A new store has gone into operation there.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Clark and family of East Jordan, were recent visitors at the home of Mr. Clark's father, Mr. and Mrs. A. Benjamin Clark.

Mr. and Mrs. John Willis and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kiser and family spent Friday visiting at the Spidle home. They report a good time and good dinner.

Mr. Walker had a very painful accident last Friday. While carrying a battery near his barn, he slipped on the ice and fell. A bolt in the battery cut his hand quite badly.

Miss Edna Knudsen and friend, Rose Kerschak of Charlevoix, spent the week end at the Knudsen home, returning Sunday with Mr. King's people of Ironton.

Mrs. N. P. Griffin reports that Will Griffin of Jackson, Mich., Norman Griffin's brother, is laying in the hospital in a serious condition. It is reported he was burned about his face and hands with electricity.

We made a trip Sunday to the Mountain school district via the Foot-and-Walker line. The scenery was fine, but the walking was quite the reverse. There didn't happen to be any Sunday school, however.

The Pentecostal Sunday school held their meeting at Mrs. Wilbur Spidle's home. There were twenty present and all enjoyed the day very much. Next Sunday they will all meet at the home of Mrs. Marion Best.

Rev. Mattson of Charlevoix, delivered a fine sermon at Ironton Sunday. On his way over his car took a nose-dive into a big snow drift and Mr. McClanathan had to pull him out of his trouble. Mr. King's car also tried the same trick.

Mr. Mellencamp made the school a pleasant visit last week. He gave the boys encouragement, and also the girls, in their work. Archie and Wilson Ward of Ironton are not doing Club work, but are doing some of the very best scroll-saw work on their own hook. Archie also has some fine work on note books. He received a $5 prize last year. The other schools will have to hustle some to beat Archie's work. His history of Eveline township is something wonderful. He ought to make a pretty good reporter if he puts forth as big an effort in that line as he did in collecting data on his history of Eveline township.

We were agreeably surprised to meet at Ironton, Sunday, Mrs. Minnie Brown and Mrs. Florence King, the former a resident of Atwood several years ago, and the latter a resident of North Milton, near Elk Rapids, and a former pupil of Alva G. Morse of Central Lake. The picture of his school, together with pictures of his brother's schools will be exhibited at Walker school Township Day. SICK TEN YEARS;
KONJOLA BRINGS
SPEEDY RELIEF

Just Beginning to Enjoy Life
Again Says Lady Made
Well by New Medicine.

MRS. L. PLUMPTRE.

What astonishing victories Konjola, the new medicine, achieves over those obstinate cases that have defied and resisted every other medicine and treatment tried. Thousands of cases of such triumphs might be cited, but the one of Mrs. L. Plumptre, 1111 Forest Avenue, Ann Arbor, is typical of the results that this master medicine brings.

"For more than ten years I was sick with stomach, liver and kidney troubles," Mrs. Plumptre writes, "and in that time I found absolutely no relief until I tried this splendid new Konjola. My food did not digest; I had gas pains, heart pressure, dizzy spells, headaches, bilious attacks and black specks danced before my eyes. The kidney condition got me up frequently at night, and the loss of proper nourishment and sleep caused my general health to fail rapidly. But Konjola changed all this. When the first bottle gave me fine results I could scarcely realize that my long search for health had been rewarded. Day by day I grew better, and as my organs were restored to normal health all my pains passed away. I feel just wonderful, and to Konjola goes all the credit. I shall never cease to marvel at what Konjola did in my desperate case."

Konjola is sold in Charlevoix at F. J. Fessenden's drug store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

Centennial will also have moments from those places on exhibition. Some manual training work of William Myers, who out-distanced all competitors of the state in that art last year will also be shown. Star, Three Bells, Mountain and Ironton schools have been invited to come to Walker school Township Day. This is in the famous Eveline orchard neighborhood, and near the renowned Sears Fox farm. Side trips can be made to these places. Sufficient number of guides in uniform will be provided after the program to show visitors these places; Bernard Best, who is somewhat of a talker, will be at the head of the information bureau and will answer all questions and ask you a whole lot more. A map of the grounds can be purchased of Dale Kiser at a nominal price. Luncheon will be served a la help-yourself-plan. A prominent township officer has been asked to give an address, and of course Commissioner Palmer will bring along "Dat Leetle Kat," or some other animal just as good and everybody will be expected to have a good time.

BARNARD

King winter is still reigning. Frank Brock lost a good horse on Saturday.

Michael Garber butchered a fine lot of "porkers" on Monday.

Miss Chew and her pupils celebrated Valentine's day with a party. The mothers were invited and all had a fine time and enjoyed the refreshments.

The regular meeting of the Ladies' Aid was held last Wednesday with Mrs. Howard Gornell. A fine crowd of members and visitors were present. The next meeting will be held with Mrs. Wm. Burns.

The Ladies' Aid will give a Colonial party and supper to celebrate Washington's birthday on Friday evening at the church. Wear your wig and a hoop skirt or a swallowtail coat and be in style.

Our Beaver Island correspondent has made it known that whatever items are sent for publication will be the truth, and says that is more than can be said of some outside reporters judging from the stories recently published. Our correspondent says in part: "Believe me, we get pretty sore when our friends and relatives from the mainland write and ask us if we have not enough to eat here. I wish I could take some of those who write such things to our cellars and also invite them to a 'hurry up' dinner such as the five men had who came here on the 5th by aeroplane. They were taken to the home of Gus Mielke and served with dinner. I am sure by their happy look they had plenty. They could have been served at any other home on the island and have gone away well satisfied that we need no supplies from the mainland."

FLASH
THE LEAD DOGBy
George Marsh

George Marsh.

North and eastward of James and Hudson bays lies a region practically unexplored and for the most part thoroughly unexplored. The novelist, George Marsh, has familiarized himself with this wilderness and made it the scene of a series of stories. There is a land of mystery to the outside world, of great attraction to certain types of hardy adventurers and of ever present dangers to the few courageous people who have chosen it for a habitat. Exploration of the territory is treacherous even in the summer months, while the blizzards, deep snows and intense cold present terrifying conditions at other seasons.

Here the native dog, developed in the highest degree of strength and utilization of instinct and intelligence, becomes man's chief reliance. These animals are trained not only to draw loads, but to scent and track game, and also by the exercise of inherent senses, to give warning of lurking foes and other dangers. All of these dogs have the wolf strain in varying degrees, but differ considerably in type according to the region from which they come. One of the most highly regarded breeds is the Ungava dog, which comes from the central and western portions of the Labrador peninsula.

This story is a splendid record in romantic vein of the adventures of two northern youths in an unexplored region and of the heroic part played by their Ungava puppy, Flash. This animal, too young at the beginning of the expedition for a sled dog, is shown in his development of strength and knowledge until he attains the position of lead dog and becomes the mainstay of the team and the salvation of his human companions.

CHAPTER I

What the Goose Hunters Saw

"What's that, Gaspard, off shore there?"

The black eyes of Gaspard Leroux shifted from the incoming Brock of James bay, beyond the marshes where the boys lay in a "hide."

"Schooner, I think," muttered the half-breed, watching the distant object for a space through eyes narrowed to slits.

"What in thunder's a schooner doing on its coast in September?" demanded Brock McAlin. "Something queer here!"

"Ah-hah! Eet ves queer."

"Must be free traders! They can't get through Hudson's straits now; they've got to winter on the bay. I wis' my father knew about this," retorted the white boy, "but 't's too late to turn 'ck now."

"Eef we going to trap de Yellow-Leg heads after dis long saow we got uo tum to lose."

"Right you are, old partner! But I'd like to know what those people are doing on this coast. You don't suppose we'll run into them on the Yellow-Leg?"

The start face of Gaspard Leroux went darker. The small eyes glittered as he said: "My fader die on de Yellow-Leg! I dese peop' hunt dat countree, fast speeng, dey—" lashed a toboggan sled, they started for the mouth of the unknown and mysterious Yellow-Leg, forty miles up the coast. Following along shore, falls up, and in full cry, as they revealed in their freedom after days of tethered idleness, the dogs drove frightened flocks of shore-birds, duck and geese into the air, as they traveled.

"But that was two hundred miles inland," Gaspard objected Brock. "Those people would not leave the coast."

"You're a big, able lad, Brock, for your age," Angus McAlin, factor of Hungry House on the Starving river, had replied in July to the pleading of his son to be allowed to winter on the Yellow-Leg with Gaspard, "but you're too young to trap strange country."

Somewhere far to the north, in the unexplored lake country of the interior, from which flowed the great Whiskey and the Caribou, the Yellow-Leg was thought to have its sources. But no Indian trading at Hungry House had ever ascended the river.

from the bay and of the hunters who whined in the Starving river country but one had the hardihood to cross the divide and enter the unknown and, therefore, mysterious land to the north—and he had not returned. That man was Pierre Leroux, father of Gaspard.

With his dog team he had started on the March, intent to explore the endless valleys beyond the last hills for signs of fur; and until the trails went soft in the April thaws Gaspard and his brother had followed his father's trap-lines, confident of his safe return. But when the days of sled travel had passed, they knew that somewhere beyond the grim hills to the north, tragedy had overtaken the best bushman and hunter on the Starving—that a fate, unimaginable, mysterious, had stricken the veteran who would not starve where caribou mated the muskies.

"But Pierre was alone," objected Brock. "That was the trouble, I believe, the got sick or hurt, and couldn't hunt."

"But don't forget, lad, that one winter, twenty years ago, the rabbit plague and the disappearance of the caribou gave this river its name. Many of the Cree starved out, so the Canadian men sent to build this post the next summer called it Hungry House. You might get caught in a northern-ghost, on your trap-lines—"

"And get lost, you think?" broke in Brock, the blood showing in his brown face, as his frank eyes met his father's doubtful look.

"Yes, and get lost—snowed up in a big blow, far from your camp, without grub," answered Angus McAlin, dryly. "Many a good man, older, stouter and wiser than you, my lad, has starved out after a big snow-out."

For a space Brock frowned down at his muskies, then his pride spurred him to answer. "Of course, I've got plenty to learn from Gaspard. He's part Cree and it's uncanny all he knows about the bush. He'd be boss on this trip, and we're like brothers. It's time, too, I made something for myself, father."

Slowly the grey eyes of the elder McAlin softened as his son begged for the chance to risk his life in the hinterlands of the Yellow-Leg. At last he said:

"I promise to take the dogs and make for the coast and home when your grub gets low. Instead of trying to shtik it out I'll consent."

"Good old dad!" Brock impulsively wrung his father's hand.

So it was that early September found the two boys on their way to the wilderness of the Yellow-Leg.

CHAPTER II

On the Yellow-Leg Trail

Through the early afternoon the deeply loaded canoe followed the flat coast. From the stern Gaspard, the better canoeist, driving his narrow blade with the straight-armed lunge of the Cree, watched with frowning eyes the increasing blackness of the northern horizon.

The sun was hanging over the muskies behind the spruce beyond the marshes when Gaspard glanced into the north and shook his head.

"We better find camp ground before de tide come us," he warned.

"We run up some creek."

"You're right," Brock replied. "We can't run the chance of getting the floor wet."

For an hour the paddles of the canoeists churned the gray bay water as they reconnoitered the flats ahead for a hospitable creek mouth and which they could run for shelter from the flow which threatened them at the turn of the tide.

"Look's as if we had a night in the boat ahead of us," said Brock, as the stern-man sat down and silently took up his paddling again.

"If she blow hard when de tide come in, de boat will fill," was the gloomy comment of the other.

On they traveled, searching for a way in to a dry camp ground on the marshes, but in vain. Then, as the tide turned, the wind rose, and the bronzed faces of the canoeists set grim with the knowledge that the filling of their boat on the flats meant the abandonment of their winter on the Yellow-Leg. For without flour they dared not enter the unknown country.

Knelling in the bow, teeth clamped, the surliness of his Scotch ancestry tugging at thought of failure, Brock drove his paddle with all the splendid power of his muscular arms and back. From the stern the shrewd Gaspard—taking them on the quarter—used the nose of the side boat through the short scows. But loathed as they were, the stern-man realized that the rising wind would soon tick up a sea in which the heavily loaded canoe could not live. It was a matter of minutes. His decision was quickly made.

"Look out!" he cried, "we turn inshore!" And burying his paddle, with the prompt aid of Brock he swung the bow.

Blindly they drove the boat in through the thickening dusk. As they shot into the white shoals they dropped paddles, seized their setting poles and pushed desperately on through the low-breaking flood tide. Suddenly the canoe stopped with a jolt, throwing the poles forward to their knees. A following wave lifted and swung the stern ashore. The next would wash over the boat, grounded broadside on, tilting her. The floor!

Leaping into the water, desperate with the fear of the loss of the precious fur, with a great heave Brock eased the bow off the tummock beneath it, and while Gaspard pushed at the stern, banded the lightened boat in over the flats where she groined beyond the break of the waves.

"They're dry as a bone!" shouted Brock, reaching under the heavy canvas to the flour bags. "Whew! That was a close call!"

"Good thing de beach is flat here," cried Gaspard. "I tho't she fill for sure."

"The tide's not full yet, is it?"

"No, we got to float de canoe in, as de tide rises. You look out for de boat and I go back to high ground and build a fire."

So, with the stern lashed to a pole to keep the boat from swinging, Brock curled up in the canoe to wait for the tide to float her, while Gaspard went inland with kettle and frying pan, for the hours of old since noon had left them desperately hungry.

It was not long before Brock saw a light flicker back on the marsh. His empty stomach churned for the cooking. Then for a space, his tired body conquered him and he dozed, to be awakened by the swinging of the canoe, aloft, again, in the tide.

Tumbling out in his water-tight sod-skin boots Brock gulped the craft through the shallows until she again grounded, and, lashing the boat to a setting pole, he started for the fire where he awaited him. As he crossed the marsh to the alder thicket which served as a partial windbreak for the fire, a chorus of yelps challenged his approach.

"Say, I'm half starved, cook!" cried the hungry youth as he fought off the caresses of the welcoming dogs. "How about a little blie?"

Gaspard smiled as he turned the sputtering goose in the pan with his skimming knife. "You lucky you not half frozen. You stake de boat when you leave her?"

"You bet. But she's far in now where there's no wash. I'll go back when I've filled this hollow, and bring her in as the tide rises."

So dogs and men ate their supper by the little fire of driftwood while the wind rocked the alders above them. After midnight, when the tide had turned, they brought their tent and blankets in from the canoe and rolled up for needed rest after the hard day.

By daylight, a kettle of goose was already bubbling over the fire, for the wind had cleared the weather and a them. Again, with the dogs following the shore, the canoe headed up the coast.

"Tonight we camp at de Big Owl—tomorrow de Yellow-Leg," said Gaspard, settling into a delicious stroke.

"Right! Tomorrow the Yellow-Leg!" And the paddles churned the gray bay water as the boat sped up the low coast.

Late in the afternoon, the lean face of Gaspard widened in a grin as he searched the coast to the north.

"Dere she is, de Big Owl," he announced with satisfaction. "We muk' good tam today, eh, Brock?"

The following noon the voyagers reached the mouth of the Yellow-Leg, which, like all west coast rivers, debouches into the bay through a delta.

"The Yellow-Leg, at last!" cried Brock, standing in the canoe, hands shielding eyes.

"Big river!" replied Gaspard, "she got I'es mouth."

"By golly, there's that schooner again!" Brock pointed into the north. Gaspard's black eyes studied the dark object on the water, far up the coast. "What she hang off dis river for?" he muttered.

"I'd sure like to run on up the coast and have a look at them," said Brock.

Fuel system of the new Ford
designed for reliability and long service

THE practical value of Ford simplicity of design is especially apparent in the fuel system.

The gasoline tank is built integral with the cowl and is unusually sturdy because it is made of heavy sheet steel, tinned to prevent rust or corrosion. An additional factor of strength is the fact that it is composed of only two pieces, instead of three or four, and is electrically welded—not soldered.

Because of the location of the tank, the entire flow of gasoline is an even, natural flow—following the natural law of gravity. This is the simplest, and most direct way of supplying gasoline to the carburetor without variations in pressure. The gasoline feed pipe of the new Ford is only 18 inches long and is easily accessible all the way.

The gasoline passes from the tank to the carburetor through a filter or sediment bulb mounted on the steel dash which separates the gasoline tank from the engine.

The carburetor is specially designed and has been built to deliver many thousands of miles of good service.

Since all adjustments are fixed except the needle valve and idler, there is practically nothing to get out of order.

The choke rod on the dash acts as a primer and also as a regulator of your gasoline mixture. The new hot spot manifold insures complete vaporization of the gasoline before it enters the combustion chamber of the engine.

As a matter of fact, the fuel system of the new Ford is so simple in design and so carefully made that it requires very little service attention.

The filter or sediment bulb should be cleaned at regular intervals and the carburetor screen removed and washed in gasoline. Occasionally the drain plug at the bottom of the carburetor should be removed and the carburetor drained for a few seconds.

Have your Ford dealer look after these important little details for you when you have the car oiled and greased. A thorough, periodic check-up costs little, but it has a great deal to do with long life and continuously good performance.

Biology Notes

The deer mouse held a captive by the biology class is making himself quite at home in his cage. He is well cared for, including a soft bed of moss and a full cupboard of cheese. This specimen is not the common house pest, but one of the field species which is considered beneficial. He is easily tamed by his light fawn colored coat trimmed with ivory white.

Several robins have been reported seen in Charlevoix by the biology class. Our bird record sheet shows the robins came March 23. All indications are for an early spring this year.

Band Report

The school band played at the Charlevoix Polar Bear-Cadillac Y. game last Thursday. The beginners who are now a part of the regular band played and far from disgraced the reputation of the band.

It has been decided to get red and white uniforms for the boys and they are well pleased. Mr. Otterbein, the band boys and their parents gave much thought on this subject, so that they now believe that they have what they want.

The band will first play in their new uniforms at the basketball tournament on Mar. 7, 8 and 9, and the boys can already picture themselves in their new outfits.

Declaration Contest Successful

The high school was entertained last Tuesday by the freshmen and sophomores who gave declarations. When they had all been given, the judges, Miss Thomas, Mr. Coleman and Mr. Otterbein chose the four best and these four will take part in the contest given by the county.

Mary Margaret Orlowski took first place. Her declaration was entitled "A Message to Garcia." This declaration is the story of a man, who, when asked to locate a general in the Philippines, did so without asking unnecessary questions. This declaration held a good moral for everyone.

"The Unknown Soldier," given by Eloise Tilton, took the second place. This deals with the question of "world peace," telling the stories of three unknown soldiers who died to "make the world safe for democracy."

The story of "Beethoven's Moonlight Sonata" was given by Lola Fessenden. This story tells how Beethoven first played his beautiful "Sonata" in a small cottage for the pleasure of a girl who was blind and loved music.

The story of a soldier left on a battlefield to die, but with the promise of life if he could hold on until the next night at sundown, was given by Dorothy Griffin.

These declarations were chosen as the four best, but a great deal of credit is also due to Leo Yettaw, Kathleen McCall, George Bergman, Robert McCall, Olive Radle, Marian Smith and Angie Scott. In fact the declarations were all very well given and were enjoyed greatly by the audience.

In a few weeks orations are to be given by the juniors and seniors.

There is to be a county oratorical contest and the four students who give the best orations will participate in the county contest.

English Department

The English II classes are studying "As You Like It," one of Shakespeare's dramas. We find it very interesting and also note that there are many witty sayings in this play which are often quoted by the people of today. Take for example the saying:

"All the world's a stage, And all the men and women merely players."

They have their exits and their entrances, And one man in his time plays many parts."

We are learning these quotations as we read the drama.

Commercial Department

The students with the highest speed among the beginners this week are: Angie Scott, 39 words a minute; Annie Tuhy 38, Arylene Supernaw 31, Wilma See 31 and Eleanor Tu-math 30.

Among the second year students are: Doris Trimble 55, Freda O'Neill 53, Wilma Wells 52, Robert Stafford 51, Valera Ripley 51.

The bookkeeping sets are being completed and no one has gone bankrupt yet, although there are some doubtful cases. All books are due Friday and the electric light bills will probably rise considerably.

General News

Mr. Coleman was injured while coaching the high school boys in basketball last Friday during the 4th period. Mr. Coleman has the sympathy of the high school students and faculty.

Coach Kipke is going with the Polar Bears on their tour to the southern part of the state.

Bill: "Say, did you know I had an Italian wench?"
Dick: "No, why?"
Bill: "Every time I look at it I see a Dago (day-go)."

Junior High School News

The 8th grade had their annual sleigh ride and Valentine box Friday, February 15th. We had three sleighs and all enjoyed themselves. After the sleigh ride we went to the school house and had lunch, which tasted very good, and then gave out the valentines. The chaperons were Mrs. Stelter, Miss Mellin, Miss Thomas, Mr. Bingham and Mr. Alexander.

The 7th grade had their sleigh ride and Valentine box Saturday, February 16th. We had three sleighs, but did not go as far as we expected on account of the weather. After the sleigh ride we went up to the school room and had lunch and gave out the valentines. All enjoyed themselves. The chaperons were Miss Struthers, Mr. Bingham and Mr. Alexander.

County Normal Notes

The training room pupils, in honor of St. Valentine's birthday, invited the normal teachers into their rooms for a treat. They had a lovely valentine box, elaborately decorated, and which, when opened, contained a valentine for everyone present.

Miss Keller entertained the normal teachers by a very interesting talk.

She told us of her experience in visiting the Western United States. She saw many things that we do not have in our state. She described her trip so well that we felt as though we had taken the trip ourselves.

The County Normal teachers, including Mrs. Dick and Miss Bigge, were entertained by Miss Bogart and Miss Smith, at former's home. The party was given on Valentine's day. Dainty refreshments were served. A good time was reported by all.

The county normal teachers are all in school again. Many have been absent on account of sickness. The class has a new teacher for a few weeks. Mr. Palmer is teaching school law.

The County Normal extension library now boasts of 75 volumes of elementary supplementary reading material, also three years' numbers of the National Geographic magazine. Within the last two weeks there have been requests from rural teachers for 22 readers.

Sunday service, 10:45 a. m.

Subject, "Mind."

Wednesday evening service, 7:45 p. m. First Wednesday in the month only.

"Soul" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches on Sunday, February 17.

Among the citations which come from the Bible: "And I will set my tabernacle among you; and my soul shall not abhor you. And I will walk among you, and will be your God, and ye shall be my people" (Lev. 26:11-12).

The lesson-sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Soul must be incorporeal to be Spirit, for Spirit is not finite. Only by losing the false sense of Soul can we gain the eternal unfolding of Life as immortality brought to light" (p. 335).

STATE NEWSPAPERS BACK WILL R. BERKEY

Candidate for Seat in Department of Agriculture at Convention.

The Republican State Convention which will be held in Lansing, February 20, is of more than usual importance to newspaper men all over the state this year due to the candidacy of William R. Berkey of Cassopolis, for a seat in the State Department of Agriculture, to succeed Mr. Goudy, who refuses to be a candidate again.

The candidacy of Mr. Berkey for this honor was started at Lansing two weeks ago by the Michigan Press Association. The Press Association has not sponsored a candidate for a state office in years, but they feel that there is a real reason to do so this year.

Mr. Berkey is the publisher of the paper at Cassopolis. He has lived there all his life, beginning his newspaper work in the office he now owns. He was born in that vicinity on a farm, and still operates it on an efficient, scientific basis, and it is a successful venture.

Mr. Berkey is sincere, conscientious and honest. He has an unusual grasp on the problems of the farmer. He knows their needs, perhaps as well as any other man who could seek the office.

There is no question but that the seat in the state department will be filled from that locality, and the people from that locality are jubilant over the prospects of Mr. Berkey filling the position, for they know him, and his ability to work for the good of the farmers of the state.

Mr. Berkey is a past president of the Michigan Press Association, and it was during the tenure of his office that members of the association learned of his interest in agriculture and his constant efforts toward bettering farming interests.

More than 200 newspapers of the state are using their influence to get the backing of the convention for Mr. Berkey because he will be a credit to the department.

WESTERN UNION OPENS NEW CABLE

Link Connecting Newfoundland and Azores of Great Importance.

Simultaneously with the announcement that the newest Western Union Trans-Atlantic cable, between Newfoundland and the Azores, has been opened for commercial traffic, effective February 5th, Newcomb Carlton, president of the Western Union Telegraph company, revealed that Western Union cable traffic increased approximately 11 per cent in volume in 1928, as compared with 1927.

This new cable, which provides an important telegraph link between American and Germany, Spain, Italy, and Africa, was laid last September at a cost of nearly $2,000,000 for the equipment. Aside from its commercial significance, it represents a new departure in cable construction. It will, when operating to capacity, be equivalent of several of the old type cables. It will be the fastest duplexed cable in existence, having a capacity of four simultaneous messages in each direction—eight simultaneous messages in all.

UNDER THE DOME AT THE STATE CAPITOL.

(Week of February 11.)
The most easily discernable trend in the Michigan legislature for the week just past, is the branch between ultra-dry and the forces identified with the administration. Forces that have developed over the question of legislation pertaining to the penalties for violations of the state liquor law, as specified by the criminal code, have aligned themselves in such fashion that normal dries find themselves in sympathy with wets.

Most spectacular event in the official records of the legislature, was the near fist fight between Sen. Cass J. Jankowski of Detroit, and R. N. Holsapple, superintendent of the Michigan Anti-Saloon League, which took place just before the session Thursday afternoon.

Angered because of the mere presence of the dry leader, whom he dislikes personally, Senator Jankowski, a wet, rose from his chair when Holsapple attempted to question him for a legislative act a few days before. Jankowski, a man of slight proportions, announced his intention of throwing the 250 pound Holsapple "off the floor." Sergeants at arms rushed to the scene, and the dry leader walked away later to take up his position in the galleries.

The amendments to the criminal code, which would, in effect, though not directly, prevent a fourth liquor offense from resulting in a life sentence, were introduced in a bill in the house, Wednesday by Rep. George C. Watson of Capac. This measure, and one other bill in the senate, relating also indirectly to the wet-dry question, have caused a split in legislative ranks that is daily becoming more pronounced.

The senate bill came from the desk of Senator Jankowski. It would enlarge the powers of the attorney general, and allow that official to issue criminal warrants in any case when the prosecuting attorney fails to prosecute for any reason.

Religious bickerings were added to the inflammable liquor question when a bill was offered in the house from the desk of Rep. A. H. Harnley of Saginaw, which would provide that the superintendent of public instruction could specify what sections of the Bible might be read in public schools. The prime motive of the bill is to allow the reading of the Bible, but the section that attracted attention was that relating to the powers of the superintendent of public instruction.

Charles W. Haight of Lansing promptly attacked the measure with the contention that religious animosity would result from the granting of any such powers to a state official. Representative Harnley is a Baptist minister.

The old time battle between chiropractors and all other kinds of doctors, broke out in both house and the senate last week, when mutually opposed bills were introduced. One favored chiropractors; while the other would virtually put them out of business.

Sen. Albert J. Engel of Lake City, sponsored a bill which would specify higher scholastic standards for doctors, than many chiropractors could meet. The requirements would apply to all kinds of healers save "those who heal by faith" and those whose educational requirements are set by separate state boards.

From the House end was set forth a bill which would establish a separate state examining board for chiropractors, which would mean that the members, being chiropractors, could set up their own standards.

A move for safety on the highways of the state aimed at the reduction of the number of accidents, is contained in a bill introduced in the senate by Sen. Charles W. Richardson of Marquette. This measure would prohibit the firing, or carrying, loaded, of any firearm, within 150 rods of any roadway. A bill in the house with similar intent, specifies 150 feet as the minimum distance. Property owners would be exempted while they were killing predatory animals and birds on their own ground, however.

The biennial appropriation of $200,000 for the purpose of advertising the outdoor advantages of Michigan, to the nation, is provided in a bill sent into the senate. The state will pay 50 per cent of the advertising bills of several tourist and resort organizations.

Danger to the people from the more than 8,000 estimated mentally deranged men and women who are at large in Michigan today, was sensed by Sen. Seymour H. Person of Lansing, when he introduced his bill empowering the state to build a new state hospital for the mentally diseased, on a site west of Lansing. The measure is a companion to the one by which the state hospital at Pontiac would be sold, so that the institution might be replaced by one near Detroit, on less valuable land.

Rumblings in the house and senate were aroused earlier in the week when Rep. Charles J. Deland, former secretary of state, introduced a resolution calling for a legislative inquiry into the payments by the secretary of state, John Haggerty, for auditing services in that department. Deland charged that Haggerty paid out about $90,000 to a Detroit auditing firm for services which were "unnecessary." The resolution also charged that two agents of the secretary of state, one of them being Sen. Geo. J. Kolowich of Detroit, were paid excessively for their services in dispensing automobile licenses in Wayne county. The two agents were paid $10,000 for short periods, the resolution alleges.

Two motor vehicle acts made their appearance last week, each bill being framed with a view to litigation following accidents. One would provide that a guest in a motor car could not sue the owner or driver of the car in case the passenger were injured, save on grounds of willful neglect or gross negligence. The other measure would simplify serving of a process on any non-resident driver who was involved in an accident while driving in Michigan.

(Week of February 18)
That the state administration is going to ride rough-shod over the wishes and mandates of the Michigan Anti-Saloon League, was beginning to be apparent, when, on Thursday of last week, the criminal code amendments which would prevent life sentences for four violations of the state's liquor laws were reported out, favorably, by the judiciary committee, in the house of representatives.

The measure, introduced by Rep. George Watson of Capac, would make fourth offenders against liquor laws liable to a term of from 7 1/2 to 15 years, instead of life. This term would apply if the fourth offense were a liquor violation, regardless of the first three felonies.

Gov. Fred. W. Green has never stated that his avowed object in proposing amendments to the code was for the purpose of lightening the penalties for liquor law violations. He did say, however, that he was determined to remove provisions of the act which have been attracting criticism from the public and the press, which acts to the detriment of the entire criminal code, especially the habitual criminal phase of it.

Drunk hunters, who are a menace to the woods and vacation spots of Michigan, will feel the hand of the law on their unsteady shoulders, if the house passes a measure which the senate has passed. Senator Ernest T. Conlon of Grand Rapids, is the author of the bill, which would set a maximum penalty of $100 fine and 90 days in jail for the misdemeanor or carrying or discharging, any firearm.

Changes in the county school system are contemplated in a bill in the house from Rep. W. B. Snow of Kalamazoo. The measure, introduced Wednesday, would provide for the election of county boards of education. These boards would appoint county superintendents of schools, in the manner now observed in cities. The present laws are such that county school commissioners are elected. The ridding of the county school system of politics is the motive behind the measure.

Two measures from the desk of Sen. Leon F. Miner of Owosso, a new corner in the legislature, are designed for the specific protection of farmers threatened with forced sale of their home and personal possessions. The Miner measure would raise the exemption of property values, from forced sale, from the present limit of $1,500, to $3,000 in the case of homesteads, and the present limit for personal goods and implements, from $250 to $500.

These measures were on the verge of passage by the senate late last week. They will be voted upon early this present week. The provision pertaining to the homestead exemption requires an amendment to the constitution, while the personal property exemption measure would be in effect merely by enactment of the bill by the legislature. Senator Miner explained in the senate that the depreciable value of the dollar since the original enactment of these exemption provisions is his justification for seeking the increase of the exemptions.

Another annual election that would be avoided, to be supplanted by appointment of elective boards, is proposed by a joint resolution which was introduced in the senate by Sen. James A. Skinner of Cedar Springs. This resolution would call for approval by the voters an amendment to the state constitution so that the township boards of supervisors would appoint township highway commissioners, which official is now elected annually, and, it is contended, replaced before he has had the opportunity to acquaint himself with the intricacies of his job.

The needs of the state of Michigan for the rebuilding and expansion of state institutional building has led to the introduction of two highly important tax measures, one in the house and the other in the senate. Speaker Fred R. Ming of Cheboygan, had his amendment tax measure introduced in the house by Rep. A. H. Harnley of Saginaw.

The Ming bill would impose a tax on all amusement admissions in excess of ten cents at the rate of five cents for each dollar or fraction. Thus, if the admission to a moving picture show is 35 or 50 cents, the Ming tax would add five cents to this admission price.

Speaker Ming's bill enjoyed a lightning trip since its introduction on Feb. 11. It was reported out of the committee on taxation on the 12th, printed on the 13th and considered by the house, on general orders, on the 14th.

Sen. Arthur E. Wood of Detroit, is the author of a joint resolution in the senate by which the state would be empowered to float a bond issue of $24,000,000 for the financing of the state institutional building program. The resolution would call for a constitutional amendment, if it is approved by the legislature.

The bond issue would be retired, under the plans advanced by the Detroit solon, by diversion of $2,000,000 annually from the corporation levy which now amounts to about $7,000,000.

Radical changes in the issuance of motor licenses will result if the legislature approves a bill introduced by Sen. Chester M. Howell of Saginaw. The commissioner of public safety would be in charge of the machinery by which these licenses are issued. There would be a mental as well as a physical examination for all applicants. Machinery for the cancellation of licenses now in effect is included in the bill. Licenses would be renewable every three years under the Howell measure, so that stricter control would be had over those who drive automobiles in Michigan. The examinations would have to be passed each time the application is renewed. Among the provisions, would be that requiring the applicant to read English well enough to understand highway warning and direction signs. Parents would be responsible for any property or personal damage incurred by minors driving cars.

Use of dangerous fireworks, including firecrackers, skyrockets and Roman candles would be banned except at regularly authorized and supervised exhibitions under the provisions of the bill which was passed by the House. The measure now goes to the senate.

Senate and judiciary committee set for a public hearing on the proposed draft penalty, as embodied in three bills now before that committee. The hearings will be in the afternoon and evening, and will allow anyone who wants to talk on this subject to do so.

Public hearing in the House, on the subject of inland fishing and hunting and general conservation legislation as proposed in pending bills, was resultant in little more than the unburdening by many people of their personal opinions regarding these matters.

Sen. Tony Achard of Detroit, is the author of a bill introduced Thursday afternoon which would authorize the sale of the state fair grounds near Detroit from which purchase price $2,000,000 would be set aside for the development of county agricultural fairs elsewhere in the state. The House likewise received a measure which would authorize levying of a mill tax in counties for carrying on county fairs.

Charlevoix County Wins High Honors at State Potato Show.

The last pilgrimage of Charlevoix county's fine exhibit of potatoes to the Michigan State Potato show, held last week in connection with Farmers' week at the Michigan State College, brought home everlasting fame. When the smoke of battle had lifted, our skilled and efficient potato growers had won top-notch honors in competition with the winners of the various district shows held throughout the state. Thus again Northern Michigan's reputation in quality production of seed potatoes was broadcast from one end of the state to the other, and the fame of Charlevoix, Otsego and Cheboygan counties received added impetus.

Among the heavy winners from Charlevoix county the names of Joe Leu, East Jordan, and Chas. Kotesky, Horton Bay, stood out very prominently. In the open class, Joe Leu won 2nd place with his peak of Russet Rural; Chas. Kotesky captured 3rd place, and A. B. Todd, Boyne City, took 5th.

W. H. Henley, Charlevoix, and Lee Sneathen, Charlevoix, won awards of merit. Thus we won over half the total money offered in this division.

In the certified seed hushel class, Russet Rural, Chas. Kotesky won 3rd place and Harry Behling, Boyne City, came in for an award of merit.

any other variety, Lee Sneathen won the blue ribbon.

In the quality exhibit, consisting of ten individual peak samples, Charlevoix won 2nd place, losing only to Otsego county, our next neighbors.

Now the curtain has been drawn on last year's array of high quality seed potatoes and already still higher aims are visioned for this year's crop of certified seed.

However, let us briefly summarize the results of our participation in potato shows before the famed potatoes are eagerly consumed by hungry individuals.

W. H. Henley won 3rd in individual peak in beginners class at Gaylord, as well as 7th in open class, best peak in county, and award of merit in hushel class. At the Kalamazoo show he won 1st in the hushel class.

Lee Sneathen won 1st at Gaylord in hushel class, Irish Cobbler; 3rd in peak, 4th in hushel class, Russet Rural, and award of merit in peak. Repeated winning 3rd on hushel, Russet Rural, at Kalamazoo show. Again at state show he won 1st on Irish Cobbler, hushel size and award of merit on peak Russet Rural.

Harry Behling won 1st on Russet Rural hushel at Gaylord, award of

WANT TO ENTER COAST GUARDS?

GOVERNMENT MAKES FINE OFFER TO YOUNG MEN

Three Years' Training Course and Ensign Commission Open—Exams at Sault Ste. Marie

Believing there might be some young men in this community desirous of completing their education at government expense and subsequently receive a commission in the United States coast guard service, Congressman Fraak P. Bohn of the 11th congressional district of which Charlevoix county is a part, has asked us to publish the following communication, which in itself is explanatory:

"The United States coast guard will hold a competitive examination for appointment of cadets June 26 to 28, 1929.

An exceptional opportunity is offered young men of the right caliber to complete their education at government expense and to become commissioned officers in the United States coast guard, one of the military services of the United States afloat and ashore.

The age limits for appointment of cadets are 18 to 22 years. An applicant who has passed his twenty-second birthday is ineligible for appointment.

Cadets are trained and educated at the coast guard academy, New London, Conn., and each summer are taken on an extended practice cruise. Cadets receive the same pay and allowances as midshipmen in the navy ($780 per annum and one ration per day—80 cents).

Upon graduation, after three years at the academy, a cadet is eligible to be commissioned an Ensign. Commissioned officers in the coast guard rank with officers in the army, navy, and marine corps, and receive corresponding pay and allowances, grade for grade.

Educational examination for cadets precedes the physical and takes two days. Applicants for cadetship of the required moral character who present satisfactory certificates that they have completed the equivalent of a four year high school course and have received fourteen credits in subjects prescribed by coast guard headquarters are required to take a written examination in mathematics, (algebra and geometry), history and English. A high school graduate should be able to pass the examination.

The examination is strictly competitive and is open to young men who possess the qualifications with respect to age, education and character. Examinations will be held at such places throughout the United States where it is found practicable to have examining boards and the number of candidates warrant.

The successful candidates who are tendered appointments will be ordered to report to the superintendent of the coast guard academy on or about September 1, 1929. They will be allowed five cents per mile to cover travel expenses from the place of appointment to the academy. Upon arrival at the academy a cadet will be required to deposit the sum of $200 to be applied to the purchase of necessary uniforms and equipment. Pay and allowances received are adequate to cover all expenses while at the academy.

Star Kills His Six Year Old Airplane Jinx

"Scarlet Seas," the new First National picture starring Richard Barthelmess which comes to the Palace Theater next Saturday and Sunday, marked the destruction of the popular star's airplane jinx.

Six years ago Barthelmess was on location near Washington, D. C., and took a flight in an airplane from Hampton Roads. The plane made a perfect flight until it neared its destination when something strange seemed to be happening; Barthelmess, however, felt that the pilot was competent and therefore sat tightly. When the plane landed, the pilot fell limp across his wheel—dead! It was pronounced a case of heart failure.

This experience left an indelible imprint on Barthelmess' memory and he would never again fly. But when the First National "Scarlet Seas" company went to the Isthmus on Catalina Island, the star decided that production must not be held up—the age-old tradition of "the play must go on" prevailed. He chartered a plane and made the flight, thus killing, once for all, the jinx that haunted him since that fateful day six years ago.

"Scarlet Seas" is a thrilling tale of the open sea, teeming with the vivid color of the South Seas, trading in smuggled goods, rough-and-tumble fights and an unusual Barthelmess characterization. It was directed by John Francis Dillon, who made such a mark for himself with "The Noose."

POLAR BEARS DEFEAT CADILLAC

VISITORS WERE NO MATCH FOR LOCAL BASKETEERS.

Team Left Wednesday on Down-state Tour—Meet Manistee, Reed City and Midland Fives.

Playing in unbeatable form, the Charlevoix Polar Bears annexed their 11th victory in 15 games last Thursday night at the expense of Cadillac Y. They were superior from the start and piled up points practically at will throughout the entire contest.

Todd, Polar Bear guard, was the local scoring ace. His three field goals and Kipke's two markers from the free throw line gave the home team their first quarter lead of 8 to 2. Cadillac scored one goal.

Charlevoix doubled their lead in the second quarter while holding Cadillac scoreless. The count was 16 to 2 at the whistle. Todd, marked up three more field goals during this stanza to bring his total to 12 points. He made all his shots from directly beneath the basket and the ball was worked up to his position by excellent team work. Cooper, Daveport and Kipke figured strongly in Charlevoix's defense, breaking up all of Cadillac's attempts to advance the ball.

The Polar Bears went on another scoring rampage in the third period. Three goals by Gimble for 6 points, four points by Ikens and two more by Todd sent their score up to 28. Shifts in the local line-up weakened the defense to some extent, allowing Cadillac to get through for 5 points. The period ended with the Polar Bears leading 28 to 7.

Soon after the opening of the fourth period, regulars were sent in to replace a substitute line-up. Playing fine team work, the team annexed 14 points, 8 by Todd, Daveport 2, Ikens 2 and Gimble 2. Cadillac scored 5 and at the final whistle the Polar Bears were leading 42 to 14.

Todd and Gimble were high point men for the Polar Bears, the former making 22 and the latter 8. Anderson, Cadillac center, scored all 14 of his team's points.

In a close preliminary game, Ellsworth independents defeated the Polar Bear reserves 21 to 11. Peebles, former Ellsworth high school star, led his team to victory. He was in most every play and accounted for the big share of his team's points. Gill led the local live. Ellsworth was ahead 6 to 0 at the quarter, 9 to 7 at the half, 16 to 9 at the third intermission.

Hugh Wayne refereed both contests.

The Polar Bears left Wednesday for return games with three middle-state teams. Manistee is first on the schedule Wednesday night, Thursday they meet Reed City and the following evening Midland. Todd, Daveport, Kipke, Ikens, Gimble, Gill and Heise will make the trip.

The Rebekahs will hold the second of a series of Monday afternoon bridge teas at the L. O. O. F. hall, February 25th. Come and spend a pleasant afternoon. Good eats, good prizes and a good time.—Adv. 811.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

By B. C. Mellencamp

More "Mileage" in Manure if Phosphate is Added.

"The more mileage, the more profit" is the gist of the argument advanced by many live stock farmers, particularly dairymen, that the further the manure spreader goes the more money it makes. This is certainly true as applied to the practice of balancing, or re-enforcing manure in its weak spot—phosphoric acid—and then covering more acres with a given supply. Many Charlevoix county farmers have found to their own advantage that the "miles per ton of manure" can be increased 50 to 100 per cent by the simple practice of adding from 30 to 50 pounds of super-phosphate to each ton of manure, preferably in the stables where it acts as an absorbent of the liquid portions.

An eight-ton application of manure contains the equivalent of 800 pounds of a 10-5-10 fertilizer, but in making such a treatment, much nitrogen is certain to be lost by leaching. Adding 50 pounds of 20 per cent super-phosphate to each ton makes it equivalent to 100 pounds of 10-15-10 fertilizer. An application of four tons of such manure contains more phosphoric acid than eight tons of the untreated manure, with a much better ratio of potash and nitrogen and with smaller loss of the latter. In actual practice this means that for each 100 loads of manure to be spread, the beneficial effects can be extended to 20 or 25 acres instead of 12 or 15 at the usual rates.

Political Announcement

Respectfully, Jesse Smith.

BURKETT AND McMILLAN CHOSEN AS OFFICIALS

Class C and D Teams of Three Counties Come Here Next Week to Compete for Honors.

What many proclaim the tastiest dish on the state's interscholastic sports menu is about to be served. Within the next few days hundreds of high school basketball teams in Michigan will pack their equipment and depart for district tournaments, the first step in the long and arduous climb to the state championships.

On March 7, 8 and 9 some thirty-five communities will be the centers toward which these young knights of the rubber soles will gravitate as they seek the elusive and highly prized titles. As has been the custom in the past there will be three classes of competition, B, C and D. There will be state honors for all these divisions. The Class A schools will not compete until the regional tournaments are staged.

In each district one or two teams will be picked to go to the regional affairs where the entries for the big final round-up in Detroit will be determined.

Schools from three counties will send teams to compete in the district tournament to be held in Charlevoix. Emmet, Charlevoix and Antrim counties will all have complete representation at the cage carnival here. Last year the event was staged in Boyne City with a total attendance of 1,398. Charlevoix is out to beat this mark. With keen competition promised, big crowds of basketball lovers are bound to flock here.

At the present time the teams are swinging into the last games on their regular schedules. Coaches and players are giving attention to these contests, of course, but the eyes of all are turned more or less upon the impending tournaments. Regardless of the success that may have obtained for a team during the season, it will start the tournament competition with a clean slate. Past performances do not count for anything in these final tests. Everything to gain and nothing to lose, will be the attitude of the less fortunate quintets while the victorious combinations must look well to their laurels won during the season.

In most instances, followers of the respective teams will be drawn to the different matches. Each tournament site has been picked because of its facilities and geographical location. The home town fans will have relatively short distances to travel to the district matches, another factor that works for large crowds of spectators.

The court carnival will draw about 5,000 boys from Michigan's high schools. The cream of the new crop of athletic talent will be placing its capabilities on display and the eyes of Michigan basketball lovers will be riveted on these preliminary contests. Trophies will be awarded to winning district teams, the only material evidence of court proficiency.

Plans to handle the local tourney are rapidly being completed. Will Burkett of Mt. Pleasant, and Walter McMILLAN of Petoskey, have been chosen referees. Walter Alexander will be local time keeper. Drawings will be in the local gymnasium Saturday, March 2, under the supervision of Coach Ray Kipke.

PARM C. GILBERT HAS SAVED COURT DISTRICT EXPENSE

An inquiry into the records of the 13th judicial circuit reveal quite comforting information and would indicate that few, if any judges, have been as economical as Parm C. Gilbert of Traverse City, who is now seeking re-election to a second term.

In Antrim county there has been conviction in all of the 40 liquor cases brought before the bar over a two-year period, and the costs and fines collected have more than paid the expense of the court.

In Grand Traverse county fines and costs in liquor cases total the neat sum of $13,870, and in Charlevoix county $10,000.00. In both the last two named counties the money collected has gone a long way toward paying court expense. It would appear like a pretty good record and should be taken into consideration when voters go to the polls next Monday. A vote for Parm C. Gilbert will insure a continuance of the successful court administration of the past 6 years.

tion of Coach Ray Kipke. Invitations have been extended representatives of each competing school and representatives of the press to attend the draw. Seats tickets will be placed on sale this week at the two banks and the Sugar Bowl. Get yours now!

"ROSETIME" WAS A FINE SUCCESS

LARGE CROWD ATTEND PLAY AT GYM TUESDAY NIGHT

Home Talent Cast of Actors Portray Their Various Parts to Perfection

The musical comedy "Rosetime," sponsored by Charlevoix Chapter O. E. S., and directed by Miss Bertha Lorentz of the Wayne P. Sewall Chautauque company of Atlanta, Georgia, was shown at the high school auditorium Tuesday evening. Cast as well as the choruses were composed of local people and were all well chosen to represent their respective parts.

Miss Ethel Mellin as Rose and George Boeman as Jerry, were excellent leads. Dr. C. J. Winder entered into the characterization of Pa Perkins with so much success that little vestige of our genial dentist was discernable. Mrs. Charles Lamphar showed much talent in her portrayal of Ma Perkins, that old-fashioned lady, who wouldn't ride in a devil-wagon (automobile). The movie cast on location were the laugh producers of the show. Percy Peabody (Ray Bradley), the British secretary writer, caused much merriment to the crowd with his careful pronunciation of the King's English, as well as a varied vocabulary. Warren Kibbe, as Props, was unmerciful in annoying Percy. Miss LaRue Higgins was a beautifully wicked vamp and Miss Mable Turpin as "Babe," the hard-boiled actress, was good. O. P. North as the villain and movie director, barbaqued the voice of the scoundrel of the show. Squint Smith, Dr. V. L. Miller, the camera man, showed adaptability and poise in his part.

The choruses and songs were also well done and seemed to be appreciated by the audience if applause is any indication.

We were unable to learn the exact amount netted for the benefit of the order of Eastern Star, but gate receipts were about $100.

TRAVERSE AND HARBOR FIVE DEFEATED

SCORES VICTORIES OVER LEADING CLASS B AND C TEAMS IN NORTHERN MICHIGAN REGION.

Performance in Last Two Games Gives Local Five Decided Edge Over Other Schools of District—Play Fastest Ever Seen on Local Court.

Coach Ray Kipke's Charlevoix high school basketball team proved themselves to be the outstanding aggregation of Northern Michigan by their victories last week over Traverse City, leading class B team, and Harbor Springs, leading class C team, and Harbor Springs, straight for the local five, and at the same time gave them the satisfaction of defeating the outstanding class C team of the region. By virtue of their two victories over Petoskey, wins over Boyne City, East Jordan and other Northern Michigan teams, Harbor had been slated to win the district and regional tournaments.

Charlevoix's brilliant performance came after a season of erratic basketball. On occasions they failed to show the form fans expected from practically a veteran squad, while at other times they flashed the brand of basketball which won them the district and regional class C championship a year ago. That the team has "arrived" is proven by their performance against Traverse City and Harbor Springs. They flashed a defense that stopped two of Northern Michigan's leading fives and an offense that had the necessary scoring punch.

In the game Thursday night, Traverse City opened with a reserve lineup, planning to save their regulars for the Petoskey game the following night. For two periods it appeared as if their reserves would turn the trick. Charlevoix held a one-point advantage at the end of the first quarter, leading 3 to 2. Their counters came on a goal and one free throw, while Traverse City scored one goal.

Traverse took the lead shortly after the opening of the second period and held it until the half. They scored two goals and a free throw for 5 points. Charlevoix marked up one goal by Bill Novak and the count stood Traverse 7, Charlevoix 5, at the period end.

The third quarter marked Traverse City's downfall. Charlevoix opened with a barrage of goals which put them well in the lead. In an attempt to stem the local drive, Coach Mac pulled his reserve lineup and substituted his entire first team. The change failed to make any difference, however, for Charlevoix held the visitors scoreless throughout the period and played them completely off their feet. The quarter ended with Kipke's men leading 13 to 7.

Traverse made a desperate attempt to come from behind in the final period. With a comfortable lead to fall back on, Charlevoix played a defensive game that stopped every bid the Black and Gold made to score. Over-anxiousness cost the visitors several fouls and Charlevoix added two more points from the free throw line. Traverse scored their only point in two periods on a free throw and when the final whistle sounded, Charlevoix led 15 to 8.

Bill Novak led his team in scoring honors with seven points. Max Novak scored four, McCall 2, Marshall 1, Rex Supernaw 1. Kovacs scored 3 for Traverse, Volk 2 and Nelson 1. Dickie of Harbor Springs refereed. The Polar Bear reserves won a game from the high school reserves, 15 to 13. The contest went one overtime period. Stroud and Foster led a strong combination another year. The visitors led the Charlevoix reserves 3 to 2 at the first quarter.

11 to 3 at the half, 17 to 4 at the end of the third period and 19 to 7 when the final gun sounded. Hugh Mayne refereed the game.

"HARD TIME" PARTY THURSDAY EVENING

County Officers Sponsor Affair at High School Gymnasium.

Charlevoix county officers are taking the role of entertainers Thursday evening. They will stage a "hard time" dancing party at the high school gymnasium, proceeds to be turned over to the band uniform fund.

Invitations have been extended the whole region to attend the affair and an excellent turn-out is in prospect. Strict warning has been passed out for everyone to appear in "hard time" costume. In violation of the decree, they must answer to the judge, whoever that is. The hard time aspect of the affair should relieve many husbands of mental stress occasioned by these numerous appeals for new gowns, thus eliminating one excuse for non-attendance.

The party promises many novel features and is for a good cause. Don't miss it.

FINAL NUMBER LECTURE COURSE

AT GYMNASIUM NEXT MONDAY EVENING, MARCH 4.

Killarney Collects Billed As One of Leading Attractions of Current Season.

The Killarney Collects, the rollicking duo of singers and entertainers who are scheduled to appear here Monday, March 4, under the auspices of the Charlevoix Lyceum association, are proving a great popular success according to letters of appreciation from cities in which they have recently appeared.

Here are extracts from a few typical letters on the Collects:

"We were more than satisfied. Audience cheered as though in competition with a political mass meeting greeting the hits in Hoover's or Smith's speeches. Miss Sheehan is good; her partner is better. The renditions of Miss Saltmarsh's trombone solos were not counted as entertainment. They were counted as a thing experienced—nothing so good ever heard before and perhaps never again."—J. E. Wallace, Wheeling, W. Va.

"The Killarney Collects opened our course in splendid fashion. Their talent was clearly shown in their varied program. People complimented them highly after the entertainment."—David E. Smith, Kilbourne, W. Va.

"Two excellent entertainers. The crowd was very much pleased with the presentation, and the entertainers proved very popular."—W. L. Hoffman, Milton, W. Va.

"Very pleasing number. Audience well pleased."—G. M. Hollandsworth, Princeton, W. Va.

"The program went over with a bang. Everybody well pleased. Full house. One man said that it was worth the price of a season ticket. Another said it was worth a dozen sermons. In this company you offer a real bargain."—H. H. Garby, New Martinsville, W. Va.

LINING UP FOR OUT-DOOR SHOW

CHARLEVOIX AMONG CHICAGO EXHIBITORS THIS YEAR.

Michigan Will Vie With Wisconsin and Others for Attention of Tourist Trade.

Leaders in the recreational industry of the state of Michigan, headed by Hugh Gray of Grand Rapids, T. E. Marston of Bay City, and George E. Bishop of Marquette, have definitely decided to again display the justly famous sports and recreation facilities of the state before the thousands of visitors at the Seventh National Out-Door Life Exposition to be held in Chicago, May 6th to 14th.

A preliminary meeting held at Grand Rapids, and two later meetings held in the offices of the State Conservation department at Lansing, were sufficient to re-create that spirit of boosting the woods, streams, lakes and trails of the entire state in an effort to attract the thousands of summer tourists and sportsmen to this section of the lakes region.

As a result of these meetings and the promise of Director George H. Barth of the conservation department's participation, Michigan will again be represented by a big contingent of exhibitors of live fish, game, vacation haunts, etc., and the "Michigan Avenue" made famous at the 1928 exposition will be enlarged to include not only the regular features but to advertise the monster water carnival and regatta to be staged on Lake George in August to celebrate the completion of the concreting of Federal Highway No. 2. This event, which heralds Michigan's increasing interest in the sport of water motoring, has received the full support not only of the county supervisors but of the Gogebic County Advancement Association as well.

Past years have seen the states of Wisconsin and Michigan displaying friendly but keen competition in a determined effort to induce the tourist, with his dollars that represent prosperity to the business interests of the state, to come to either of these famed parts of the northern woods and lakes regions. Until last year Wisconsin, with a splendidly organized group of backers, held the spotlight and exhibited its scenic and recreation facilities to a decided advantage.

In 1928 the state conservation department and the department of agriculture joined hands with the local chambers of commerce and civic organizations to make the Michigan exhibits at the exposition an admirable display of the resourcefulness not only of the state, but of its inhabitants as well. Competition grew more keen and each state was of the opinion that its exhibits held the most merit. Both drew thousands of tourists and thousands of dollars of revenue to their resorts and to their business firms.

The 1929 displays of Michigan will again be in charge of T. J. Hoffmaster, superintendent of state parks. Mr. Hoffmaster had the opportunity last year of measuring the exact worth of his competitor and it is expected that the coming exposition will see a true battle royal in presenting at Chicago an effective mass appeal for the tourist patronage during the summer months.

Each states will find another friend and their program was well received.

Many fine comments have been made relative to Miss Saltmarsh and her trombone. Miss Sheehan is decidedly in a class by herself as an entertainer. Her work was a decided hit. It is the consensus that the Killarney Collects was a very fine number and such an idea has created the hearty anticipation of the future numbers."—George West Dohi, Athens, W. Va.

The above number is the last one of the season. The Lyceum course this year has brought unusual talent to Charlevoix during the winter and a large attendance has been out for the entertainments. The association is planning a course of exceptional numbers for the coming year and is appreciative of the cooperation the public has given.

Coming—March 11.

Civil War Veteran of 88 Finds
New Lease on Life Through New Medicine.

MR. B. H. RANDALL

Remarkable, indeed, are the works of Konjola in the cases of those of advanced age. The files of this remarkable remedy fairly overflow with endorsements from those in the eighties who have found in Konjola quick and lasting relief when all else had failed.

Take the case of Mr. B. H. Randall, 88, of the Soldiers Home, Grand Rapids. Rejoicing over the health that Konjola brought him, this veteran of the Civil War writes:

"At 88 I was about to give up trying to regain my health and had about resigned myself to sit down and wait for final taps. I was greatly run down; the slightest exertion exhausted me. My strength was leaving me rapidly, and I did not respond to any of the medicine or treatments I tried. I had heard and read many good things about Konjola, and decided to see if it would do me any good. It gave me the surprise of my life. Day by day I could feel this wonderful medicine working on my kidneys, liver and stomach. In six weeks I felt well and am enjoying life as I did years ago. In my case, Konjola proved to be a wonderful system-builder, and I can not but feel that this splendid medicine has added years to my life."

Konjola is sold in Charlevoix at F. J. Fessenden's drug store, and by all the best druggists throughout this entire section.

Advertisements make neighbors

The Yankee clipper-ships are sailing phantom seas. The western two-gun man has retired to the movies, and the southern plantation has been sub-divided. The old sectional distinctions have passed into tradition.

Where there was North, South and West, there is now one people. Those old barriers of distance and prejudice have been worn down by many uniting forces: Railroads, radio, automobiles, telephones, newspapers, magazines, Advertising.

These are the things that have united America into a nation of neighbors. You have the same automobile as the chap a half-dozen states away. You both eat the same advertised foods, smoke the same tobaccos, enjoy concerts from the air with the same radio sets. You have a lot of things in common.

Advertisements give you and your neighbors in all the forty-eight states the same chance to know and obtain new things as soon as they are ready. Through advertisements, you learn of a thousand devices that save you labor, increase your comfort, and help you to enjoy life generally. They give you a broad panoramic view of this modern age we live in.

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the

The Love of a Dog for a Boy

Next morning the boys turned that a mile of shallow rapids, impracticable for poolling or tracking the heavy canoe, reached above them, forcing the scrambling out with axes of a portage trail over which canoe and cargo could be jacked. Until noon, Brock and Caspard jollyed up the river shovels with sack loads slung on their leather tumplines. On his last trip down stream Brock found that his tireless partner had left only a ninety-pound bag of flour and the Peterboro. Lifting the bow of the inverted canoe, which was built of cedar and weighed about a ton, he hoisted it into the branches of a neighboring spruce. Then he slung the bag to his back, slipped the line over his forehead, and walking under the center of the raised boat on his shoulders, balanced it with his hands, and started up the trail.

GALAXY OF COSTUMES AT FIREMAN'S DANCE

Proceeds Used to Purchase Sweet Pans for Basketball Squad.

That the Fireman's annual masquerade ball, held last Friday evening in the high school gymnasium in commemoration of Washington's birthday was an unqualified success, is evidenced by the size of the crowd in attendance and the galaxy of original costumes.

George Roderick as Uncle Sam, won gentleman's first prize. Roy Brady, portraying an interesting characterization of the "Gentleman of the Highway," the tramp, won second prize. Miss Edith Struthers was an ideal musical-comedy lady pirate. She won first prize for ladies, while Miss Rosena Wilson as "Raggedy Ann," won second prize.

Favorable mention should be made of companions of the prize winners. Mrs. George Roderick portrayed Miss America and Miss Eleanor Thomas was Raggedy Andy. Lloyd Curtis represented Mephisto. Dr. V. L. Miller, a plantation negro, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Brady an old-time couple, Frances Miller and Elizabeth Hood two Japs, "Bill" Wallace a circus clown. Miss Helen French wore an Ivory Soap costume and Miss Juanita Secord a bath towel combination representing Saturday Night. Miss Dorothy Struthers was Sheba, the Misses Ethel Mellin, Bertha Lorentz and Mrs. Leona McKinley three wooden soldiers.

The affair was a great financial success and the firemen should be commended for their action in using the funds to purchase sweet pans for the Charlevoix high school basketball team.

BEAVER ISLAND NEWS.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Tom Gatt, February 18th, a baby boy.

The fishermen who are spearing trout are having very good luck these days.

H. R. Pischner is getting out timbers on Garden Island to rebuild the Beach fish dock.

Quite a number are fishing perch in the harbor and are having good luck with hook and line.

The mail carriers are making their regular trips across the ice twice a week.

Gus Meilke made a business trip to Garden Island Tuesday. He found his work progressing nicely in spite of so much snow.

Sister Mary Clara and Sister Mary Genevieve of the Mercy Order of Grand Rapids, who came across the ice the 3rd, returned on Monday, the 18th.

On Tuesday night the men's sleeping quarters at Nomad, owned by G. Cole, burned to the ground. Joe Koss froze both his feet making his escape from the burning building.

Charles Pischner, "Sonny" Belfry and Norbert Gallagher walked to Garden Island Saturday; had dinner at H. R. Pischner's camp, returning in the afternoon with Emil Pischner and his "Jim" horse.

On Thursday the 21st, Mary Gallagher and Lillian Green, escorted by Paul Somerville, made a trip to Garden Island by dog team. They spent the day at the home of Madse Jensen, where they enjoyed a very nice time.

About 30 friends and relatives were entertained Sunday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Gallagher. The usual games of cards were played and after a very pleasant evening a delightful luncheon was served.

We had our coldest weather last week. The thermometer was down to 18 below zero, also a little more snow one night, which made the trip very hard for our mail carriers on Saturday. They were from 7:30 a. m. to 7:30 p. m., making the trip from Cross Village to St. James.

Saturday morning, February 23, William McDonough, Roland McDonough, Patrick Lafreniere, Joe Floyd and W. J. Gallagher, Jr., went by car via the ice route to Charlevoix, making the trip in steamboat time. This is the first time such a trip was made by car to Charlevoix all the way on ice.

ADDITIONAL HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

We, the students and band boys of Charlevoix high school wish to extend our appreciation and our thanks to Miss Thomas and Miss Wilson for their splendid work in making the operettas "Miss Cherry Blossom" and "Pickles" successes.

They worked with untiring patience and high-spirited vim in order that they would be successes.

Due to the fact that the people of Charlevoix cooperated with the students and advisors at this time, the band boys have recently received a check of $159.18 from Miss Thomas and Miss Wilson, which is to go towards the paying for the band suits. This money was cleared from both operettas.

This check brings the donations up to $311.62.

We hope that if they give more operettas they will be as successful as the previous ones have been.

Thankfully,

POLAR BEARS BREAK EVEN IN FOUR GAMES

Lost to Manistee and Reed City; Defeat Midland and Bay City.

Charlevoix Polar Bears broke even in their series of four games played in southern Michigan cities last week, winning two and losing two. They returned Sunday and reported a fine trip in spite of reverses.

The toughest pill the bad to swallow was a 54 to 24 defeat at the hands of the Manistee Iron Works five last Wednesday evening. One member of the local squad made the remark "That no team in the state could defeat Manistee on their own court." They hope for revenge Wednesday night, however, when the Manistee five comes here for a return game.

The Polar Bears led the Reed City five until the final minutes of the fourth quarter, only to drop that game 21 to 18. Several long shots from center court gave Reed City their winning points.

Friday night the Polar Bears stopped the Bay City Independents five by a 21 to 20 score, and Saturday night took the measure of Midland 32 to 30. Midland led 10 to 2 at the first quarter and 15 to 8 at the half. The local five came from behind to tie the count in the third quarter and came out 2 points ahead to win. The advantage changed 10 times in the last half.

At the Sunday morning service, 10:30 a. m., the pastor's Lenten sermon will be "The Unveiled Gospel and the Veiled Heart." This is the third subject in the series of sermons of Search and Inquiry.

CROSS FROM BEAVERS HERE WITH MACHINE

First Direct Trip from Island to Charlevoix in 27 Years.

A new record in the mode of travel between St. James, Beaver Island, and Charlevoix was established Saturday when William McDonough, Roland McDonough, Pat Lafreniere, Joe Floyd and W. J. Gallagher made the trip by automobile.

Leaving St. James around eight o'clock in the morning, the party arrived here at noon, the trip requiring a little over four hours. A Ford touring car was used and a part of the equipment carried were two 16-foot planks used to cross cracks in the ice, which were numerous and occasioned many detours. It was estimated 75 miles were covered. The steamboat course is 33 miles.

The men remained here Saturday night and returned Sunday. The return trip required less time than was taken to come over. Joe Floyd, one of the members, remained over until Monday morning and made the trip back with two other cars.

It has been 27 years since a crossing was made over the ice between Beaver Island and Charlevoix, and this is the first time in history it has been accomplished with an automobile. Beaver Island residents claim Lake Michigan is frozen over solid from the Michigan to Wisconsin shore.

Washington's Birthday Supper.

The Ladies' Aid of the Church of God held a Washington's Birthday tea in the form of a pot luck supper at the parsonage last Friday evening. There were 52 present. A bountiful repast was served and enjoyed by all. During the evening a fine program was rendered by the children of the Sunday school. Several numbers were given by the adult members as well. Louis Bourleson and son favored the audience with some delightful violin music which was highly appreciated by all present. A goodly sum of money was received in the silver offering, which will be used for repairs on the church building.

Men's Club Meeting.

The Men's Club met Monday evening at the Methodist church for a chop suey supper and general discussion of local events. Rev. John E. Lockyer gave an interesting spiritual interpretation of the prophet, "Amos." This was followed by a talk by Charles Gale on his visit to France, Germany, Belgium, Switzerland and Scotland prior to the World War.

* OF INTEREST TO FARMERS By B. C. Mellescamp Dairy Feeding Meetings Largely Attended.

The four dairy feeding schools conducted last week Thursday and Friday were among the best ever held in Charlevoix county on dairy work. An attendance of 83 farmers greeted the speaker, which is very fine when one stops to consider the road conditions and that many had to drive or walk long distances.

W. D. Harrington, specialist of M. S. C., very efficiently gave the most important factors to take in consideration when feeding dairy cows properly and economically. He emphasized the necessity of feeding high quality roughage plus silage or roots, plus a well balanced home grown grain ration, supplemented by purchased concentrates when necessary. All farmers realized how simple a matter it is to balance a ration, after listening to the speaker.

Briefly he pointed out the way to feed dairy calves to develop them into good, strong, productive cows. Nothing can replace skim milk, but it should not be fed in excessive amounts. A better calf can be raised inside than out on pasture unless the calf is around six months of age or in other words a fall calf. Whole corn and oats make an excellent grain mixture.

The care, feed and management of the dairy bull was discussed briefly but efficiently. More cows are poor producers because of the owner not properly feeding, using good bulls and growing out the calves than because of the cow herself. Barnard Grange takes the honor for the best attendance, with Marion Center second, while the meeting in the cities were poorest. Someone tell me why, when they are more easily accessible.

Farm Account School.

Plans are being rapidly completed for the Farm Account project, which starts in Charlevoix county on March 1st. At present approximately 35 farmers have enrolled and are looking forward to analyzing their farm business, thereby accurately finding out how much of a success they are making, and, if lacks in the farm

To the Electors of Charlevoix County

Owing to my late entry into the race for Circuit Judge, and the present condition of the roads, I will be unable to see each of you personally as I would like very much to do. I was born and always lived in Antrim county.

If you do not know me as a citizen and my qualifications for Circuit Judge, inquire of your friends who do.

I did not seek this office, but was induced to become a candidate by friends.

No Antrim county man has ever been Judge of this circuit.

Should I be elected I will always do my best to conduct court in a proper manner with the least possible expense to the tax payers.

My home is in Elk Rapids where I will be readily accessible to Charlevoix county.

Every person appearing before the court will be treated as a citizen.

The business of the Thirteenth Judicial Circuit will be promptly attended to and have first place with me.

Should my candidacy meet with your approval, I will greatly appreciate your and your friends' support at the primary, next Monday, March 4th. The office is an important one and it is your duty to vote.

Adv. 911 Fitch R. Williams.

This splendid work is under the direction of the Michigan State College Farm Management department and the local extension service. H. A. Berg, extension specialist, will be actively in charge. On March 12th and 13th the project schools will be held at which time each of the co-operators will spend one of the days with Mr. Berg and place in the books the opening inventory. At the end of the year another similar meeting will be held and the closing inventory placed in the book. Then during the year all farm expenses and receipts will be recorded in the farm account book.

Thus any farmer by availing himself of this opportunity can accurately keep farm records and make his business efficient and successful. If you are interested it is not too late to drop a line or phone your county agent at Bayne City, and he will gladly explain all the details. Do it now before it is too late.

to offer the pleasure seeker. All four entrants are now busily engaged scouring the country-side for wild life exhibits that will add to the attractiveness of the Canadian section.

The city bred man who before the advent of the Out-Door show knew of the life of the northern woods only through the medium of books and stories will again have the opportunity to see live fish, game and fur bearing animals, and witness the bait casting contests, the log rolling competitions, the tree chopping, and to see for himself the hunters, the trappers, the Indians, and the lumberjacks, symbolic figures of the north woods that mean the most longed for adventures in his prosaic existence.

Exhibitors of wild game, live fish, the open trail, and the land of the lumberjack, have an opportunity to impress the pleasure seeker and to entice him, and the one whose exhibits have the most intensive selling appeal will win.

Working with the state departments and fully aware of the battle they will have on their hands to uphold the recently hard earned prestige of Michigan are the following associations who are among those already preparing for the coming Out-Door Life Exposition: Michigan Tourist and Resort Association, East Michigan Tourist Association, Upper Peninsula Development Bureau, Gogebic County Advancement Association, Greater Muskegon Chamber of Commerce, the City of Charlevoix, and Berrien county which will include the exhibits of both St. Joseph and Benton Harbor.

Spending thousands of dollars to advertise Michigan to the world for vacationists who will invade the coliseum during the time of the Out-Door Life Exposition, the recreational industry is expecting each citizen of the state to re-familiarize himself with the great possibilities and potentialities of Michigan.

Oldest of O'Brien Sextet is 80; Youngest 70; All Are in the Best of Health and Hold Reunion—Make Plans for Future Get-Togethers.

Six brothers whose combined ages total 450 years—the oldest 80 and the youngest 70, are believed to be the most unusual family group in Michigan, if not the entire country.

Just now they are all at Charlevoix where they recently celebrated their first reunion in 69 years. Hale and hearty to the man, they are typical examples of manhood of pioneer Michigan days.

James O'Brien, senior member of the sextet, was 80 years old January 28, and it was on his birthday that Josiah, who has been in the west since he was 18 years old, joined the group for the reunion. Following James in order of their ages are George, 78; Julius, 76; Albert, 74; Josiah, 72; and Andrus, 70.

James O'Brien and his wife celebrated their 55th wedding anniversary last November. Four of their seven children still are living, the oldest 54, and the youngest 39.

The couple came to Charlevoix from New York state 62 years ago and soon afterward were married. They have resided here and at Norwood since. Four other brothers followed in later years. Josiah, former plaster-mixer, trader, hunter, trapper, and now ranch owner in Colorado, has lived in the west since he was 18.

James possesses a Bible more than 100 years old, in which is written much of the family history. His great-grandfather, Josiah Knight, fought in the Revolution. His grandfather, Elijah Knight, and the latter's brother, Joseph Knight, fought in the battle of Plattsburg during the war of 1812.

From this year on January 28 will be the occasion of a family reunion of the brothers as long as they live and are able to get together. There never were any girls in the family. The six brothers are all enjoying the best of health.

The senior class has the concessions for the tournament and will have tasty things to eat.

Seniors Have Acquired Concessions
The senior class will sell candy and little pops at the double-header game here Wednesday night, Pelt-sten vs. Charlevoix high, and Manistee Independents vs. Charlevoix Polar Bears.

Thursday night they will sell candy, artie pops, hot dogs and coffee in the manual training room at the gym during the "hard time" party and dance to be held there that evening to raise money for the band uniforms.

Congratulations to the Otterbeins.
The students of Charlevoix schools extend their congratulations to Supt. and Mrs. Otterbein on the arrival of a new daughter, Virginia Rae.

Mr. Coleman Returned to School Duties

Mr. Coleman is back at school this week after being absent for some days owing to a severely sprained ankle which he received while coaching the basketball team. Although he has to walk with the assistance of two canes, the students are glad to see him back.

Plant Received

A plant was received by Mr. North from the Edwards florist company. It is a great, beautiful to the assembly and is greatly appreciated by everyone. Plants were also given to each one of the grade rooms.

English Students Prepare Orations

The English students are recuperating from the shock of examinations. Although examinations are always dreaded by a few people, most students regard them as an opportunity to check up on what they have learned in the past month.

The assembly is to be entertained again, this time by the juniors and seniors who are preparing orations to be given in the auditorium. The topics are being chosen by the contestants, and are being written on the following subjects: law enforcement, patriotism, the progress of aviation, truth, etc.

English Department

The students in English II are reading "Abraham Lincoln" by John Drinkwater. They will report on this drama on Wednesday.

Is the Question of State Rights Settled?

Is the question of state right settled is a question which faced the American history class Monday morning. No, it is not dead, nor is it robust, it is just "wiggling." The civil war did not kill the issue. It comes to light every now and then, and surely took air during the last presidential election whether or not the states had a right to secede the question of prohibition or if it should be a national issue.

The ancient history classes are deeply interested in the development of Rome. Some students believe that the Romans put it all over the Greeks.

Commercial News

The students with the highest speed among the beginners in typing this week are Anna Tuhy 39, Eleanor Tumath 34, Angie Scott 34, Arlyene Supernaw 34 and Clara Kelderhouse 32 words per minute.

Among the advanced students are Doris Trimble 56, Roberta Stafford 51, and Hazel VanDusen 51 words per minute.

Typing awards won this month are as follows: Clarence Arnold, 30 words, certificate of proficiency; Eleanor Tumath, 34 words, certificate of proficiency; Anna Tuhy, 39 words, certificate of proficiency; Valera Ripley, 50 words, bronze and silver medal; Noreen Moran, 44 words, bronze medal.

Charlevoix Defeats Her Rival for the Class C Championship

The students entered the gym Saturday night with a feeling of dread in their hearts. Would we lose or would we win? What a doubtful question. Fear was written on the faces of all C. H. S. students. They had reason to be afraid. C. H. S. was going to play against a team that was also working for class C championships. The students needed encouragement as well as the players. Saturday night every drop of encouragement was used, not a bit was wasted.

The first two quarters were the fastest and cleanest playing of basketball that the fans have witnessed for a long time. The score at the end of the first quarter was tied. The score at the end of the second quarter was still tied.

It was during the third quarter that the students learned and realized what moments of tension and suspense are. The score climbed for each side. Breaths were held, hands were clenched, teeth were gritted! But finally a sigh of relief escaped from the sufferers, the quarter ended. The breathing was still laborious, as the score was 15 to 12. Only three points different. More was could be safe. Bill Novak looked into the matter. The remaining 4 points were made by him. Harbor scored three but they were not enough to win. Therefore Charlevoix won another victory by a 19 to 15 score.

Charlevoix Defeats Traverse City

The spectators of last Thursday night's game were surprised as well as pleased to see Charlevoix, a class C school, win a victory over Traverse City, a class B school. Such warriors whooped were never heard before. It required some people half an hour to get over the shock. Some have not wholly recovered even yet.

Charlevoix started with the following line-up: Billy Novak, "Cornie" McCall, Bill Supernaw, Max Novak, Rex Supernaw. The Traverse line-up was Nelson, Kover, Volk, Ross, Kyselka.

The first quarter composed mostly of guarding the ball, Traverse making a free throw. In this way Traverse gained the leading score in this part of the game. They held the lead by only one point.

During the second quarter Traverse scored most of her points. Bill Novak made a basket for Charlevoix, followed by a free throw. Traverse scored but one more point than Charlevoix. The score during the third quarter climbed to 13 to 7. The eight points made for Charlevoix can be divided between Bill Novak, Cornie McCall, Max Novak, giving Bill the largest share. Charlevoix scored every point during this quarter.

Traverse made one free throw and Charlevoix two during the last quarter, one by Marshall, the other by Bill Novak. The final score was 15 to 8 in favor of Charlevoix.

Harbor Reserves Beat Charlevoix Reserves

The Charlevoix reserves were badly defeated Saturday night when the Harbor reserves trimmed them by a 19 to 6 score. A good game was played, although Charlevoix was defeated. The opponents held the lead in all the quarters and the Charlevoix fellows did not get a chance to catch up in any one quarter of the game. Charlevoix will do better in the future.

Basketball Outfits

The firmen have ordered sweat pants to match the boy's sweat shirts so they will have them for the tournament. Many thanks.

The school has ordered white jerseys with red script Charlevoix to take the place of the checkered jerseys worn so far.

Pep Meeting

A pep meeting was held Thursday for the Traverse City game. Max Novak, Robert McCall and George Bergman gave short speeches and seemed to think they were going to win, which to our surprise they certainly did. A few yells were given Friday for the Harbor Springs game, when they carried off another victory.

District Tournament Held Here on March 7, 8 and 9

Charlevoix will have the district tournament here March 7, 8 and 9. There are twelve teams who will participate. Seven of them are class D teams and five of them class C. Rooms are being looked after by Mrs. McKinley and a committee.

Harbor Springs' first annual winter carnival closed last Wednesday evening after a very successful two-day program.

Charlevoix contestants featured in the sports events at Harbor, Fred Hardy, local ski champion, carried off second place in the ski jump, and local skaters came home with a good share of the prizes in the ice contests.

Charlevoix broke through with the first win when Drew Young was first in the race for boys under 13 years of age. Clifford Howes and Wilbur Grimes of Harbor Springs, were second and third respectively. Charlevoix girls of the same ages also were good on the ice, Alice Usher winning first and Betty Cartier, second. Helen Faunce of Harbor Springs, was third.

Harbor Springs boys made a clean sweep of the race for boys under 17. Lloyd Taylor, Paul Anento and John Spaulding finishing in the order named. The two Charlevoix girls repeated in the race for those under 17 years, with Lorraine Cheeklin of Harbor Springs third.

EMMETT HAS SECOND LARGEST STATE PARK

Has Diversified and Unusual Features—Great Possibilities.

The Department of Conservation has acquired between 1200 and 1500 acres of privately owned land within the boundaries of the Wilderness State Park in Emmet county, since that area was settled upon as a park site in 1927. Ever since the location of the park was determined by the Conservation department, the department has made efforts to block out, that is, to acquire all privately owned land within the park boundaries, and has the above mentioned acreage for its activity.

That the work might be further facilitated, a meander line survey was completed during last summer. This survey will be of material aid in completing the task of securing the desired land. The legislature has been asked to provide funds that may be put to use in installing certain improvements.

Wilderness Park is the second largest in area in Michigan. The Hartwick Line State Park in Crawford county ranks first in size. The Emmet project is viewed as one possessing great possibilities for a park of diversified and unusual features. F. F. Brunson is the local superintendent.

BRIDGES ENTERTAINED PARTY WEEK-END GUESTS

Several Affairs Given for Entertainment of Visitors.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Bell of Redford, Michigan, and Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Essie of Birmingham, Michigan,

Robert Bridge home on Dixon avenue. Several local friends of the Bridges entertained in honor of the guests during their stay. Saturday evening Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Lewis were hosts at a "Tacky" party, requiring those invited to impersonate hard-time characters. Cards were the chief entertaining feature of the evening.

Sunday morning Mr. Bridge treated the men to an old-fashioned sleigh ride, but the drivers were inexperienced and the horses ran away. However, as no one was injured, that occurrence caused a great deal of merriment. The ride was followed by a picnic.

DID YOU SEE THE KIDS OUT PLAYING "MEGS?"—SPRING!

Speaking about the weather, during the past two days we have seen every indication of Spring. Kids are out playing "megs" and Bridge street resounds with the metallic clang of pick and shovel as our industrious merchants are endeavoring to find the more firm foundation of concrete again. Looks like Old Man Winter would soon pass out of the picture. Guess it won't make anyone sore.

Sunday afternoon the crowd went to Harbor Springs to enjoy coasting, which was followed by a dinner party at the Robert Bridge home. Friday evening the guests attended the fireman's ball, at which affair they acted as judges of the costumes.

MRS. OTTO POWERS DIED VERY SUDDEN

Death Came February 18 at Home in Muskegon—Former Resident.

Mrs. Otto Powers, formerly of Charlevoix, died suddenly Monday noon of last week, at her home in Muskegon. Her passing came as a great shock to local relatives and her many friends.

Gertrude Smith was born in Marion township, September 1, 1878, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Smith, and lived in Charlevoix nearly all her life. She taught school several years and in 1910 was married to Otto Powers of Charlevoix. About six years ago the family moved from Durand to Muskegon and had since made their home there.

Deceased is survived by her husband and two children, Carl and Mary, one sister, Mrs. Arthur Staley, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Smith.

The body was brought to Charlevoix on Wednesday of last week and funeral services held Friday forenoon from the Smith residence on Antrim street under the auspices of the Rebekah lodge.

Mrs. Powers' sunny disposition and loving ways endeared her to all who knew her, and her short life was spent in loving consecration to her husband and children. She will be greatly missed.

UNDER THE DOME AT THE STATE CAPITOL.

Abandonment by the administration of its once avowed intention of securing passage of a 5 per cent state income tax for the purpose of financing the institutional building program, came as a bombshell, by means of a message, later Thursday afternoon, in the senate.

The message was unofficial, being delivered to the senate committee on state affairs in the person of Wilbur M. Brucker, attorney general, who addressed that committee at a meeting called hurriedly after a recess of the senate at 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon.

The Governor requested the immediate reporting out of the senate committee, of the joint resolution introduced recently by Sen. Arthur E. Wood of Detroit, by which the state would finance the building program by means of a $24,000,000 bond issue.

Thursday, Feb. 21, the administration sought speedy action in the senate to pass the resolution. Final vote on the matter, however, after a two-hour debate on the senate floor failed by one of carrying and the measure was tabled as a move to save it for reconsideration Monday evening, Feb. 25, that being the last date on which the senate can act upon it in time to have it go through the house early enough to meet the constitutional requirements specifying that such matters, coming for a vote of the people, must be published 30 days before election.

The original proposal carried a clause which would provide for retirement of the $24,000,000 bond issue but the senate committee struck this provision out of the resolution before reporting it out. Thursday evening, so that, in case the measure finds one more supporter in the Senate at the reconsideration, and then passes the House, the voters will be called upon to approve only the bond issue without voting on any specific means of retiring the issue.

Michigan will join the ranks of those states of the union which legally recognize and encourage betting on horse racing, if the legislature passes a measure which was introduced in the House the latter part of last week.

Rep. Alonzo N. Green of Hillman, is the author of the measure, which his backers claim will bring a flood of money into the state, because the bill embodies the pari-mutuel system of betting as well as the certificate made of placing wagers. The commissioner of agriculture would issue one license for each county of the state, save Wayne county, which would be entitled to two tracks.

Under the pari-mutuel and certificate plans of placing wagers on horse races, the state would take a certain fixed percentage of all monies wagered. Licenses also would be a large source of income for the state, for the fee would be $1,000 for each 60 days. Large fees for daily heats, depending on the length of the tracks, would also be levied. Applicants for licenses would be required to post a cash bond of $50,000.

Many are the regulations which would bind the entire conduct of those betting, as well as those who conduct the races. The maximum penalty for violation of the regulations would be $10,000 fine and one year in jail.

An ineffectual echo of the expulsion of Kenyon Leech Butterfield from the presidency of Michigan State college at East Lansing, in the spring of 1928, was heard in legislative halls last week. A group of anonymous "Lansing citizens" mailed copies of a statement of Mr. Butterfield to the legislature.

The burden of the statement was that the "situation" at the college merited a legislative investigation. Because the Lansing committee never revealed the identity of any of its members; because the deposed president is in South Africa; because the situation might have been investigated by competent authorities during the many months following the expulsion of the president, when he was in this country and available, little attention was paid to the printed message which came through the mails in plain envelopes with no clue to the senders.

Ballot stuffing and other illegal election practices would be dealt a serious blow by a bill introduced by Sen. Peter B. Lennon of Lennon. The essential feature of the measure is that the board of canvassers would be empowered to make full investigation of the ballots in any case where fraud was suspected. At present the board of canvassers are utterly without power or standing in the matter, and, in cases where the seals of ballot boxes have been tampered with, the board not only can take no action about it, but also is prevented even from counting the ballots in such boxes.

Boards of canvassers would make immediate return to the county prosecutors, circuit judges or to the attorney general of the state, depending on the scope of the election in question. The present laws governing the investigation of suspected election frauds calls for the impaneling of a grand jury.

While the measure was introduced by the Genesee county legislator, with a view to preventing recurrence of the recent scandals in his home county, it is applicable anywhere in the state. The effect would be that election crooks would be detected in their frauds before evidence could be destroyed and before witnesses could be influenced.

Distribution of an additional $2,000,000 annually to the counties of the state from the proceeds of the gasoline tax, would be provided by a measure which was introduced in the house by Rep. John E. Gillett of Antrim county. The proposed measure would mean a virtual extension of the provisions of the state reward act, for the provisions are that when accumulated reward payments were completed, the new appropriation of $2,000,000 from the gas tax would be made.

A bill which would throw the weight of road building more upon the townships, than upon the state, but which would, in effect, aid townships in the construction of roads, was also introduced early last week in the senate. This measure would constitute an extension of the Covert road act to townships, and would allow for road construction on petition of sufficient number of affected land-owners. Assessment districts would be created by the measure. Costs of road building would be apportioned so that one-fourth would be charged to the districts and the remaining three-fourths to the township at large.

The house passed Rep. Joseph Warners' measure which would exempt from liability, in case of accident, owners of automobiles who are carrying guests, or any non-paying passengers, except in case of gross negligence.

Dr. Leahy, the Optometrist, will be at the Hotel Charlevoix, Monday, March 11. Difficult cases solicited. Adv. 912.

VOTE AT PRIMARY SETS NEW RECORD

ARTHUR BERGEON DEFEATS DR. C. J. WINDER FOR MAYORALTY BY COMFORTABLE MARGIN.

Ernest J. Kibbe Nominated as Alderman of Second Ward Over
H. R. Fowler; Jesse Smith Defeats D. J. Eckinger;
Art Alcock Beats W. E. Parmelee in Third.

With opposition on the city ticket for mayor, contests for alderman in the first and second wards and for supervisor in the third, together with a three-cornered race for judge-ship of the 13th judicial district of which Charlevoix is a part, a record spring primary vote was cast in this city Monday. In fact, the 769 votes cast eclipses any previous record as far as we can learn.

Arthur Bergeon, seeking re-nomination as mayor, won over Charles J. Winder by a vote of 496 to 290. Mrs. Elma H. Cook, Ray S. Hamilton and John Zeitler were unopposed for nomination to the offices of city treasurer, city clerk and park commissioner, respectively.

In the second ward, Ernest J. Kibbe defeated Horace R. Fowler for aldermanic honors by a vote of 220 to 151. In the third ward Archie Alcock received the nomination for supervisor by winning over William E. Parmelee 150 to 123, while Jesse Smith defeated David J. Eckinger, incumbent, for alderman, 189 to 79.

In the race for judge, 23 out of 25 precincts in Charlevoix county gave Gilbert 1,670, Williams 557 and Tweddle 76. Reports from the entire district indicate Judge Gilbert carried the nomination by a nice majority.

HEAPS OF TRUTH UTTERED IN A VERY FEW WORDS

Here's one too good to miss. Geo. McCabe in "The Monkey Wrench," says: "A mule can't kick while he is pulling and he can't pull while he is kicking, and neither can you." We might add that to Fred Cartier's favorite expression: "Throw away your hammer and buy a horn."

CLASS O TEAMS TO OPEN TOURNAMENT

CENTRAL LAKE AND BELLAIRE MEET IN FIRST GAME.

Charlevoix Drew Bye; Play Boyne City Friday Night; Harbor
Drew Mancelona.

A large group of interested representatives of class C and D basketball teams who will participate in the 26th district tournament which opens in the local gymnasium today, were present at the draw last Saturday afternoon held under the direction of Coach Ray Kipke.

Of the five class C teams entered, Charlevoix, East Jordan, Harbor and Boyne City drew byes. Harbor Springs and Mancelona drew second and third positions in the first bracket and will open the class C competition at 8:30 Thursday evening. Charlevoix and Boyne City clash Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock and the winner of the Harbor Springs-Mancelona contest plays East Jordan at 9:00 o'clock the same evening. Class C finals are scheduled for 8:30 Saturday night, while draw for the consolation series in this class will be held Friday evening with play starting Saturday forenoon and final Saturday afternoon.

Seven class D schools are entered. Six of this number will see action the opening day. Boyne Falls drew the bye. Central Lake and Bellaire meet in the tournament-opener at 3:00 o'clock Thursday afternoon. Alba and Mackinaw City clash at 4:00 o'clock and Ellsworth meets Pellston in one of the two evening games. One semi-final in this class is scheduled for Friday afternoon, another that evening and the finals Saturday night. Class D consolation series opens Friday afternoon and finals will be played Saturday afternoon.

In view of their performance in the closing games of their schedule, Charlevoix's Red and White terrors should be favored to win class C competition, with Harbor Springs as the second best bet. There are always numerous upsets in a basketball tournament, so we won't cross any bridges before we come to them. The point is, though, get out and support the home team. A casual glance at season records put Alba and Ellsworth out in front in the class D race.

Will Burkett, of Mt. Pleasant, and Walter McMillan of Petoskey, the two officials who handled the Boyne City tournament a year ago, will be in charge here. The choice is a popular one with local fans.

Judging from advance inquiries for accommodations, Charlevoix will be crowded with basketball fans during the three days of the tournament. Committees in charge of the tournament activities have the situation well in hand and will be ready for all comers.

Charlevoix High will present a colorful array at the tournament. The band will be decked out in their new uniforms, thanks to the splendid cooperation of Charlevoix citizens. Then, too, proceeds of the firemen's masquerade ball were used to purchase sweat pants for the team and the school has purchased new white shirts with "Charlevoix" in red script letters across the front.

The Methodist ladies will serve a supper in the church dining room Friday evening, March 8th, from 5:30 until all are served. Price 50 cents.

MANY ATTEND W. C. T. U. GATHERING

HUSBANDS WERE GUESTS AT AFFAIR FRIDAY NIGHT.

Excellent Supper, Interesting Program and Talk by Mrs. Clara Ball of Coloma.

The "Good Cheer" supper sponsored by the Woman's Christian Temperance Union for members and families and held at the Congregational church last Friday evening, was a very pleasant affair with about sixty in attendance.

The supper was preceded with the singing of the doxology by the company and the invocation by Mrs. George H. Pye. Mrs. S. M. Rife presided at the after-supper program, which consisted of community singing directed by Mrs. Novotny with Mrs. Belding at the piano, two very enjoyable vocal solos by Miss Helen French, impromptu remarks by the pastors Luckey, Pye and Mattson; and a talk by Mrs. Clara Ball of Coloma, president of the fourth district W. C. T. U., who took for her subject the 1929 slogan: "Give Prohibition Its Chance; the Liquor Traffic Had Its Day."

Mrs. Ball stressed the need of an educational campaign in all departments of the Union to discourage the use of intoxicating liquor. The organization of Loyal Temperance Leagues was especially urged. The L. T. L. is the children's organization sponsored by the Union for the promotion of patriotism and law observance generally as well as temperance and total abstinence.

The object of prohibition was to protect the American home from the drink traffic and the drink habit. The drink traffic is an outlaw. The drink habit remains and this is created and fostered by the use of alcoholic liquors whether they are sold legally or illegally.

Money spent for drink too often robs the home of necessities. Drink causes degeneracy, loss of mental power, loss of health. The reason for prohibition must be explained to all and will be obedience to the law promoted.

Reports from two great world conferences, held last year by temperance organizations, were very encouraging. The cause is gaining ground everywhere and the prospects are good that the world is going dry eventually.

RELIEF CORPS LADIES HAVE POT LUCK PARTY

Husbands Join Them in Evening for Supper and Cards.

A pot luck ten given by Baxter W. R. C. at the home of Mrs. Mary Allison on Petoskey avenue last Thursday afternoon, was largely attended.

The ladies pieced a quilt top and tied one quilt during the afternoon. The husbands arrived on the scene at 5:30 and helped do justice to the good "eats" furnished by the Corps ladies. In the evening the ladies tied another quilt and the gentlemen enjoyed playing cards.

A generous collection derived from the tea will help swell the treasury. The occasion was a very enjoyable one and Mrs. Allison was voted an excellent hostess.

CHARLEVOIX TOPS BOYNE CITY FIVE

EVEN COUNT BETWEEN TWO SCHOOLS AND CLOSE LO-CAL SCHEDULE WITH FOURTH STRAIGHT WIN.

Pellston Swamped Here Last Wednesday Night by a 46 to 11
Score—Red and White Record for Present Season is 10 Won and 6 Lost.

Charlevoix high school terrors closed their season's basketball schedule Friday night by taking the fast Boyne City five into camp at Boyne by a 15 to 9 score. The victory evened the count between the two schools and marked the successful end of an otherwise average season for the local eagles. In their last four games the Red and White were victorious over Traverse City, Harbor Springs and Boyne City, three of Northern Michigan's outstanding teams, while on Wednesday evening they swamped Pellston 46 to 11.

The Pellston game was Charlevoix's from start to finish. The visitors scored first after the leather had refused to go through several times for Charlevoix. They soon relinquished their lead, however, and from then on trailed far behind. Kipke's men were ahead 11 to 3 at the first intermission, 23 to 7 at the half, 34 to 10 at the end of the third period and 46 to 11 at the final gun. Every man on the squad, reserves and all, got into the game.

For Charlevoix Max Novak scored 17 points, Bill Novak 16, Marshall 8 and McCall 5. John Perrenz of Traverse City, refereed.

In the final game on their schedule, Charlevoix ripped up Boyne City in a close game last Friday night at Boyne by a score of 15 to 9. The contest was a nip-and-tuck affair throughout the first two periods and the score at the half was knotted at 5-all. In the same third quarter spurt they displayed in both the Traverse City and Harbor Springs games, Charlevoix stepped into the lead and held it to the final whistle.

Dick Marshall and Bill Novak were high point men for the local squad, while the guarding of the two Super-naws, Rex and Bill, and Max Novak, held the Boyne sharpshooters from scoring. John Perrenz of Traverse City, refereed the game.

By virtue of her victories over Boyne City and Harbor Springs, Charlevoix enters the district tournament here this week a favorite to win. Let's get behind them at every game.

FINE RECORD OF FOR- MER LOCAL STUDENT

Makes Coaching and Teaching Pay Way Through U. of M.

Charles Dagwell, former high school student and brother of Mrs. F. F. McMillan of this city, is the latest of our local boys to make good.

He is attending the University of Michigan, going to classes forenoon and paying his own college expenses by coaching in the Chelsea high school, near Ann Arbor. His teams have made enviable records. His football team won every game on the schedule, including one game with Jackson high, a class A team, defeating them 22 to 0. His basketball team has won all but three of the scheduled games, including one with Ann Arbor high school, giving him a record with A, B and C classes.

This is Dagwell's fourth year at the university, where he is majoring in physical education. He was recommended for the position of coach of Chelsea by no less a person than the Dean of the University, and he certainly has made good. Besides coaching, the position requires the teaching of two classes in the school, which he does very creditably, not to mention carrying 12 hours of work in the university, while the usual work is 16, and making higher than passing grades.

LEROY BROWN SEN- TENCED TO PRISON

PLEADED GUILTY TO ENTERING
STALEY BROS. HARDWARE

Kenneth Christensen Also Implicated—Youths Had Planned a Career of Banditry

The identity of robbers who entered Staley Brothers' hardware store last Thursday night was cleared up Sunday morning and the contemplated career of two youthful would-be bandits brought to an early and timely termination.

Working on a tip received by H. D. Marshall, he and Deputy Sheriff Charles Marshall caught Leroy Brown, age 21, and Kenneth Christensen, age 17, with the stolen goods, which included several revolvers, a rifle, knives, flashlights and a large quantity of ammunition. They were headed for a shack in a cedar swamp on the old Christensen farm south of the city and when taken were near the Pere Marquette "y."

The two youths were arrested and lodged in the county jail. Upon being questioned later by officers, they admitted entering the former Meers poolroom and revealed their intention of robbing a number of other business places. After a local clean-up, they said their plan was to proceed south to more lucrative territory. Both boys are local high school students. Brown is under probation at the present time. Several months ago he was arrested at Ludington and implicated in a series of car thefts and oil station robberies in the southern part of the state. A group of local sympathizers raised funds for his defense and were instrumental in having him placed on probation. Christensen is in trouble of a serious nature for the first time, as far as we can learn.

They were given justice hearing Wednesday morning, both pleading guilty and were bound over to the present term of circuit court under $5,000 bond.

In the afternoon, at a special session of court, Judge Parm C. Gilbert sentenced Brown to serve from 2 1/2 to 15 years at Ionia State reformatory. No disposition has been made as yet of Christensen's case.

SICK TEN YEARS
LAUDS KONJOLA

"Konjola is the Medicine I Should Have Had in the First Place," He Declares.

MR. A. C. FERRIS.

"Even though I am sixty eight years old, Konjola went to the source of my ten year illness, and soon gave me new, lasting health," said Mr. A. C. Ferris, 714 North Warren Avenue, Saginaw, Michigan. "I praise this medicine so that others may profit by the lesson my experience teaches. My stomach was so disordered that everything I ate caused intense distress. I often became nauseated because of the sour condition of my stomach. I lacked appetite, pep and energy, and lost weight and strength. I was also troubled with constipation."

"I heard of the wonderful accomplishments and success of this new Konjola, and wondered if it would benefit me. The only way to find out was to give it a trial. What a blessing it is that I did. Right from the start I was benefited, and by the time I had finished the third bottle I was a different man. My digestive organs have been cleansed and regulated, and I now get the proper nourishment from my food. I have gained in weight and strength, and know the relief is lasting. Konjola is the master medicine of them all, and I have heard it called the medicine with more than a million friends. Well, it certainly made a life long friend out of me."

Konjola is sold in Charlevoix at F. J. Fessenden's drug store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

FLASH
THE LEAD DOGBy
George Marsh

"White man, here!" he said soberly. "Injun track turn in; white man walk straight."

"Yes, I see it now," admitted Brock. "But what could bring a white man here—where would he come from?" Then across Brock's brain flashed the memory of the strange seafarer at the mouth of the Yellow Leg. His jaw dropped as his eyes meted with the surprise. "That seafarer!" he gasped. "Free trader! So we may have to share this country, after all. I thought we were the first to see it," he added ruefully.

"Do you not like to find us here—these people. We have trouble, you."

At the words of his friend, the fighting blood of generations of pioneer ancestors heated in Brock's veins. "Try to drive us out, eh?" he rasped, his blue eyes flaming. "Look here, you and I can shoot all around most Indians, can't we? We know that! Are we going to be run out of this country, where we've got as much right as they have?" Gaspard thrust out a shrewd hand which his friend impulsively gripped.

"We stay," said the half-breed, quietly, his swart face set like stone.

That night, as Brock lashed with rawhide to cross plows, two long, six inch strips of birch, planed to a quarter inch in thickness and curled at one end by steaming, from time to time he glanced curiously at his companion busied with the foot lashing of a pair of snowshoes.

"What's on your mind, Gaspard?" he said, at length. "You've been trailing over something for the last hour."

Gaspard lifted a face so bitter that Brock abruptly stopped work on his trapping sled. "Out with it, my lad; no secrets between partners."

The face of the half-breed softened as he met his friend's curious eyes, but he did not answer.

"You don't suppose they were here last year?" Brock burst out, in excited flush, lashed across his mind.

The dark face of Gaspard was lighted with pain as he turned to his friend. The glitter of hate, so human, so pitiable, so ruthless, in the small eyes of Gaspard, filled the one who watched with awe. Never before had Brock seen that look in the eyes of his friend.

"I think these men know—what he come—of my father," replied Gaspard, deliberately, his brooding eyes again seeking the fire. "He was very good man and he bush; he never starve out."

"And his dogs—some would come back if the wolves didn't get them."

"Well," said Brock, after an interval of hard thinking, "if they did away with your father for coming into this country, they'll try to do the same with us—shoot us from ambush or steal our grub and burn the tent when we're away on the trail."

Gaspard nodded in agreement.

"We'll have to move our camp, at once."

"On de first snow I go back into the country, nord of de he an' look for those people."

In the silence, from a distant ridge, drifted a faint call.

"The wolf, he hunt—tonight," said Gaspard, a the aroused huskies, pointing noses at the forest stars, hooted back their challenge to the ancient en-emy across the soundless forest.

Like a demon of evil, the wall of the wall struck upon the ears of Brock McCall. Into those bleak hills Pierre Leveaux and his dog had come, never to return. When the spring came to Hungry House, would they wait in vain for the coming of the canoe which had left in August for the headwaters of the Yellow-Leg? Who knew?

CHAPTER IV

The Battle in the Muskeg

Then one day, a stinging north-wester drove down across Kivoolin, Ojibwa for "The Birthplace of the North Wind," bringing the snow to which hills, barrens, and forest floor and betray the journeyings of their restless hooved and furred nomads. With the coming of the snow, the boys began finding their frozen fish and goose and their outfit into the back country, to a new camp they had located in the valley of another stream, tributary to the lake, where the thick spruce timber provided both a wind-break and concealment.

And with the coming of the snow, started the education of the hulking Flash, who, the previous winter, had been too young to break to harness. Gradually, under the patient tutelage of Brock, the pup learned the meaning of "Go!" and "Halt!" Soon, at the command, Marche! the twelve-month-old husky would leap into his collar and take his master scurrying over the young snow.

It was all a strange game to the high-spirited Flash. At first, he strenuously resented being trussed about neck and ribs with a rawhide harness and lashed to a sled. And yet, his love for the master who firmly but gently, with much soothing talk into the hairy ears, insisted on Flash understood that it was a kind of game that they played together—this pulling of the trapping sled; that Brock always followed, ever ready with praise and encouragement—he outgrew his desire to turn round and look back, to lie down and roll, to make a fuss when a leg straddled a trace, or wildly bawled after every fresh game trail he crossed.

Week by week the generous fish and meat diet added weight and power to the puppy's massive frame, and now, in his superb double coat of slate-gray and white, he neared the fulfillment of the promise of his milk-tooth days. Of the team, Yellow-Eye, alone, outweighed him, and for weeks the two great dogs, had never been left loose together. Already, in disputes over caribou tidbits, Flash had quickly proved to both Slicker and Kona that he was their master. With the mighty Yellow-Eye, king dog of the mail team, and master of the sled-dogs at Hungry House, it would be different. Brock and Gaspard knew that a fight between these two great Engadens would result in serious injury or death to one or both. Yet they realized that some day when Flash had grown to his full power and weight, some day in the spring, when the dogs were loose and alone, the two would hold it out. For by the law of the North a sled-team must have its king dog or chief.

November, the freezing moon of Cree and Ojibwa, found the young hunters following their trap-lines over ridges and barrens reaching air to the south and west. In the water courses, where, in October, they had seen otter slides, beaver ponds and mink sign, their trips were set.

So, through November, when the fur is extra prime because as yet unworn by the travelling of its owners, while the snow deepened and the ice "mated" on lake and river, the boys followed their lines. Twice a week each hunter camped out in a lonely erected on the far end of his trapping trails in a thicket on the south side of a ridge. And the fifty miles of traveling on each round with the light sled, which carried blankets, provisions and cooking outfit, soon broke Flash to the ways of trace and trail.

One day Brock and Flash were approaching the team in the ridges to the west of the barrens, where he spent the night on each round of his traps. The trail of a wolverine near the trail led Brock to turn momentarily aside into the forest while Flash continued slowly with the sled toward the camp. Brock was examining the tracks of the caribou or bighorn, who had turned back, suspicious of the sled trail, when he heard Flash's angry challenge, followed by a snarl of rage.

Again the puppy's battle cry waked the still forest. Then there was a din as of madheaded hordes fighting to the death.

"Great Scott!" gasped the startled Brock, fearful for the safety of his dog, handicapped by sled and harness, in a fight with a timber wolf. There's a wolf in the trap and Flash has piled into him!"

Plunging up the trail on snowshoes, Brock turned a head to find his over-turned sled with both traces snapped short off. Tearing his rifle from its skin case, he backed it and ran on, his heart pounding with fear for the mired puppy he loved.

"Give it to him, Flash!" he encouraged. "Fight him, boy!"

Crashing through a thicket of young spruce he found them battling to their shoulders in the deep snow: a great, grey timber wolf, who had torn loose from the trap, his muzzle smeared with blood and saliva, and the Engava puppy, one slate-gray shoulder gashed red from the snap of knife-like fangs. In and out they lured, wolf and dog, backing, turning at each other's thick coated neck and shoulders, snarling savagely as they fought; time and again slipping in the uncertain footing of deep snow, to roll and tangle in a writhing mass of bodies, legs and snapping fangs. Brock rushed to the battle and leaped, seeking the chance to end the moment fight with a rifle bullet, for the reckless Flash had charged to a foolish fight the bravest and most ruthless foe of the forest world. Twice the excited boy attempted to find his sights and shoot, but the swiftly moving combatants made it too dangerous for the puppy.

"Knock him down, Flash!" cried Brock, as the dog dove into the shoulder of his foe, sending him reeling, but, as he leaped for a drive at the throat, slipped and missed.

TWO GOOD MOTOR OILS

Polarine and ISO-VIS

STANDARD OIL COMPANY (INDIANA)

Times have changed! Faster driving speed—higher compression engines—more congested traffic—have put a heavier load on the engine.

A richer—sturdier lubricating oil is needed—engine must run.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana), always geared to anticipate changing conditions, has kept Iso-Vis and Polarine abreast of development. These two good oils are up to the minute—both do a good job.

Polarine is the standard motor oil. It maintains a protective cushioning film of oil between frictional surfaces. Drain your crankcase every 500 miles and refill with fresh Polarine for maximum efficiency and economy.

Iso-Vis is the new type constant viscosity motor oil. It will not thin out. It lubricates thoroughly and constantly the remotest frictional surfaces. It costs a bit more and wears and wears. It costs a bit more, but its use makes frequent crankcase changes unnecessary.

Use either of these rich, smooth oils and your motor will run smoother and last longer.

CITY COOPERATES WITH TOURNAMENT OFFICIALSStreet Fronting Gvm Cleared of Snow; Lighting Arranged.

The city street commission is doing a nice bit of work on Mason street along the school property. All snow has been removed on the side toward the school buildings to make better parking space for automobiles during the tournament, and the gutter has been cleared to drain the street of water.

The lighting arrangement used on the skating rinks during the winter has been strung along the street front, making another added convenience. We also noticed today that merchants along Bridge street are decorating their windows in the school colors. There is nothing like a little cooperation.

Supt. Otterbein told us today that the committees in charge of the tournament are making an effort to send every visitor away from the city with the feeling that the Charlevoix tournament was the best ever held in the district.

ADDITIONAL LOCALS

Gwendolyn LaRue Brown, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Brown, died March 4 at Manistee, age 18 days. Brief funeral services were held from the home of Mrs. Brown's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Powers, Wednesday morning, Rev. John E. Lockyer officiating. Interment at Brookside.

The Kum-Eta lunch room has been moved from the west side of Bridge street to the former Earl restaurant. The Kum-Eta proprietors expect to have their equipment installed in time to serve visitors during the tournament on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week.

Mrs. Hugh King was hostess at her home on Antrim street Wednesday evening, the occasion being her birthday anniversary. Sixteen of her friends, former Ironton residents, were present to enjoy a pot luck supper and an evening devoted to talking over old times.

Couch Brotherton and Raymond Fox of Boyne City, were among those attending the draw for the district tournament held in the local gym Saturday afternoon. Representatives from Central Lake, Harbor Springs, Gaylord, Ellsworth and other cities to be represented at the tournament were also present.

Social a Fine Success.

The "Conundrum Social," given by the Queen Esthers last Wednesday evening, was a great success. Plenty of fun was had getting what one wanted to eat and best of all, their special offering for which the social was given, was fully realized.

ALANSON FISHERMAN
IS OPERATED UPONPhysicians Find It Necessary to Amputate Fingers and Toes.

Lewis Sweet, Alanson fisherman and guide who was so badly frozen when driven out into Lake Michigan on an ice field during the terrible blizzard of January 22, had all of his toes and the ends of his fingers removed in an operation at Petoskey hospital last Sunday. The frozen fisherman, while weak from his long suffering, stood the operation well, and Dr. John Keycraft, his physician, believes the injured members will now heal.

The man's feet were more severely injured than were his hands. The bottoms of the feet were badly frozen, but are expected to heal. The toes were frozen black and it was known for some time that they would likely all have to come off. However, his physician waited as long as possible in an effort to save as much of the feet as possible.

Appreciates Support Given.

To the People of the Thirteenth Circuit:

By your ballots you have won a splendid victory. If here and there local conditions have modified full endorsement, it is a fact that your approval has been general and complete. In several communities starting majorities were given in my favor. This entire result is due to your faithful and generous efforts. By your acts and your ballots you have placed myself under renewed obligation as sacred as your own right of franchise. You have stated clearly that our people desire of their public servants, prompt and energetic legal procedure. You are entitled to this. In all future work I need and invite the constant assistance of one and all.

I pledge you the best service within the limits of my ability.

Sincerely,
March 5, 1929. Parm C. Gilbert.

"HARD TIME" PARTY
DREW A FINE CROWD

The "Hard Time" party given by Charlevoix county officials for the benefit of the high school band Thursday evening, was a decided success both from a social and financial standpoint. Many unique costumes depicting exaggerated poverty provided much amusement and eliminated all formality. Old-time quadrilles were the main entertaining feature of the evening, although there were some newer dances. Proceeds from the affair netted the band $51.50.

UNDER THE DOME AT THE STATE CAPITOL.

Public utilities commission would be vested with control over the transportation of natural gas and crude oil, by two companion measures, while the conservation commission would be set in control of the extraction, or severance of either of these two deposits.

One of the bills, which came from the desk of Sen. Chester M. Howell of Saginaw, would impose a severance tax of 2 per cent a month on all oil and gas operators. The tax would be levied on the "gross cash value of the total monthly production." A companion measure would confer the title and duties of Director of Wells on the Director of Conservation.

The moneys so collected would be divided so that the state would get one-half, the county in which production was being made would get one-fourth, while the city or township concerned would get the remaining one-fourth. The measure as originally introduced by the Saginaw senator would have fixed the severance tax at 3 per cent but this was changed in committee.

Each member was also required to furnish a sample of their favorite recipe, the samples composing the refreshments served at the close of the business meeting.

Birthday Party.

Miss Jane Brady entertained 20 of her friends Monday afternoon, the occasion being her 10th birthday. The afternoon was spent in games, followed by a very delightful lunch which centered, of course, about a beautifully decorated cake. The small hostess received many lovely gifts and a pleasant time was had by all.

A Parable

One time there was a fellow who thought himself a pretty good business man.

He went out a fishing one day and to get out of a hard rain crawled in a hollow log. The rain made the log swell so he couldn't get out. He thought he was a goner and got to thinking about his past.

Says he, to himself—"Here I am forty-five years old. Had lots of chances in my day and let most of them get away. Haven't a penny's life insurance—no savings account—don't even own my home."

Well, sir, don't you know that feller kept a thinking and the more he thought the smaller he felt—until at last he crawled out of the little end of the log and went home a different man!

Tires for the new Ford are specially made to give long wear

WHEN the new Ford was designed, it was immediately apparent that a new tire would have to be made to match the car's performance. It was distinctly a new problem, for here was a car with quicker acceleration, greater speed and more braking efficiency than any car of similar size or weight.

So that every Ford owner might be assured of maximum tire mileage at the lowest cost, the Ford Motor Company devoted many months to research and experiment in conjunction with the leading tire manufacturers.

A specially certain design for the new Ford tire was developed. It was a specially designed tire, with a special tread pattern, a special rubber compound, and a special construction. It was a tire that was built to last, and to give the longest wear.

When punctures come, as they will with any tire, you will find the Ford dealer particularly well-equipped to make repairs quickly and at small cost. See him, too, for replacements. Then you will be sure of getting the best Ford tire according to definite Ford specifications.

Though the Ford tires are designated as 30 x 4.50, they have the resiliency and air space of much larger tires because of the drop center rim of the steel-spoke wheels.

For best results, the tires on the new Ford should be kept inflated to an air pressure of 35 pounds and checked regularly to insure this pressure all the time. This is important. Low inflation breaks down the sidewalls of a tire. By causing overheating, it also destroys the rubber that acts as an insulator, with consequent separation of the cord.

At the end of each 5000 miles, when you have the front wheels packed with grease, it is a good plan to have the wheel alignment checked. This will prevent premature wear.

When punctures come, as they will with any tire, you will find the Ford dealer particularly well-equipped to make repairs quickly and at small cost. See him, too, for replacements. Then you will be sure of getting the best Ford tire according to definite Ford specifications.

Raising the Family-

Saying something and swearing to it are different propositions

UNDER THE DOME AT THE STATE CAPITOL.

Great gusts of legislative wind whistled through the corridors of the state capitol last week, without, however, budging the ship of state from the sand bars of disagreement, on which the figurative vessel has been shoaled for nine weeks. Facing the 10th week of its existence, the 55th Michigan legislature, with nothing of outstanding importance actually completed, threatens to be one of the longest sessions in history rather than a short one, as was hoped by leaders when that body assembled in Lansing.

While the present legislature developed speed in the matter of setting important problems before its two houses early in the session, the great mass of legislation pertaining to crime code revision, financial programs and taxation theories, has this far indigested, while leaders of the administration and the opposition have made cautious nibbles around the edges. In point of actual measures signed by the governor, this legislature, on paper, has made more progress than that of 1927, but the character of the public acts thus far created, contrasted with the gravity of the problems as yet unsolved, cause the unfavorable comparison for this year's session.

Gov. Fred W. Green is the first governor in the history of Michigan, so far as can be recalled, to take unto himself the double burden of two separate and distinct financial problems. Ordinarily the fights develop over the matter of appropriations. This year, however, interest has been centered on the state institutional building program sponsored by the governor, and which was designed to be handled by special taxation, over and above the regular appropriations, which, this session, total about $60,000,000.

The House of Representatives has voted down the senate measure which would allow the state administrative board to spend $20,000,000 to be provided by a bond issue that was to have been put up to the voters in April. The House vote lacked 20 supporters of the senate measure, which was given the backing of the governor and his administration this week, to get its approval.

Thus, temporarily, the question of meeting what the governor terms an emergency in the building needs of certain state institutions has been killed. The House has undone what the Senate began last week, and the governor is still feeling around for some means of getting those millions he claims are needed.

In a message to the House this week, supporting the Senate measure to submit a bond issue, the governor indicated that a special session might well be called to determine a way of meeting the building expense providing the voters were to approve the bond proposal next month, but this suggestion met with no great amount of enthusiasm on the part of the legislators, as indicated in their reception of the message which they accepted with a vote of only 47 in favor of the bond proposal and 46 against it. Sixty-seven votes were required to adopt it.

The crime code, with amendments taking the liquor law violations and other felonies termed less heinous out of the life imprisonment provision, has been adopted to meet the demands of the governor, the attorney general and the prosecuting attorneys of the state, but the issue of fixing the penalties for liquor law violations remains a matter of deep seated controversy in both houses.

General apathy throughout the state toward capital punishment was indicated when only three women and eight men appeared before the senate judiciary committee Tuesday to testify in the case of a man charged with the murder of a woman.

Public hearing on the matter of bills providing for this penalty in one form or another, and under different circumstances, are reposing in that committee.

Of six bills passed in the senate Wednesday afternoon, four are of one general classification, dealing with the exploitation of gas and oil deposits in the Muskegon area. The object of the measures is to prevent proceeds from this area's natural deposits from being taken entirely by operators in that district.

Management and control of county fair grounds would be vested in the county boards of supervisors, who would be authorized to appoint a committee to exercise this control, by a measure from Sen. Tony Aeh-arl, which was passed on to the house from the senate Wednesday afternoon.

The senate, in its Monday night session, passed Sen. Herbert J. Rush-ton's appropriation by which the state would advance $200,000 in the next two years, for the partial payment of advertising bills contracted by state tourist and resort associations who use space in national magazines and other agencies for the advertisement of the state's vacation advantages.

Charles W. Richardson of Marquette, secured passage in the senate of his measure by which the attorney general would be empowered to investigate the records and books of school districts or townships. The name of Orion, Oakland county will be changed to Lake Orion, if voters of that village approve the measure passed Monday evening in the senate. The bill was sent to the house.

Quotation for the Week
"The real object of education is to give the children resources that will endure as long as life endures."
—Sydney Smith.

The sixth grade wishes to acknowledge the beautiful plant presented to us by the Edwards Green House.

Latin News

The Latin II class has started the second book in Caesar, where he designs a campaign against the Belgians. We find that the second book is easier to translate than the first book.

The students in Latin I are studying the third declension of nouns.

The Band

The high school band played excellently at the Pellston-Charlevoix basketball game last Wednesday evening. Great improvement has been shown in this school year. This is due to a great extent to the fine leadership of the bandmaster, Mr. TerWee. The boys are eagerly awaiting their suits, which will arrive Wednesday.

The members of the band have been practicing very hard lately, so they can whip their pieces into shape for the band tournament to be held at Traverse City. They have put much energy into a piece entitled, "The American Patrol," which they expect to play at Traverse.

First Grade

We were delightedly surprised when Mr. Young showed us moving pictures of our band one afternoon last week. The pictures were taken by Mr. Young at the time of the teachers' institute this fall, when we appeared in our uniforms for the first time. Since that time we have played for the Parent-Teachers' meeting, the junior high school, the Eastern Star play and several of the grade rooms.

In economies after one of the students has giggled for 40 minutes. Mr. Coleman: Miss Kelderhouse, you are excused.

Clara K.: Well, what for?
Mr. Coleman: For the rest of the period.

English Department

The students in English II are greatly interested in searching out the causes for the writing of the American literature of today. Much more printed matter is being turned out, and it is for the American people to select the proper and lasting material.

We find that the world war has been the cause of a great deal of fiction, poems, histories, essays and letters. "Private Peet," the impressive lecturer we had with us this fall, has written a very interesting book called "Over the Top," which tells of his own experiences in the war.

The people are better educated than they used to be. Literature along this line is brought out many times in magazines. There are articles on the bringing up of children and on many other subjects which further the education of the people.

There have been many inventions and scientific discoveries which have caused much literature to be written.

Aviation is the cause of writing, especially in newspapers and magazines. Lindbergh has caused a lot of excitement which has been widely written of in newspapers.

Each student takes each of these canes separately and reports on them, and we find them very interesting.

1st student: How are you getting along in basketball?

2nd: Oh, fine. My opponent never makes a basket.

1st student: Who is your opponent?

2nd student: The stationary guard.

Students Listen to Inauguration

The students of C. H. S. who were in their classes at 9:15 Monday morning, were started to hear the tramp of many feet hurrying down the stairs. Believing that it was a fire drill, they quickly left their classes and rushed out doors. To their surprise they found their classmates racing to the gym. Instantly jumping to conclusions they decided there was to be an entertainment, so they followed as quickly as possible.

When the noise had ceased, their attention was attracted by a radio which had been installed by Wood Brothers on the stage. The students were able to hear the inauguration of President Hoover and Vice President Curtis very well throughout the whole gym. We certainly appreciate the kindness of Wood Bros. for bringing their radio set to the gym.

In their last two games the Charlevoix quintet downed Pellston and Boyne City by scores of 46 to 12 and 15 to 7. Charlevoix plays Boyne Friday night in the tournament.

The students of Charlevoix high school thoroughly enjoyed the last number of the lyceum course Monday evening. The Kilmery Colleen were the performers and a hilarious evening was enjoyed by the audience.

County Normal Notes.

The County Normal class and the training room are looking for an early spring. Blue birds have already presented themselves in the two rooms.

This week is the last week of the second quarter of county normal work. After the basketball tournament, which gives the class a short vacation, everyone will be ready to take up the new subjects of the third quarter of school.

The fourth and sixth grades of the training room have decorated the board in front of their room. These are of varied designs and color.

The County Normal class was pleasantly surprised Monday morning when they were invited to the gymnasium to hear the inaugural speech of President Hoover and Mr.

the entertainment by placing one of the latest models of radio on the stage.

The Normal class has started a geography museum. It promises to be very interesting and educational. Come and see it. No admission charged.

The people in the training room are very busy. Each class is working out a project reviewing certain sections of the last term's work.

COMMUNICATION

Editor of the Courier:

There are over one hundred radios in the city of Charlevoix and several thousand listeners (when they can hear). But just when the reception is coming in best, some furnace starts up and spoils the program. Today is Sunday and I have been trying to get some of the sermons that are broadcast from different stations. Just when I get interested in the sermon a furnace starts up and spoils the whole thing.

Then someone tunes in on a station with a squealing set, seemingly trying to see just how much noise he or she can make. Sometimes they will swing the dial back and forth for a half minute or more.

It is to try to make someone else stop listening in. When two or three stations are broadcasting on the same wave length there is a hum that cannot be helped and the person who tries to drive someone else off the line is working under a wrong impression and should have sense enough to know better.

Detroit is getting up an ordinance to prohibit the nuisance and I think it would be a good thing for the city council to pass an ordinance likewise.

At the present time there are about a half dozen oil furnaces in the city. Some have a way of cutting out the noise after about a half minute after they are started. This is not so bad, but there are others that make a noise all the time they are burning.

Say, you radio bugs, why not get together and get a petition to the council, asking them to help us out.

A Disgusted Radio Fan.

WHY 3-BEARING CRANK- SHAFT IS EXPLAINED

Local Chevrolet Dealers Answer
Critics on Subject.

Before we can say that a 3-bearing crankshaft is good or bad, we must consider its relationship to the rest of the automobile. A three bearing, four bearing, or a seven bearing crankshaft by itself means nothing.

Naturally a 3-bearing crankshaft is simpler than a 4-bearing or 7-bearing crankshaft and, therefore, it is the most desirable, if it does satisfactorily the work for which it is intended.

In developing the new six-cylinder motor, Chevrolet engineers took all these questions into consideration and decided that the simple 3-bearing crankshaft was best for the purpose when provided with the large bearings used.

Automobile manufacturers who have found it necessary to use more than three bearings on the crankshaft have done so because their motor has a long stroke and uses a rear axle gear ratio that makes it a high speed engine.

In the new six-cylinder Chevrolet engine, a short stroke is used, and with the present axle ratio fine performance is obtained at a very low engine speed. This design was selected because they wanted the minimum of piston travel with the long life and high second hand value which results.

The hundreds of thousands of miles of testing that have been given the cars on the proving ground show no bearing failures, which proves that the engineers were correct in the simple, effective design that they arranged for.

Mary Berg was born in East Jordan on September 25, 1892, and attended school and grew to womanhood there. On May 7, 1925, she was married to Thomas Copping by Rev. A. M. Hootman of Potoskey. Previous to her marriage she taught school in this region for several years and until the time of her illness was teaching in the Carpenter school, and was a cheerful and willing worker in the Presbyterian church and Sunday school at Bay Shore.

Besides the husband and her mother, Mrs. Mary Berg, who resides on Emmet street, Potoskey, she is survived by four sisters, Miss Ann Berg of Potoskey, Mrs. L. C. Monroe of Muskegon, Mrs. Ward Kille of Gaylord and Mrs. Ida Bashaw of East Jordan.

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "Then said Jesus unto them again, Verily, verily, I say unto you, I am the door of the sheep" (John 10-7).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, "Jesus established in the Christian era the precedent for all Christianity, theology, and healing. Christians are under as direct orders now, as they were then, to be Christlike, to possess the Christ-spirit, to follow the Christ-example, and to heal the sick as well as the sinning" (p. 138).

Graceful Figure Wins Movie Role.

The perfect figure and superb dancing grace which brought Louise Brooks fame on the stage and the opportunity for a screen career, was responsible, in a large measure, for her selection to play the role of "The Canary" in Paramount's "The Canary Murder Case," which will open Saturday for two days at the Palace Theatre.

S. S. Van Dine, mysterious author of this best selling detective story, describes Margaret Odell, "The Canary," as "the most beautiful, the most tantalizing and the most expensive plaything busking in the glow of Broadway's midnight sun."

In "The Canary Murder Case," Miss Brooks is the featured figure in a gorgeous stage presentation which includes a chorus of 70 girls. In addition to unusual demands upon acting skill, the role also required that its portrayer display a figure which easily put in the shadows those of 70 of the most beautiful girls the cast-iron department of the Paramount

CORRESPONDENCE EVELINE ORCHARD.

Pauline Ziska has been ill and unable to attend school the last two weeks.

Twin Bowen and Wallace Kemp got their ice put up just before the snow-plow came.

Frank Kiser acted as mail man Saturday and walked to town and back to get our mail.

One consolation in being snowed in is that dunning letters can't reach you, and you can't pay.

We neglected to report last week that a fine baby boy had arrived at the home of Ames Nasson.

Isolated from town by snow, we feel we are a part of the "Byrd expedition." Maybe it's a "lark."

Dale Kiser and Gabriel Thomas went to Charlevoix on skis Saturday to see the basketball tournament.

Wallace Kemp went to Phelps with a load of cream last Saturday, as the roads to East Jordan were impassable.

Russell Thomas expects to return from Flint the last of March. He will remain here then as he will be employed at Eveline Orchard's next summer again.

When the daily newspaper does not come, and the radio does not work, the only way we can get a weather report is that our corns hurt when the weather changes.

The teachers from Ironton and Three Bells schools replied favorably to our suggestion that Township Day be observed at this place. Advance would rather go to Mountain or Ironton, but are willing to abide by the decision of the majority. Mountain and Star are yet to be heard from.

About 30 families, not including Ironton and vicinity, are put to a great inconvenience by our road between Charlevoix and East Jordan not being kept open in the winter months, as is No. 88 and the Charlevoix-Boyne City division. It seems fair as long as the people living on the "stone road" are doing their share toward providing snow removal funds, that their road should be kept open also. It ought not to be any more difficult than the work on the other roads mentioned. Snow removal on M-88 appears to be done quite satisfactory by the truck snow plow. Perhaps a gentle hint to the state highway commission might help some. We were all elated at having the tractor plow open the road last week and hope they will get busy and keep it open. No mail as yet, though and no people will get to town until this is done. Farmers are out of groceries and other provisions and are unable to market cream, butter and eggs, of which they have a big supply. Eveline Orchard's neighborhood is one of the finest farming regions in the state, and if the farmers are to be kept on their farms, they must receive some consideration from the state highway commission in keeping with their duty of furnishing snow removal funds which are being directed to other localities.

Marjorie Knudsen is able to attend school again.

Wallace Kemp has been putting up ice at his place. The ice is about two feet thick.

Pentecostal prayer meeting was held at the home of Merion Best last Thursday evening.

Mrs. Hugh King has been packing household goods for moving to her other house the past week.

Caroline Peterson is convalescing from her recent illness. Dr. King of Charlevoix, gave medical assistance.

Pentecostal Sunday school was held last Sunday at the home of Wilbur Spidel. There was an attendance of 29. The attendance is increasing. Everyone invited to these services.

Rev. Mattson preached a fine sermon Sunday on church unity. Sermon was on "The Church as a Living Organism."

Everyone should avail themselves of the opportunity of hearing a good sermon.

HAPPY LADY FREE OF RHEUMATISM AFTER 15 YEARS

Former Sufferer Gratefully Pays Glowing Tribute to Merits of Famous Konjola.

MRS. ADELAIDE WRIGHT

"How happy I am to be able to endorse this master medicine Konjola," said Mrs. Adelaide Wright, 25 Spencer street, Battle Creek, Michigan. "What joy has been given me, what wonder health can never be described in mere words. For the last fifteen years I suffered from stomach trouble and rheumatism. I was not able to eat a meal without suffering intensely afterward. Gas bloating was prevalent. But the rheumatic pains were worst of all. They settled in my arms, limbs, and shoulders. Often I thought I would not be able to endure the suffering any longer. It was a very discouraging situation."

"But Konjola then came into my life, and certainly made a most remarkable change. This modern medicine went right to work on my ailing organs, and before I hardly knew what was happening I was feeling much better. The stomach symptoms grew less severe, and then vanished altogether. Now the rheumatism has ended and I haven't the slightest pain in my whole body. To think that a single medicine could do all this! It sounds almost unbelievable, but every word is the truth. Konjola is, indeed, the master medicine of them all."

down and he was obliged to leave it there on the ice.

Gus Mielke and Edwin Belfry left with the mail carriers Friday morning. They will spend a few days at Cheboygan at the home of Capt. C. J. Allers and family, then they will go to Charlevoix on business.

A very pleasant evening was enjoyed Saturday by about 20 guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Cull. A very nice lunch was served and at midnight the guests departed, all agreeing that the evenings are too short.

Miss Dorothy Cornell left on Saturday for Ann Arbor, where she will be employed for some time.

We hear that the Grangers are getting up a play to be put on in the near future. Watch for further announcement.

Dr. Armstrong was called to see Mrs. Clarence Beattie, who was seriously ill on Saturday, but is much better at present writing.

A good congregation attended church services on Sunday, and heard a fine sermon by Rev. Stanford. His subject was "Purity."

The terrific wind of last Wednesday night completely demolished the barn on the old Roach farm, besides doing some damage to telephone lines. It also fixed the newly plowed roads, making the State road nearly impassable.

Several of the citizens here attended the Rystra sale near Atwood last Wednesday.

Mrs. George Light and son, George Jr., visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wagner of Charlevoix, last Sunday.

The terrific snow and wind storm of last Wednesday and Thursday blocked our roads again, it being impossible for our Courier to reach us until Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ethan Jelliffe, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. William Jelliffe of Atwood, visited Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Stafford last Tuesday, honoring Mrs. Stafford's birthday. In the evening Mrs. Stafford entertained several of her lady friends to a six o'clock dinner, after which the guests enjoyed music and playing cards.

It was not Frank Richardson's plans to give an all-night party last Wednesday night, honoring his birthday, but on account of the storm coming after the arrival of his gentlemen friends, he insisted that they remain until daylight. During their stay they enjoyed cards and radio music and delightful refreshments, and at day break the guests left for their homes after thanking him for his fine hospitality and wishing him any more happy birthdays.

Spring Time.

Spring time has come to us at last. The cold wind has ceased to blow; The snow will melt, so very fast. When the south winds begin to blow.

The stream comes out of its cold ice-bound.

And begins to twinkle with a merry sound;

The sun comes out to wipe its eye. When Jack Frost begins to die.

The robins and blue birds soon will be here, Sitting and singing on their lofty boughs;

And what do you think next will appear? Nothing but the sweet-smelling flowers.

This poem was composed by Ralph Deboe, one of the pupils in the Norwood school, and was sent by the teacher, Mrs. Lashbrook, for the Courier.

What Twin Ignition Does

THE New Nash Twin-Ignition motor has two big aircraft spark plugs for each cylinder, instead of the ordinary single plug, as you can see in the simplified diagram above.

Both plugs fire simultaneously. The gas vapor is ignited at two points instead of the usual one. One effect is quicker combustion, which produces more power, more speed, much faster acceleration.

Another result is, more uniform combustion, which helps to create the very noticeable smoothness and rhythm of Nash motor performance.

And still another result of Twin Ignition is more efficient combustion, which prevents wasted fuel.

With Twin Ignition, instead of single ignition, higher compression is practical, and the same Nash motor produces 9 1/2 more horsepower, 5 miles an hour more speed, and 2 extra miles from every gallon of gasoline you buy.

FLASH
THE LEAD DOGBy
George Marsh

Then, forgetting the cocked gun in his hands while he nipped at his dog, Brock's heart suddenly stopped, as the husky sprawled helplessly in his shoulders in the jaws of death.

With a sob the boy thrust his rifle forward to shoot, but in his haste at the sprawling dog, Brock had left his throat open to the jaws of death. As his fingers ripped the husky's neck, Flash's long snout snatched up an upward thrust on the exposed neck of the struggling puppy, opening a deep gash.

Trembling with battle lust, Flash started his head as he shook and wrenched his front paw. At last, satisfied, the wounded husky stood proudly over his kill, his thick tail curved above his back, and in the manner of his wolfish forebears howled his triumph and his challenge over the frozen forest. On his knees, at the side of his dog, an overjoyed but haggard boy, Brock, stared at the raw puppy, his face pale.

"You old son-of-a-gun, you! You killed him in the night! My Flash pup!" and with two great tears of emotion frozen on his white-burned cheeks, Brock, McCalm, poured into the once marriage with a boy and a dog understood.

The slashes in Flash's neck and shoulder were painful but not dangerous, still, if neglected, would soon stiffen in the increasing cold, crippling his forebears. So, drawing his sled, for the wounded neck of the dog could not bear the collar, Brock hastened to the lean-to camp and started a fire to cook supper and heat water. First washing out the wounds, while Flash whimpered with pain as he licked the hands which hurt him, Brock then bandaged the puppy's neck and shoulders with strips from an extra shirt. But as he ate his supper of caribou stew, the boy's face grew grave. It would be days before the wounded puppy could travel the twenty miles back to camp, and the food on the sled would last him but two. It meant leaving the dog in camp and finding "deers."

Before dawn, Brock left the disappointed Flash at the camp, fastened to a tree by a log, for his wounded neck would bear no collar, while he started to look for caribou. As the eastern sky grayed, then turned to a bitter blue, Brock, with his hood over his face, shivered in a clump of scrub spruce on the edge of a muskeg that reached away into the shadow. Here, at dawn, the caribou, if there were any in the vicinity, would come to dig the snow with their round-toed hoofs from the white reindeer moss which grows on the barrens of the north. Starting slowly from the forest at his right, Brock's eyes swept the barren. In the dim light he could see but a few hundred yards into the snowy plain, but earlier have poor eyes and if they were there, he knew he could hardly stalk them upwind, while later, after sunrise, it would be more difficult.

Brock waited until the sun lifted to turn the expanse of snow before him into a shimmering plain of fire. It was no use; there were no deer within sight. After breakfast he would make a wide circle and follow the trackless tracks he could find, for he had resolved not to leave Flash and go back to the main camp for help.

When he had heated and skinned out the fur which he had brought in the night before, he talked to his dog in a restless attempt to soothe him in his disappointment at being left up in camp when Brock took the trail.

He spent another day on the trail of the caribou, but, although he saw a band crossing the horizon at a great distance and followed numerous fresh trails, he never came up with them.

He was approaching his camp and wondering if Flash had broken loose by gnawing his wire mesh, when he was surprised by a chorus of yelps.

"Hello, there! Got worried, did you?" he called to his partner.

The dogs of the team, wired to separate trees, joined Flash in a vociferous welcome.

"Hello, Kuma, Yellow-Eye, Silt-Ear, old socks! How're the pups?" Then not seeing a line in the hole in the snow and receiving no answer from Gaspard, he knew that his partner had arrived early and was off on a hunt of his own. Brock built up the fire and started a good supper with found on his previous hunt, as he had dash-filled the spruce with purple shagwags, the sleeping dogs waked to the crack of snowshoes on the dry

November snow.

"Well, you old villain!" cried Brock, as Gaspard appeared, doubled under the tentation and humbug of a yearling caribou. "I hunted for two days and didn't get a shot, and you go out and get one in an hour!"

Gaspard tilted his heavy head into the snow—later to be strung up out of the reach of the dogs. "Well," he said with a grin, "what you do to poor Flash?"

Brock described the fight with the wolf.

"So that pup kill the old wolf, eh? Eet lak' good dog to do dat. When you not come home one sleep back, I think you hurt, mebbe."

"I know you would show up looking for me," replied Brock, his eyes lighting with affection for his partner, "but Flash was too sore to travel, and I was afraid of wolves finding him here or I would have come back for grub."

Eating a hearty supper, the boys sat by the hot fire of birch while Gaspard smoked a pipe of company pipe-grass. After a silence, the half-breed blew a cloud of smoke from his mouth and said: "I see yer strange thing one sleep back. I cross trail of two wolf."

"What was strange in that?" queried Brock.

"One wolf had once free toe on left hind foot."

"Tough. In trap, sometimes, but whose trap?" Brock was interested. "That wolf was a dog," announced the other, quietly.

"A dog? What makes you think so, Gaspard?"

"Because my father had a dog who mak' a track lak dat—wid her left hind foot."

"Your father?" Brock gazed intently into the somber features of his friend. "You say your father had a dog shy a toe? Gee, that's strange! But how could she be traveling with a wolf? The wolves would kill her, of course," he demurred.

"No, I have hear of such thing."

"You mean she might have mated with a wolf?"

"A-mah."

"And you're sure it was her track?"

"I would know eet anywere."

Brock thrilled at the possibilities of the situation. A dog of the lost Pierre Leclair—alive in the headwater country! "Then your father must have been right here—last winter?" he said, excitedly.

Slowly the half-breed rose, and dropping his mitten on the thing which he had to the neck of his caribou-skin capote, drew his skinning knife from his sash. Dramatically thrusting the hand gripping the knife above his head, he spoke, as if taking an oath, while the younger youth sat wide-eyed.

"Eet dese men are een dis countree, before de snow fade een April, I weel mak dem tell me how he died."

The fixed purpose, the bitter hatred, in the face of his friend, as the firelight touched his knotted features, filled the youth who watched with awe.

Brock knew that Gaspard Leclair would never start on the trail home without casting his mind as to the fate of his father. It certainly looked like an exciting winter if these people were north of the big lake. It might be that Gaspard and Brock McCalm, also, would leave their homes in the Yellow-Leg country. Involuntarily, Brock shivered at the gloomy thought.

"But how are you going to make them tell?" demanded Brock.

For a long space Gaspard's half-shut eyes stared into the fire. Then he said: "Eet I find one alone, on here trapline, dere are way to mak' them talk." And he again drew his skinning knife, and suggestively ran a calloused thumb along its edge.

A few days later, Gaspard and Brock, leaving their dogs wired to trees at camp to avoid their yelping, started on a two-day's scout through the country to the north of the big lake. Obsessed by the discovery of the dog tracks in the snow, the memory of his father gave Gaspard no rest. And, moreover, for their own safety it was necessary to learn if the men who had made the tracks on the lake shores were still in the country.

Creeping the upper end of the lake ten miles to the west, for they had no intention of leaving a trail across the white level which could be detected from the ridges to the north, Gaspard and Brock traveled through the back country. But that night as they dug a fire hole in the heart of a spruce swamp and roasted their caribou steak, they were in frank disagreement.

At the sudden click of snowshoes in his rear, Brock turned his head as a heavy body catapulted into his back, hurling him face down in the soft snow. Through his startled brain flashed the thought of Pierre Leclair, as, gasping for breath, he thrashed desperately with arms and legs, man, acted to his snowshoes, to break the grip which held him from the rear.

Half-frozen in the snow, with no purchase of solid ground beneath him, while he floundered, struggling for a grip on the unseen foe on his back, through Brock's shuddering brain flashed the realization that his assailant had not killed him as he leaped—that he was trying to take him alive. Then he remembered the words of his father: "If Gaspard proved to be right and they not some of these hunters, what would happen? Would they attack them on sight or attempt to drive them from the country by threats? Or would they appear friendly, only to track them later to their camp and deal with them as they must have dealt with the missing Pierre Leclair?"

For the first time since leaving Hungry House, Brock felt a touch of homesickness—a desire to see his father and mother and the children in the little fur post at the mouth of the Starving, two hundred lonely white miles to the south. And if any thing should happen to him and Gaspard, at the post they would never know until June, when the canoe they waited for failed to return.

But the feeling of isolation the momentary desire to see the faces of those he loved, soon left the boy who had inherited from a line of hardy, adventurous forebears a superb body and a fighting spirit. From Kapskan to Starving river there were no hot ter game shots than Gaspard and him self. If these strange hunters should attempt openly to drive the partners from Starving river out of the country, they had a surprise awaiting them.

In the morning the two scouts worked over the ridges to the eastward, with the purpose of crossing the outlet of the great lake and so returning to their home ratings. By noon, they had put many miles of forest and barren behind them without crossing a trail.

"Gaspard, I don't believe they're in this—what in thunder do you say?" suddenly demanded Brock, as his friend stopped in his tracks, his narrow eyes fixed on a small jack pine.

Pointing with mittened hand at the tree, Gaspard quietly said: "Ax work. De trail ees snowed over."

"By golly, you're right!" agreed the surprised Brock, shuffling to the place and inspecting the gnarled trunk. "Not many weeks old, either."

"Now, what you say?" grimly demanded the half-breed.

Brock shook his head. The joke was on him. "Oh, you're right—as usual," he admitted with a twisted smile. "They're here, these people; but they don't seem to hunt near the lake."

Shortly the scouts reached the edge of a wide barren, and in order to learn whether anyone had entered it since the last fall of snow, agreed to separate, and, following the scrub, meet on the farther side.

Parting the skin case of his rifle into his shoulder pack, Brock pumped a shell from the magazine into the barrel of the 20-30, loosened his knife in its sheath on his belt, and started. The winter on the Yellow-Leg was growing exciting. What if he walked into a couple of these strange Indians? What would he do?

Well, he decided, as he crept along on his snowshoes over snow dry as sand, the loaves crossing each other with a click audible for a hundred yards in the slushing air, he would halt them in time, and wait for their next move. But he had his right mitten off and his gun cocked!

After a few miles, the thrill in the possibility of meeting the strangers, or of finding their trail, wore off. Gaspard was prejudiced by the death of his father. Because the older Leclair had come to grief somewhere in this country, and there were not people wintering to the north, he took it for granted that they had a hand in his disappearance. But it was only a guess—just a guess. Yes, thought Brock, as he trooped his gun in a young spruce and knelt on a snow shoe to tighten a loose heel, though he and Gaspard would probably never so much as see these strange—

At the sudden click of snowshoes in his rear, Brock turned his head as a heavy body catapulted into his back, hurling him face down in the soft snow. Through his startled brain flashed the thought of Pierre Leclair, as, gasping for breath, he thrashed desperately with arms and legs, man, acted to his snowshoes, to break the grip which held him from the rear.

Parting the skin case of his rifle into his shoulder pack, Brock pumped a shell from the magazine into the barrel of the 20-30, loosened his knife in its sheath on his belt, and started. The winter on the Yellow-Leg was growing exciting. What if he walked into a couple of these strange Indians? What would he do?

Well, he decided, as he crept along on his snowshoes over snow dry as sand, the loaves crossing each other with a click audible for a hundred yards in the slushing air, he would halt them in time, and wait for their next move. But he had his right mitten off and his gun cocked!

After a few miles, the thrill in the possibility of meeting the strangers, or of finding their trail, wore off. Gaspard was prejudiced by the death of his father. Because the older Leclair had come to grief somewhere in this country, and there were not people wintering to the north, he took it for granted that they had a hand in his disappearance. But it was only a guess—just a guess. Yes, thought Brock, as he trooped his gun in a young spruce and knelt on a snow shoe to tighten a loose heel, though he and Gaspard would probably never so much as see these strange—

At the sudden click of snowshoes in his rear, Brock turned his head as a heavy body catapulted into his back, hurling him face down in the soft snow. Through his startled brain flashed the thought of Pierre Leclair, as, gasping for breath, he thrashed desperately with arms and legs, man, acted to his snowshoes, to break the grip which held him from the rear.

Half-frozen in the snow, with no purchase of solid ground beneath him, while he floundered, struggling for a grip on the unseen foe on his back, through Brock's shuddering brain flashed the realization that his assailant had not killed him as he leaped—that he was trying to take him alive. Then he remembered the words of his father: "If Gaspard proved to be right and they not some of these hunters, what would happen? Would they attack them on sight or attempt to drive them from the country by threats? Or would they appear friendly, only to track them later to their camp and deal with them as they must have dealt with the missing Pierre Leclair?"

For the first time since leaving Hungry House, Brock felt a touch of homesickness—a desire to see his father and mother and the children in the little fur post at the mouth of the Starving, two hundred lonely white miles to the south. And if any thing should happen to him and Gaspard, at the post they would never know until June, when the canoe they waited for failed to return.

But the feeling of isolation the momentary desire to see the faces of those he loved, soon left the boy who had inherited from a line of hardy, adventurous forebears a superb body and a fighting spirit. From Kapskan to Starving river there were no hot ter game shots than Gaspard and him self. If these strange hunters should attempt openly to drive the partners from Starving river out of the country, they had a surprise awaiting them.

In the morning the two scouts worked over the ridges to the eastward, with the purpose of crossing the outlet of the great lake and so returning to their home ratings. By noon, they had put many miles of forest and barren behind them without crossing a trail.

"Gaspard, I don't believe they're in this—what in thunder do you say?" suddenly demanded Brock, as his friend stopped in his tracks, his narrow eyes fixed on a small jack pine.

Pointing with mittened hand at the tree, Gaspard quietly said: "Ax work. De trail ees snowed over."

"By golly, you're right!" agreed the surprised Brock, shuffling to the place and inspecting the gnarled trunk. "Not many weeks old, either."

"Now, what you say?" grimly demanded the half-breed.

Brock shook his head. The joke was on him. "Oh, you're right—as usual," he admitted with a twisted smile. "They're here, these people; but they don't seem to hunt near the lake."

Shortly the scouts reached the edge of a wide barren, and in order to learn whether anyone had entered it since the last fall of snow, agreed to separate, and, following the scrub, meet on the farther side.

AN UNPLEASANT DUTY.

A community newspaper is never pleased to report delinquencies upon the part of the people of its community. Nevertheless it has a duty to perform, and that duty is to report truthfully and honestly, the events which do occur. Listed among these are the delinquencies which appear in the docket of the justice court. This is a public record available to the public as well as to the newspaper, but it not being practicable for the public to make frequent examinations, the citizen is left to rely upon his home newspaper.

In the case of youthful offenders, exceptions are made, oftentimes in the hope that the offender may be made to see the error of his ways, and correct the fault, if that it is, without the necessity of causing additional work and sorrow upon the parents, the innocent sufferers, generally. But when a youth is given several such chances and then follows with an offense sufficiently serious to warrant waiving of jurisdiction by the probate court, the home newspaper has no option but to present the facts as it finds them.

The amusing thing is that so often the parents seem more concerned about newspaper publicity than they are about the actual commission of the offense itself. Which only goes to prove the weight and value of public opinion is comparable only to the justice handed out by the court of jurisdiction.

We are only sorry that in the discharge of our duties as a servant of the public, it is sometimes necessary to give offense to innocent parties. But then, why not get to the source of the delinquency, rather than at the medium which brings upon it the pitiless light of publicity?

Physics Department

The physics students are no longer surprised at any subject that may come up for class discussion. The possibility of having an ice pond in the summer months received due consideration. A chemical compound called "hypo" is used to make artificial skating rinks. "Hypo" is used in the movies when they want to film a skating party. Only a small quantity is necessary.

Some people will probably doubt Mr. North when he states that ice is not slippery. When you skate the pressure of the runner melts the ice and you really skate on the water. As soon as you have passed the water freezes again.

Even the girls have learned something! When two glasses stick together, in order to separate them it is sometimes necessary to break one of the glasses. "Never again," say the students of physics. Pouring cold water into the inner one or hot water over the outer one is a good remedy.

Did you ever know that heat is given off when water freezes? For every gram of water that freezes, 80 calories of heat are given off. Advantage of this statement is taken by putting tubs of water down cellar to keep fruit from freezing.

FARM POWER RATES

Science, coupled with individual and corporate initiative, is making it possible for those living on farms to enjoy practically every convenience of city life, and at less cost.

Last week the Consumers Power company reduced its power rates on rural lines by abolishing the $3 monthly meter charge. This will encourage the use of more electricity on the farms. Many tasks of drudgery will be accomplished by this modern electrical robot and the time and energy saved will enable farm households to take up more of the cultural things of life.

Corporations serve best when they help to ease the burden of farm existence. As each new convenience is added to farm life it becomes easier to persuade the succeeding generation that the greatest gain will come in staying on the farm instead of seeking city jobs.

The time is coming when nearly every farm will be lighted by electricity, electrically driven tools will supplant many of those now in use, and the dream of an agricultural class representing our highest paid class of workers will be realized.

We do not need to open great new tracts to reclamation at enormous costs when there are so many abandoned farms to be reclaimed, equipped with modern appliances and made to bloom once more in the midst of well defined and well established communities.

Let us hope for the return of those pioneer days when country life swayed the thoughts of the nation, when men learned to love clean things, think clean thoughts and practice the living of clean lives taught them by their close contact with nature. Cheap farm power will help speed that day.

GEORGE WASHINGTON

Simple and brave, his faith awake
Ploughmen to struggle with their fate;

Armed won battles when he spoke,
And out of chaos sprang the state.

Almost two centuries have elapsed since the birth of George Washington, first president of these United States of America. To the man born he elected to share the hard life of the colonists and to throw his power on the side of those brave pioneer souls battling for a new freedom.

His place as "Father of his country" remains imperishable in the archives of time. The years but serve to make his place in American history more secure.

Without Washington's faith, courage, ability and loyalty it is doubtful if independence would have been achieved within another century. He was content to give all, to accept all, in those tragic years stretching from Valley Forge to Yorktown.

Washington lives in the America of yesterday, today and tomorrow. The love of his fellow countrymen continues as the grateful tribute of a mighty nation of freemen.

We have been cheered mightily by an economist's declaration that no good business man is ever entirely out of debt.

The DAIRY

WIN AFFECTIONS OF MILKING COW

A calf should never be allowed to nurse its dam more than once or twice to get the robustness, or first milk, and it is even better for the cow to not allow the calf to nurse at all for this first milk can be fed by hand from a pail as well as the after milk. But this is done for the benefit of the cow not the calf. The cow's affection for her calf increases the longer it is left with her.

The sooner the calf is taken away the easier it is for the dairyman to get her to transfer some of this affection for her calf to him, and the more successful in doing this, the greater success will be in training the cow to yield her milk to him instead of the calf. If it is possible to transfer any of this affection to himself, then he will find it produces the greatest milk production from the cow. The cow doesn't yield milk because she likes to, or has to, but because she wants to sustain the life of her calf. Now, the right kind of a person can succeed in getting himself substituted almost entirely in the affection of the cow for her calf and if he does he is on the road to develop the cow to her full capacity as a milk producer.

Hence, the best dairyman separates the calf from the cow very soon after birth; by being kind to the cow encourage her to bestow some of her affection for her calf on him and feed the calf from a pail all he will eat until properly fattened. You will get just about as good yield from herchers can tell the difference, and you have not spoiled your cow as a milk-producing machine.

Find That Dairy Herds Are 20 Per Cent Culls

A dairy cow that fails to return $2.50 for every dollar spent on her feed, is seldom worth keeping. That means that she must produce 9000 pounds of milk each year at present prices, according to analysis of cow testing association figures in a north-eastern Ohio county.

Assuming that dairy herds in this county are typical of the dairy sections of the state, more than 20 per cent of the dairy cows of Ohio ought to be discarded, says S. M. Salisbury, animal husbandry extension specialist at the Ohio State university.

Of the 182 cows completing a full year's test, the lowest ten made an average production of 3,439 pounds of milk," he reports, "while 48 cows at the other end of the line averaged 12,740 pounds each for the same period."

"In the lowest group of ten are considered all the cows in the survey which produced less than 4,000 pounds of milk a year. This is the group that in the opinion of most men is not represented in their herds. It is not until the culls are regularly used that such cows are credited with their rightful production."

"An average of 9,500 pounds for the herd will set the lowest limit for an individual at 7,500 pounds. This should be our goal in dairy production work."

Babcock Tester Shows Yield of Butterfat

No one can tell for sure whether or not a cow is worth keeping unless he knows how much milk she yields, how much butterfat there is in her milk and how much feed she consumes, says an authority on dairying. The man who can guess these things correctly isn't blind! But it is easy to find out about a cow. If the milk is weighed at each milking, the record will tell exactly how many pounds of milk each cow gives during any lactation period. The Babcock tester, if used once each month, will disclose how the butterfat runs. And if some sort of record of the food eaten is kept, it becomes a simple matter to figure out whether or not a cow is a "faty brawler" or contributing to the

Dairy Squibs

The silo on the dairy farm is a "tower of prosperity."

Calves should have silage as soon as they begin to eat hay and grain.

If you want to make the old cow think all next winter is June plan to have some silage for her.

There are many who like the flavor and odor of vegetables, but there are not many who like them mixed with cream or butter.

Warm water is also essential for dairy cows. Milk consists of about 87 per cent water and anything which will cause the animals to consume less than the normal amount of water will cause a decrease in the milk flow.

Now is the season to look over the dairy stable and see what improvements or changes can be made that will lessen labor or increase the comfort of the cows. Less labor decreases costs and greater cow comfort increases yields and profits.

A Parable

One time there was a fellow who thought himself a pretty good business man.

He went out a fishing one day and to get out of a hard rain crawled in a hollow log. The rain made the log swell so he couldn't get out. He thought he was a goner and got to thinking about his past.

Says he, to himself—"Here I am forty-five years old. Had lots of chances in my day and let most of them get away. Haven't a penny's life insurance—no savings account—don't even own my home."

flash on the wall above them like the snap of a cold trap, with a blow that he straightened his thick arm. "Maklay!" The cry of pain passed into Brock's ear started him on. With a wrench on his belt, and with a part of his body turned to catch from the fall of his eye, the swift face of an Indian gray with pain.

Then facing his enemy, as they thrashed in the snow, the superior strength of the boy was undiminished. With his legs gripping the other's, the Cree stretched to bury his teeth in the corded neck exposed by Brock's torn sapote. But the lightning rage of the furtive youth, kindled in his strength, would not be denied. Slowly he forced the writhing Indian beneath him, then reached eagerly for the knife in the sheath at his back—but the sheath was empty.

Lifting his head as the Cree's left hand desperately groped for his throat, Brock drove a smashing uppercut into the chin of the man beneath him. Again the hand that crashed into the exposed jaw, with a shiver, the Indian lay flat on the snow. Then, as the boy of triumph snarled through his teeth and Brock's heart beat high, he heard the click of snowshoes.

"All right, Gaspard!" cried Brock, getting to his feet. "He jumped me from behind but I got him!" Then the front of the victorious boy suddenly faltered—his smile faded as he faced two advancing strangers, an Indian and a bearded white man.

"Get him!" roared the latter, as he elbowed around the body of the unconscious Cree to Brock's rear, while the Indian ran straight at the surprised boy, putting from his recent exertion his startled blue eyes watching his new enemies as he backed away from the fleeing white man. Only Flash and Yellow Eye were with him now.

Brock threw a wild glance at his rifle. It was out of reach. He began edging away, his nose clenched, but with a rush, the Cree closed in, to meet a smashing swing which knocked him into the snow. Then the white man reached Brock from the side.

Blocking the blow aimed at his face, Brock looked fiercely into the jaw of the other as they clinched and rolled in the snow.

Then the son of Andrew McCann proved the stuff of which he was made. Fighting like a demon, Brock blocked with chin jammed on chest, the fingers straining for a grip on his throat, while he wrenched an arm free to drive his fist into the other's jaw. Strong as he was, the bearded stranger could not reach the maddened boy's thick throat, nor turn him on his back.

Again, over the other's shoulder Brock's hand fist hooked into the jaw; once more the fist crashed. Brock felt the grip of his foe's arms weaken, and, with a supreme effort, tore himself free. Again his elbow lifted but the same instant two knees drove into his back, while the horn handle of a knife smashed into his head.

Twice, three times the Cree hammered the head of the defenseless lad. The knotted face of the man in Brock's arms, blurred—the snow went black; then all consciousness faded.

CHAPTER V

The Patrol of the Gray Owl.
Brock opened dazed and puzzled eyes to find himself lying on the snow where he had been knocked unconscious by the knife handle of the Cree.

From the bows of the white man, he drew himself to a sitting position. "He's up now!" said the white man, in Cree, then turned to the boy. "You're lucky, my young Blighin' cock, to come to us you did! Louis, here, wanted to put a knife into you. You sure snugged him for fair. Now shake yourself together! We got 'em all camp."

Slowly Brock's confused head cleared. Yes, he recalled, he was rightening a head throb, when they jumped him. He got the first, then the others piled on, hit him from behind on the head. The boy got to his feet and raised his hand to his swollen head. The fingers were without feeling!

Like the shock of ice water the realization of what that meant spurred Brock's gambling brain. His fingers were freezing! Groping in the snow where he had fought, he found his mittens.

"Come on now, you!" rasped the white man as the Indian started. "You behave or I'll bore you! Walk off lively now; it's late."

Brock was too dazed—too different—to answer.

Rubbing his hands vigorously with snow, then slowly bringing back the blood by putting them inside his shirt length his mittens, Brock removed the Cree, one of whom carried his rifle, while the white man brought up the rear.

As the exertion of snowshoeing in the keen air started the circulation in his numbed limbs, the clearing fog of the boy began to busy itself with his situation. Poor Gaspard! He would never know why his partner had not met him at the far side of the barrier. He would wait there, faithful old Gaspard, anxious, wondering.

As usual, Gaspard had been right. It was smoke, not haze, they had seen—smoke from the fire of those people. There was one consolation in it all; they wanted to take him alive. It would have been easy to shoot him from ambush—or knife him. And now who were they, and what would they do with him? When they made camp the white leader would show his hand, question him; and as he had not spoken to the Indians, Brock added that he would pretend complete ignorance of Cree. He might learn something.

Then, at the exclamation "Kekway!" from the leading Indian, Brock looked up to see the light of a campfire in the distance. A third Cree was waiting on the trail, with a steaming carbon stove and hot tea.

As he ate his supper, beside the fire, Brock listened intently to the chatter of the Indian. From his looks and manner of speaking, Brock decided that the bearded chief of the party was an English Canadian, and after they had eaten and lit their pipes, the white man began his examination of the prisoner.

"So you and your partner thought you'd hunt the Yellow-Leg this winter?"

"Yes," replied Brock, looking the older man squarely in the eye. "It's free country, and I ask you what you mean by jumping me this way, and what you think you're going to do with me?"

The bearded man laughed as he exhaled a cloud of smoke. "My boy," he said, "this ain't free country. It belongs to me and my partners—we were here first. And you Hudson's Bay people have got to keep out—or take the consequences."

"Who are you and your partners?" Brock demanded Brock. "And when did you become the law in this country?"

The other smiled good-naturedly at the spirit of his prisoner. He seemed to hear no ill will toward Brock. But the boy remembered Pierre Leclair. "That's telling. Who are you and yours?"

Here the imagination and Scotch shrewdness of Brock gave him an insight. "I'm not afraid to tell you," he said earnestly, "that one of my partners is Silene Leclair of Port Albany. Ever hear of him?"

At the name of the famous Silene Leclair, the white man gave an involuntary start, his eyes widened in surprise, as he repeated this news in Cree to his men.

"Another is Black Jack Desautels—ever heard of him?" The faces of his auditors, for the curious Cree had joined their chief at the fire, filled Brock with inward delight. They had indeed heard of the chief of the Albany River patrol of the provincial police—head shot and known from God's lake to Rupert House as a man without fear. Brock had certainly thrown a bomb into the camp of his captors when the grave looks they exchanged.

The older man pulled for a space on his pipe, evidently digesting the startling information that two of the oldest and most feared men in the Hudson's Bay country were sheltering on the Yellow-Leg—Silene Leclair, made of Gaspard, and head man at Port Albany, and the famous "Black Jack" Desautels; and that he, too, were there for but one purpose—the solution of the mysterious disappearance of Pierre Leclair. As Brock secretly revelled in the discovery of his captors, he wondered if he had helped rather than injured his own chances.

He was silent as the camp prepared for the night. He had his own blanket in his pack, and, when they had tied him up with rawhide, so he could not move easily without disturbing the Indians who lay on either side on the spruce boughs near the fire, he was wrapped in the robe.

With his arms and legs fettered, escape was impossible, so his thoughts ran the gamut of the events of the day.

The Rainbow

Iris came to Zeus one day, beseeching favor for a plan. To make a gift that all might say. Would bring joy to saddened man. Zeus was pleased to give her aid. And rainbow colors did enthrall. To make a necklace for the maid. As gift that was sublime. He clasped the necklace round her throat.

And looked it with a golden key. And then he stood and smiled and spoke.

All in an ecstasy of glee. When man is sad and days are dark. And joy seems far from earth. Unclasp the golden lock and start. To throw the necklace as in mirth. A bow of light will then appear. In prismatic colors in the sky. And man through all the ages dream. Will praise the Gods on high. Behold a rainbow in the sky.

The Meditations of Neptune
Said Neptune God of the sea, It's getting too dull down here for me. Something to brighten me, is what I need. I'll get a wife but, who would live in the mass of weed. Let me think would Aurora be wedded to me. No I suppose not not she. For the heavens must be a thing of beauty. And, that, yes that, is Aurora's duty. To the rainbow, beautiful Iris belong. Should I ask her, no, that would be wrong. For, how could she live in this dark sea. When it is gloomy, even to me. Well I think as this kingdom was given to me. I shall agree.

to meet its obligations. And never grumble, there, my battle is won.

AN UNFAIR TAX

Speaker Louis Ming of the Michigan legislature appears arbitrarily wedded to an admission tax on theater tickets as the best method for providing finances needed for the proposed state institutional building program.

No other tax seems to appeal to the gentleman from the north country, who has been busy the past week marshalling sufficient support in the lower house at Lansing to pass such a measure.

Before this extra burden is fastened upon the theater-going public it might not be a bad plan to find out just who is going to be called upon to pay the largest portion of this new tax.

The past eighteen months has been the most serious experienced in the history of the motion picture enterprise, which furnishes the bulk of entertainment outside the larger cities.

To ask these small theater owners to assume this tax would practically result in annihilation. Less than one-half are now operating on a full time schedule, most of them from one to three nights a week. They will be forced to pass this tax on to their customers.

The laboring classes get most of their amusement from these small community theaters. Are we going to ask them to pay this tax from their meager earnings? That's what is going to happen if Spraker Ming's tax idea is incorporated into law. To pass this tax on to those least able to pay is wholly unfair and should be vigorously opposed.

No tax plan so far brought forward would entail such enormous cost of collection, or prove more unsatisfactory. Even the federal government discovered this unfairness, abolishing amusement tax on all lower priced tickets as soon as possible following war time adjustments.

A DIFFERENCE IN TRADE

Some years ago, a man in one of the larger cities was engaged in the saloon business. Prohibition came and being an honest saloonkeeper, he quit the business.

Of course he did not like the idea of losing his trade and his investment. But he started in business again. He converted his saloon into an eating place and specialized in serving corned beef which he put into sandwiches or made into hash. Men ate it standing up. The success of one place led to the establishment of others. Thousands eat where scores drank.

And the former saloonkeeper has waxed rich. He belongs to the exclusive clubs which recognize a dispenser of corned beef, but gave the saloonkeeper a cold shoulder.

THOUSANDS OF POLES DOWN IN PETOSKEY DISTRICT.

Considerable Local Damage, Railroads and Highways Blocked; Storm Worst in Years.

What has been termed as the worst storm in many years swept Charlevoix and all Northern Michigan last Wednesday night, leaving in its wake blocked highways and rail lines, a tangle mass of electric light and telegraph wires, broken poles and debris of every description.

The storm broke suddenly at about 8:30 from the south-east, swinging to the northwest before morning. Oldtimers of the region believe the storm the most severe for a long while. Driven by a terrific wind, the snow was so thick one could not see ten feet away. Reports have been received of local citizens losing their way in the darkness and storm. A group being entertained at the Oscar Nelson home were forced to remain over night. A report of a small girl being found unconscious and nearly frozen in front of the school house was never confirmed and passed by as a bit of imagination.

Charlevoix was without electric service but a short time Wednesday evening, although the power line between here and Bellaire was down. Shortly after the storm struck, preparations were made at the steam auxiliary plant and when the Bellaire line went out service was resumed from the local plant.

Considerable damage to property was reported after the storm. Wildfield's ice house was reported unroofed. A store front window in the Birkman building, corner of Bridge and Park avenue, was blown out, while numerous sign boards were wrecked and all streets strewn with broken branches and other debris. Reports from the rural districts would indicate a heavy loss from wrecked buildings.

Charlevoix was without train service all day Thursday. This, coupled with blocked highways, caused a one-day postponement of the 26th district basketball tournament scheduled to open Thursday afternoon, US-31 between Charlevoix and Petoskey was the first highway open and some teams from the north made Charlevoix Thursday evening. Road crews worked day and night and by Saturday all highways were again open.

The Michigan Bell Telephone Co. seemed to be the heaviest loser from the storm. A thousand poles were reported down in the Petoskey district, where seven repair crews have been busy since Thursday repairing the damage. Five service trucks passed through here Sunday morning enroute north to that area. Many rural lines out of Charlevoix were down for some time after the storm. Western Union reported little damage, although when figured in dollars and cents, the telephone company's loss will mount to a high figure.

EIGHTY LOCAL BUSINESS MEN TAKE PART
Great Interest Manifest in Coming P. T. A. Performance.

Much interest is being created over a great stunt which is to take place here March 21 and 22. It is to be a "Womanless Wedding." Not a woman in it—all men. Can you imagine our business men, by magic, touch of lipstick, rouge, and eyebrow pencil, suddenly becoming beautiful girls, charming debutantes, stately matrons and vamping flappers? The only way to believe it is to see it.

A very capable director of the Simpson Levie Company of Bardonia, Ky., will arrive in our town the first of next week to direct this popular production. The P. T. A. of this place is sponsoring this affair and are hearty in their co-operation and very enthusiastic over the contemplated success. The "Womanless Wedding" is being staged all over this section by this company, and glowing reports come from other towns that packed houses greeted the performance high nights. In Petoskey a few weeks ago, 1,500 people saw this play.

It is a clean, wholesome bit of old fashioned humor that makes the old laugh young again, and the young laugh until their sides ache. In other words, it is one continuous roar of laughter. Many beautiful costumes will be worn by our local men, so plan to see the funniest thing ever witnessed in Charlevoix. Who would you choose for the beautiful blushing bride?

St. Patrick's Supper.

point man with 13 points, while Hignite counted 11. Warner scored 13 for Pellston.

Harbor Downs East Jordan.
Harbor Springs entered the finals with another easy victory Saturday night against East Jordan, winning 31 to 10. As in their earlier game with Mancelona, Harbor was slow in getting started. The score was tied at 3-all at the quarter, but from then on Harbor never was threatened. Their superior team work was pretty to watch. Winegarden was Harbor's scoring ace with 12 points. McBride made 7. Shepherd scored 5 points for East Jordan.

Charlevoix citizens certainly were proud of their high school band at the basketball tournament. Dressed in their new uniforms, the organization made a splendid appearance, and the quality of their music is to be remarked upon.

REHEARSALS BEGUN FOR "WOMANLESS WEDDING"

To Be Presented at High School Auditorium March 21 and 22

Preparations are being made for the "Womanless Wedding," which will undoubtedly be one of the outstanding dramatic and social events of the year. It will be presented Thursday and Friday evenings, Mar. 21-22, under the auspices of P. T. A. by a cast of about seventy local business and professional men. They will appear in startling roles of beautiful girls, vamping flappers, old maids and stately matrons. If business institutions seem to suffer a decline within the next few days, it will be because the captains of industry and the proprietors of stores are taking time off to study the latest Paris styles.

The education of Charlevoix business men in the art of wearing women's gowns, three-inch French heels, long earrings and many jewels has commenced. They will be taught to shift high-heeled masculine strides into graceful feminine steps, to pirouette with large feet in a small footed way, to raise naturally bass voices to lyric soprano, to weep manly tears on womanly occasions and in various ways to alter themselves so that they will fit in appearance and manner the parts they are to play. The entire cast will be announced later.

The Rebekahs will hold a baked goods sale at the Charlevoix Hardware, Saturday, March 16th. Get your Sunday dinner. Everything is sure to be good.—Adv. 1111.

Guards—Shoup, Alba; Johnstone, Ellsworth; Spaulk, Boyne Falls.

Other Tournament Done.
Warner, Pellston forward, was high point man of the tournament with 60. He was tied with Winegarden of Harbor Springs for second highest score in one game, 17 points. Shepherd of East Jordan, was high point man in a single game with 18 in the East Jordan-Mancelona contest.

Pellston featured in both games with the largest number of fouls, also the game with least fouls. In the Pellston-Ellsworth and Pellston-Alba contests, 30 fouls were called. The least number of fouls called, 11, was in the second contest between Pellston and Ellsworth.

Closest games were the Alba-Mackinaw City contest, score 15 to 14, and the Central Lake-Bellaire tilt, score 17 to 16.
Stevenson of Pellston, and Cherry of Boyne Falls, were the smallest players.

Allen, in their game with Pellston, ran the highest score, 36 to 18.

Financial Results Satisfactory.
Assuming that all those holding season tickets attended each day, Friday's attendance was 782, Saturday's 1,114 and Monday's 1,645, or a total of 3,546. There were 208 season tickets sold.

Total admission receipts amounted to $1,326.20. After $159.50 for the cost of officials, first prizes and two balls were deducted, Charlevoix received 20% or $233.34; the state athletic board 10% of $116.67; visiting teams 70% or $817.03, which figure paid 89% of the expenses of visiting teams. It is expected after consolation prizes and officials, programs, tickets and other miscellaneous expenses are paid, the local athletic association will clear about $100.

Considering adverse weather conditions, Charlevoix's tournament was a great success from every angle. Expenses of visiting teams were high.

staying over from Thursday until Monday and coming by train instead of automobile as anticipated. Road and weather conditions cut down the attendance to a great extent also.

Headed by Principal O. P. North, tournament manager, the various committees carried out their functions to a letter. The visiting crowds were well taken care of, both away from and at the gymnasium. Especial attention was given to heating and lighting at the gym and, in view of the fact no complaints have been heard from any quarter, those in charge of the event have every reason to be satisfied.

P. T. A. Play at Gymnasium Thursday and Friday Nights is Big Hit of the Year.

Everything is in readiness for the elaborate wedding which is to be staged at the high school gymnasium Thursday and Friday night. From the moment the curtain rises until the last strains of the finale, there will be few dull moments.

The guests arrive singly and in pairs, walking through the audience upon the stage. Among the most interesting early arrivals are the bride's weeping mother and comfort- ing father, Archie Livingston as the mother, displays great dramatic ability. R. F. Sloan and Frank F. Bird need no coaching as the had little brothers whom their father, D. T. McHugh, finds it hard to discipline. O. P. North as the country cousin, and Fay Bradley as Sis Hopkins, prove as comical to the audience as they do attractive to each other. Ray Hamilton as Charlie Chaplin, puts the real Chaplin to shame.

But the treat of the evening will be the bride. Dressed in a hand- made satin gown with orange blossoms and veil, her "girlish" voice is sure to charm as she takes the wed- ding vows. These are only a few of the stars that will shine.

The popular Toy Symphony Or- chestra will give several selections before the opening of the play. Re- served seat tickets are now on sale at the Central Drug store. Follow- ing is the entire cast:

CHARLEVOIX JUNIORS TO JORDAN TOURNAMENT

First Annual Junior High Basketball
Meet There Friday.

Charlevoix junior high school bas- ketball team will be represented at the first annual district junior high school tournament to be played off at East Jordan Friday afternoon and evening of this week.

Other schools entered are Alba, Boyne City and East Jordan. It was originally intended to make the tour- nament a county meet, but on ac- count of Boyne Falls' failure to en- ter, Alba was invited. A cup will be awarded the winning team, and it is planned to make the tournament an annual affair.

Preliminary games will be played Friday afternoon, with the finals in the evening, preceded by a concert by the East Jordan school band. "Tex" Buchen of Vanderbilt, former coach here, will referee the games.

MATCH DOLLARS WITH BOOSTERS

GOV. GREEN SIGNS BILL FOR ADVERTISING AID.

State Tourist Associations Must Have Continued Aid to Get In on State Money.

Now that the Rushton-Hartman bill appropriating some money for advertising has become a law, gen- eral public opinion is that the state has taken this job off the hands of the supporters of the various Tour- ist associations. Such an impres- sion is an error. The state money can only be used to help the associa- tions in proportion to the way they help themselves. In other words, if the Michigan Tourist and Resort Association spend $1.00 for adver- tising, the state will match it. If we spend nothing, Western Michigan gets no advertising. The bill in ef- fect aids the boosters interests of the state exactly in proportion to their willingness to help themselves.

The bill provides that on presenta- tion to the administrative board of receipted vouchers showing the amount of money paid out for adver- tising the advantages of any section of the state, the administrative board will pay the association one-half of the amount shown by the receipt, but in no case shall the total amount in any year be in excess of $25,000.00.

In order that the western section of Michigan take advantage of this assistance, it is necessary that the efforts of supporters of the Michigan Tourist and Resort Association be continued with even greater energy than has been exhibited in the past, because if efforts cease there is no state aid.

The authors of the bill have shown excellent wisdom in putting the bur- den of the proof upon the beneficiary. This is the first time that the state has officially recognized resort in- terests.

Secretary-Manager H. J. Gray of the Michigan Tourist and Resort As- sociation, said to county chairmen of the organization last week: "The state by the enactment of this statute help our-elves. Every dollar of sup- port is matched by a dollar from the state. A dollar's worth of effort to day is doubled in efficiency. If our effort ceases the law does not mean a thing. The wheel horses of the resort interests of the state now find their effort more fruitful be- cause they can say to prospective supporters: 'If you support the or- ganization the state will support it in equal amount. If you don't want to help us the state won't help you either. Your own earnestness to- wards stimulating the tourist and re- sort business is the barometer to state aid of this industry.'"

Birthday Party for Daughter.
Mrs. Ray Graves entertained at her home on Mason street Saturday afternoon in honor of her daughter, Miss Jenn, whose 11th birthday anniversary fell on that day. Decora- tions and favors carried out the spirit of St. Patrick's day. A pleasant af- ternoon of games was enjoyed by the eleven young guests, following which Mrs. Graves served delightful refreshments.

WATER FRONT IS PLACE OF ACTION

PREPARATIONS FOR NAVIGA-TION NOW UNDERWAY.

New Loading System for Steamer
Fred W. Green—Mail Steamer is Being Overhauled.

With Spring here and Summer just around the corner, Charlevoix's water front has taken on activity and bustle after the winter's idleness.

Capt. John Roen has a crew of 25 men putting the freighter Fred W. Green in shape of the opening of navigation. It is understood work will be started this week on the in- stallation of an endless conveyor loading and unloading system. Ma- terial has been shipped and a repre- sentative is now here to supervise the job. It is estimated the improve- ment will cost $30,000, and will greatly facilitate handling of car- goes. Radio equipment is being in- stalled and the ship generally over- hauled. The steamer Marquis Roen and tow-barge Interlocken, will un- dergo the same process.

Capt. Harold McCann has a 40- foot V-type boat under construction in the shop on the Olds property, formerly occupied by the Brady Boat Co. The new craft will be powered with a 60-horse 6-cylinder Wisconsin motor and is expected to make 18 miles an hour or better. The speed of the boat will allow Mr. McCann a greater radius for his fishing op- erations and permit longer daily runs. He expects to have building opera- tions completed by June 1.

Alfred Brown, who has charge of the local property holdings of R. E. Olds, has started work of cleaning up the Eckinger and Keller prop- erties purchased last fall. Buildings are being removed and the property will be graded and seeded up to the marine railway used by the Brady Boat Co. The building rented to Capt. Harold McCann is being re- structured and it is possible an ad- dition may be built on the smaller boathouse.

Work of getting the Beaver Is- land mail steamer James B. Sanford ready for the season's run has been started. Charles Moore of Manistee is the new engineer, and he is here on the job. Charles Gallagher, an- other member of the crew, arrived here this week.

Work has been resumed on the ad- dition to the Chicago Club boathouse and this improvement will be com- pleted before the opening of the re- sort season. Hamilton's ship yards has started their spring work and the hum of summer activity is now ap- parent.

ACTION TAKEN TO START FISH PONOS

A. OF C. GOT BEHIND MOVE AT MEETING TUESDAY NIGHT

Fitch R. Williams Spoke on Project;
Other Important Business Received Attention.

Tuesday night saw another very successful meeting of the Charlevoix Association of Commerce. Fifty- three were seated to an excellent banquet dinner served by the Pythian Sisters at the K. of P. hall.

The business session opened with a report from the advertising com- mittee, given by its chairman, Clair Webster, who is also chairman of the council advertising committee. Mr. Webster reported on the progress made by the council toward this city's participation at the out-door exposition at Chicago in May. He submitted proofs of the cover pages of a 20,000 run of booklets to be used for distribution at the expo- sition. The lay-out drew favorable comment. The design is an excel- lent one, in three colors, depicting artistically the resort advantages of Charlevoix. The matter of what to exhibit in the booth was thrown open for discussion by those present at the meeting, but drew few ideas. On motion made and passed, the asso- ciation advisory and advertising com- mittees were appointed to take im- mediate action to plan an exhibit.

Postmaster George W. Weaver gave a report on the government's contemplated air mail service to Nor- thern Michigan during the summer. It was pointed out that an adequate airport was a necessity at any city to be included in the route, and a general consensus of opinion was voiced that Charlevoix's present field on the school property was too small. It is understood a government inspec- tor will come here to look over our landing field and other sites will re- ceive consideration at that time. The association voted to give Mr. Weaver full cooperation on the matter.

Without a doubt the most impor- tant action taken at the meeting was that toward the establishment of bass and trout rearing ponds at Charle- voix. Fitch R. Williams of Elk Rap- ids, prominent Antrim county sports- man and conservationist, gave a very instructive talk on the subject. He explained how really simple and in- expensive bass propagation is, told of what had and was being done in his own county and in other places of the state. He told how bass propa- gation became started in Michigan and covered the process thoroughly. Mr. Williams had previously inter- viewed officials of the conservation department at Lansing, and brought the word that they have promised to furnish fry for the ponds and send a member of the commission here to direct the task of selecting a site and plan the preliminary work. Mr. Wil- liams pointed out that Stover (Con- erty) Creek was admirably suited for the purpose, that we had the fullest cooperation of the state, and the only thing necessary now was to get be- hind the matter and begin.

The association of commerce game and fish committee, headed by Char- les Wood, was instructed to proceed at once on the matter. As soon as the flood water stage has passed, the conservation commission will be not- ified and one or more of its members work. As soon as the site is chosen, operations will be started at once. Every person present at the meeting was greatly enthused over the proposition, which promises its success. An appropriation will be asked from the board of supervisors and other finan- cial arrangements made. We do not believe it is necessary to point out how badly fish propagation in local waters is needed at the present time, for we feel that every sportsman knows the extent our streams and lakes have become depleted. If Char- levoix and the county as a whole is to continue to advertise itself as a paradise for fishermen, steps must be taken to furnish the fish and back up our assertions.

Not the least interesting part of the evening program were the four reels of movies shown. The pictures added just the needed touch to arouse enthusiasm over the bass and trout pond proposition. The reels, obtained from the South Bend Bat- tle Co. by A. J. Usher, were enough to arouse the sporting blood of any lover of the red and reel. They were "shots" taken of a group fishing muskies and small mouth bass in Canadian waters—where fishing is really fishing. County Agent Mellen- camp furnished the machine to show the movies and Rev. John E. Lock- yer generously operated the outfit.

FATHER OF LOCAL PASTOR CALLED

EDWIN MATTSON DEAD IN MIN-NESOTA AT AGE OF 90.

Was a Civil War Veteran and Prominent in the Politics of His Chosen State.

Rev. E. G. Mattson received word on Friday, March 15, of the death of his father, Edwin Mattson, at Brock- ington, Minnesota. Mr. Mattson started west Friday afternoon to at- tend the funeral. Mr. Mattson was believed to be recovering after a week's illness, when heart failure caused. He was in his ninetieth year, born in Delaware county, Pennsylvania, May 16, 1839. At the time of his death he was serving his fourth term as postmaster of his home town of Brockington, where he has been a leading citizen since the pioneer days of the early eigh- teen eighties.

Mr. Mattson will be remembered here by a number of Charlevoix peo- ple who have met him on the occa- sions of his three visits with his son and family here.

His was a remarkably vigorous and interesting personality, who kept to the last an active mind and body, a keen interest in life, and his opti- mistic temperament. He served with courage and distinction for three and a half years in the Civil war as a member of the Second Pennsylvania Volunteer Cavalry and on the officers staff of Gen. Gregg. He was very active and influential in the political life of his adopted state of Minnesota, his home state for nearly fifty years.

He came to the end of his long and vigorous life with a mellow spirit and serene religious faith, re- won through years of struggle and perpetuating the noble spirit of the old Quaker colony in Pennsylvania from which he sprang.

He was laid to rest by the side of the helmet of sixty years of mar- ried life, who preceded him five years ago. Five children survive: Mrs. O. H. Paxson of Philadelphia, Rev. B. G. Mattson, Mrs. Philip J. Pax- son of Lake Worth, Florida, and Har- lan Mattson of Casado, Montana.

Fifteen grandchildren and six great grandchildren were a source of pride and joy to this noble pioneer of the forward look who, to use his own phrase, loved to "look with youth." (Contributed by his son, Rev. B. G. Mattson, as a tribute of respect and affection.)

Citizens Military Training Camp.
Dr. F. H. Wilkinson has again been selected as county chairman for the C. M. T. C. Any able bodied young man of good character, be- tween the ages of 17 and 24, is eligi- ble for this training camp. One month at Fort Brady, at the Soo, be- tween July 19 and August 17. Ex- penses for carfare, lodging, meals, medical attention and laundry are paid by the U. S. government. This is not an enlistment or a scheme to get a boy into the army, but it is a chance for a month's military and physical training, for health and citi- zenship. For additional informa- tion, see any of the following local committee: Dr. F. H. Wilkinson, Dr. F. F. McMillan, Richard Pad- dock, R. F. Sloan, O. P. North, Ira Adams or Mrs. R. W. Paddock.

Class C Crown—Alba Bows to Elk Rapids Five.

With a crowd that set a new re- cord for attendance and sportsman- ship and with teams playing more evenly matched ball than ever be- fore in the history of the northern Michigan regional, Traverse City crashed through for a 10 to 3 win over Manistee in class B to close the three days of play.

Harbor Springs in a like manner drove to a finish and a 12 to 11 win over Boyne City, as the gun sounded in class C and Elk Rapids downed the Alba Reds, 20 to 19, in class D. Trophies were present- ed by Referee Glen Loomis of Big Rapids. He was assisted by Walter J. MacMillan, Petoskey, and William Burkett, Mt. Pleasant, as officials.

In the closing battle Manistee played a show waiting game, trying to pull the Traverse defense from in front of the basket. Traverse City retaliated with the same kind of attack and defense, making the game slow throughout. Traverse won on four beautiful long baskets by Ostlund and a close one by Wahl. It missed all four of its free throw chances. At the half the score was tied at four-all. Kneifeldt and Her- man having four shots for Manistee and Ostlund for Traverse. Manistee failed to score in the second and third periods and Traverse was scoreless in the third. Manistee made one out of five free and Neitzke Manistee scored in the last quarter and the former hooked a free one. It was Traverse's first regional championship.

With McBride finally coming through in clever style after a slow start in the tournament, Harbor Springs came from behind and won a 12 to 11 decision from Boyne City to reach the Petoskey regional basketball title. Outscored 6 to 3 at the half and 10 to 5 at the last quarter, McBride and Hill each hooked one and Grimes came across with a nifty lay shot to win the game. Wingardun was led to a single foul by Campbell, scored one and had a basket and foul in the first half.

Tryon and Fox started for Boyne City on attack, while VanHusen was the star of the game on de- fense. This big guard was the class of the tournament in his position. Fox scored three points, Tryon seven and Morgan one. Harbor will rep- resent the region in the class C state tournament, Boyne's game was its best this year.

Lineups:
Elk Rapids' class D basketball team won the regional title, elimi- nating the Alba Reds in the final game of the series 20 to 19. The game was tied at the half, 11-all, but in the second half Alba weak- ened on defense and let Elk Rapids in behind them for two easy lay- ers. Alba lacked 120 percent for a rebounder two near the close of the last quarter and missed coming free throws at the close to have a win- dily. M. Ringier was high point man for Elk Rapids, with nine points. Diversity of the game team had each their share.

Sutton Bay defeated Honor 7-6, for third place in class D and Gay- lord defeated Boyne City, 27-7, for third in class C.

Business Man Gives Enthusiastic Indorsements to Pow-

MR. FRANK TRACEY.

My business partner recommended Konjola to me, and I shall always be in debt to him for this," said Mr. Frank Tracey, 31 Peterboro street, Detroit, Michigan. "I had been ill with kidney troubles for five years. I had to get up four or five times every night, and this broke my sleep so that my general health was affected. I was nervous, and lacking in vitality and resistance, and was unable to find anything to give me even temporary relief. I was in a pretty bad fix.

"My partner insisted that I try Konjola, and I should have had this new medicine long, long ago. It went to work right away and in a very short time I was feeling like another person. I am sleeping well every night now, and the terrible back pains are gone. My digestion is perfect, and I am picking up weight and strength right along. My friends are amazed at this sudden change in my appearance and demeanor. I have no hesitancy in recommending Konjola for personally, I think it is the world's greatest medicine."

Konjola is sold in Charlevoix at E. J. Essenberg's drug store and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

MAKING PROGRESS.

Every session of the legislature the question of party designation of legislators comes up and, to the credit of the lawmakers, it is voted down.

Party has no place in local politics. It is becoming less of an influence in national affairs. The primary election law was a step in advance which will not be retraced.

The primary election law is criticised whenever poor public servants are elected. No system of election will produce the type of men who are always satisfactory. The political schemer used to run the party system. The primary gives the demagogue an opportunity.

The essential fact is that government is improving. Government, by and large, is better today than ever before. Public servants are more honest, more capable. As long as progress is being made, there is no real need of becoming excited.

BEAUTIFUL LAKE CHARLEVOIX.

Of all the beauty spots in this land,
Beautiful Lake Charlevoix,
Situating in North Michigan,
Beautiful Lake Charlevoix,
They changed your name but not your looks
Now we read of you in books,
You advertise such pretty nooks;
Beautiful Lake Charlevoix.

We once did call you pretty Pine Lake,
Beautiful Lake Charlevoix,
We often go down a view to take;
Beautiful Lake Charlevoix,
You have lured strangers far and near,
And each one calls you very dear,
Lovers stroll by your waters clear;
Beautiful Lake Charlevoix.

We all love you the whole year round,
Beautiful Lake Charlevoix,
We love you when you are snow-bound,
Beautiful Lake Charlevoix,
We remember you have generously given;
To all the people who have striven
To find contentment, we are driven,
Beautiful Lake Charlevoix.

Years after we have turned old and gray
Beautiful Lake Charlevoix,
You will still look young, happy and gay,
Beautiful Lake Charlevoix,
Laughing, singing, calling us come-along,
Winter and Summer we hear your song,
There is nothing prettier under the sun,

CHAPTER V—Continued.
He open'd his heavy eyes to watch the glow of the fire on the back screen of surrounding spruce, then closed them with a sigh. Once more he drew near to sleep.

Then again, the faint call of the gray . . . I loomed through the soundless forest. "Whoa, hoo-hoo-hoo, whoa-whoa!" On this time he was followed by a faint squawk.

The signal! The signal of their boyhood! Gaspard. He had trailed them, Gaspard had been in search of the partner who failed to meet him at the rendezvous, found the trail and followed. He lay there now in the snow, waiting for his coming.

Shortly Brock heard a faint sound behind the snow hole and he turned his eyes to see a dark head and shoulders, and the glint of steel where the blade from the fire touched a knifeblade. Cautiously Gaspard, yanked his gun, through the hole in the snow he had dug, beyond the sleeper's head, under the roof of boughs.

Leaning his head, Gaspard thrust his face close to Brock's lifted head, and whispered, "Where are you hid?"

"Knees and elbows," replied Brock, under his breath, desperate with his patience and trust.

Gaspard's arm reached down over his body and the knife slit the bottom jacket of the plumed rabbit skins.
Again the razor edge of the knife worked to free Brock from the blanket.
Gaspard did not dare remove the blanket from the bottom of the blanket.

A first, in a moment, Gaspard seized Brock's shoulders, and slowly drew him from between his neighbors, and back through the hole in the snow. A dash at his elbow and knees, and Brock was free, with his covered legs jammed into his boots.

For a space, the two stood in the snow, guns cocked, ears straining for a sound from the sleep hole. Then, slipping his foot into the thong of his snowshoes, Brock whispered as an arm gripped the shoulders of his partner. "Come on—they're dead asleep!"

The lean features of Gaspard, twisted with hate as he replied: "No, we feared them now!"

"Wait!" Brock held the arm of his friend. "They didn't shoot or knife me today, when they had the chance —they fought me with their hands.
We can't do this—after that!"

Leerd's scowl. His black eyes narrowed, a he met his friend's dead-ing look. Then, with a nod, he agreed: "We go."

And, like the feather patrol of the forest night, the two drifted silently from the sleeping camp.

As a bitter dawn slashed the eastern horizon with blue and gray and the stars faded, Gaspard and Brock crossed the ice of the outlet and built a fire in a cedar swamp, to boil their tea, eat, and rest.

"Why do you think they tried to take me alive?" queried Brock when he had given Gaspard the full details

"By Golly, I'm Lucky Not to Be Stiff Knife Jabs."

to the fight and capture. "By golly,
I'm lucky not to be stiff in the snow,
this minute full of knife jabs."

agreed his friend. "But you make me take to sleep me last night. Four of them—I fix dem all old de knife. Now dey hunt us true de long snow."

"I'm not so sure of that. From the way they opened their eyes when I told them that you uncle Etienne and Black Jack Desnoles were here, I'll bet you they leave the country—think they're being hunted themselves. They don't want to meet that pair."

"Wal, dey will be hunted," said Gaspard, grimly. "One of dem will tell me what he know about my father —before de goose fly nord."

"I'm with you, partner! The bumps on my old head 'el for revenge. I'm with you to the finish. I've told you once, and I tell you again, that I'll never forget what you did for me last night. When I heard that old signal of course, I thought my heart would jump clear out of my mouth. You're a sure enough partner. Before we leave this country we'll do some tall hunting on our own account, eh?"

"You keep your eye open afrait dels," said Leerd, soberly. "Eef dey shoot at you and miss, mak' dem tink you're hit. Fall down and wail wid your gun cocked for dem to look for you."

"Oh, I've learned my lesson. To think of that Indian getting so close without my knowing it!"

As the sun turned the white take below them into a sheet of flame, the partners followed the rock outcrop pings of the long ridge which when out their trail and battled any luminate pursuit. In the middle of the forenoon, four hungry and delighted huskies welcomed them home.

"Now we've got some fur to trap, Gaspard," said Brock as the partners took counsel for the future. "You and I are each in debt at Hungry House about four hundred dollars, and we've got our hearts set on owning a first class outfit, haven't we?"

Gaspard nodded as he smoked.
"Well," continued Brock, "my idea is to concentrate on fur until the hungry blizzards, while it's prime. After that, if we've had good luck, and those people let us alone, we can start when the sledding is better and the snow packed, looking for them. What do you say?"

Gaspard's black brows contracted in a frown. "Dey nevair keep away so long iam. Dese people come and look for trail, fur sure. Same day dey work sout' of de lak and walk into camp."

"Well, we can't help that," admitted Brock. "They're bound to cross our trap line trails. If they come fur enough, and the snow holds off. If they find the camp while we're away, they'll shoot the dogs and wait for us. How can we avoid it?"

"We mak' new enche for nait de grab, first ring—back even dat swamp on de land of dls brook, and keep away from it so de snow show no trail. Den we always travel wid a dog and son been ahead wim we come back to camp. Dey got to shoot huskie or he smell dem an holler dat evel save us from ambush."

"That's a crackin' idea, Gaspard!"
cried Brock, then his eyes shifted to the great slate-gray puppy lying in the snow. "If they shoot that feller over there, though," he nodded at his dog. "They've got to get me too, haven't they, pup?"

The husky rose from his bed, his oblique eyes lazily watching the speaker.

"But how shall we leave the other dogs? Loose?" They'd hunt, of course —wouldn't he around, probably, so but wouldn't help any."

"No, we leave dem tied on weak rawhide. Dat hold dem, but eef dey smell Cree dey go wild an' break eet.
We hide dem on de scrub spruce each side de camp."

"It's the best we can do—unless we quit the country."

Gaspard knocked out his pipe on a fire-log and rose. "You gain' leave dis country, Brock?" he asked, the wealth of a smile curling his still lips.

"By the great, horned owl and all his descendants—no!" And sucking a long breath into his deep chest, Brock rose and clapped his friend on the back. "I'm goin' to help you find out about your father, partner you know that?"

"Ahhah! I fat so!" The eyes of Gaspard pictured his gratitude.

CHAPTER VI

He Laughs Best Who Laughs
Last.

As their traps needed their attention, the boys lost no time in shodding half their men and fish and all their fur and emergency outfit to the hidden cache in the thick spruce swamp at the head of the stream. There it would be safe, after the next snow had wiped out their trail. Then with Kona and Yellow-Bee hidden in scrub on either side of, and a hundred yards from, the camp, the trappers hitched the other dogs to their handbills and started south.

Before dawn, when Brock rolled out of his robes to start the first stove, he had started in surprise at the empty blankets of his partner. But by the time breakfast was ready, a dark face flashed through the bundle flaps of the tent.

"Come an' see how you lak' some-ting out here," said the half-breed with a grin.

"What you been up to?"

Gaspard led his partner a short distance in the direction of the lake, then stopped beside a fresh trail.

"When did you make this?" demanded the perplexed boy. "This trail wasn't here yesterday."

"Ah hah, dis trail run quite a pidge
—I mak' eet."

"Why, so they can walk into our camp?"

"Yes, dat ees eet; so dey walk right into . . . dis ring."

trap! Gaspard, you're a genius!"
cried the delighted Brock.

"Eef dey walk dis far back de lak dey hit my trail and—find de camp and de bear trap. Den he go click!"

So, with a heavy sapling as a lever, the boys pried down the trap spring and set the terrible, toothed jaws asleep, under a covering of light snow on which they left the webbed print of a shoe and lightly swept it with a raven's wing to make it appear natural. The foot which stepped on that engine of steel was doomed to freeze stiff in a matter of minutes.

Then, after a meal of frozen whitefish, they tied Kona and Yellow-Bee in their hiding places of young spruce, and left on the fifty-mile circuit of their traplines.

Later in the day, as Gaspard was following a line of milk and other traps, he stopped on the wind-blown ice of a long dead water for a short rest and a smoke. Since he had crossed the telltale footprints in the snow—the familiar trail of his father's dog with the mutilated foot, traveling with a wolf—he had needed no further proof that Pierre Leerd had reached this lake country for which he had started.

The men who had attacked Brock could tell why his father did not return the previous March to those who had waited in vain for the reins of his

ESSEX the CHALLENGER...sets all these records....

during Nation-wide CHALLENGER WEEK

Although hindered by adverse weather conditions, tests made by Agent James Wyers during Essex Challenge Week, brought out results. A new coach was driven 21.2 miles on a gallon of gas. In speed tests the car made 65 miles per hour easily on a half mile stretch.

Above we show some of the local records, officially observed by newspaper men, which Essex the Challenger established during Nation-wide Challenger Week. Owners here, and owners by thousands all over the country, have duplicated these tests, or, at least, verified the capacity of their own Essex the Challenger to reproduce any or all of these proofs.

IN FAST GET-AWAY—no car is excelled. IN SPEED—anything the road offers up to 70 miles an hour. IN HILL CLIMBING—against any car you choose. IN APPEARANCE—match it for smartness with costlier cars. IN EASE OF DRIVING—note smoothness of motion—ease of steering—roadability and effectiveness of brakes. IN ENDURANCE—60 miles an hour all day long is well within

One million owners know the special advantages of the Super-Six. They are best qualified to compare the Essex the Challenger. To them we offer first opportunity to test the most powerful, the largest, roomiest, smoothest, easiest riding—most complete Essex ever built. But all motordom must be astounded that even with seventy-six notable improvements, the price is the lowest in Essex history—2 price but little above the lowest-priced car on the market.

POST-MORTEM PRAISES

I've noticed when a fellow dies, no matter what he's been—
A snarly chap or one whose life was crowded full of sin—
His friends forget the bitter words they spoke but yesterday,
And now they find a multitude of pretty things to say.
I fancy when I'm laid to rest some one will bring to light
Some kindly word or gently act long buried out of sight.
But, if it's all the same to you, just give to me instead,
The bonquets while I'm living and the knocking when I'm dead.

THE NEW PRESIDENT

The country has a new president. The United States of America has no royalty. The inauguration of a president is more than a mere event. It is evidence of democracy. It tells of the kind of government that the nation has.
Herbert Clark Hoover will be a great president. He is not a politician. He lacks many of what have usually been the political qualifications for high office. But he possesses some qualities that will prove outstanding.
Mr. Hoover goes into office with the respect and confidence of the American people. Back of him are wonderful traditions. Ahead lie opportunities. The United States is a great nation. To be its head is both an honor and a responsibility.

SECRETARY MELLON

Some members of the United States senate, including Senator Couzens, of Michigan, are opposing the appointment of Secretary Mellon as the head of the treasury department in the cabinet of President Hoover.
Mr. Mellon has been just the kind of a man that the nation has needed in these times of financial readjustment. His experience has been placed at the service of the United States.

Some have said that Andrew Mellon has been the greatest secretary of the treasury since Alexander Hamilton. Maybe if we would read some more about Alexander Hamilton we could easily raise Mr. Mellon to the honor of the greatest secretary of the treasury in the nation's history.

BETTER THAN HEAVEN

We believe it was the parrot who said, "The trouble with me is that I talk too much."
That is the trouble with many men and women who live in smaller communities. They talk too much. They talk about their friends and make their enemies. They talk of their enemies and make the breach still wider. Some talk maliciously—some do not think.

An election comes along. The great privilege of democracy is used as the excuse to defame, without justification. Why men who are honest most of the time should be during the political season is beyond comprehension. Yet a person cannot submit himself to the possibilities of election to office without exposure to merciless and pitiless misrepresentation.

Sometimes politics have a sequel. A thing like an election contest case will make criminals out of one-half of the population and perjurers out of the other half.

The situation would be unbearable were it not that the whole thing is usually forgotten and some who talked about you today, may say something good about you tomorrow. If you would die, business might stop for an hour and a wreath might be laid on your grave and a tear shed.

If smaller communities could lay aside all the habits of adverse comment, if all human weakness could be overlooked and not discussed, no one would wish to die and go to heaven. The home town would be good enough.

FOUNDATION STONES

The two foundation stones of the arch of prosperity are transportation and credit. Our prosperity and almost all our habits of doing business are predicated on abundant credit and a transportation service beyond anything ever attained before. As far as the effect on buying is concerned, transportation is much more important than credit. Hand-to-mouth buying, which has done so much to safeguard business, has been made possible by a remarkable speeding-up of railway service. This excellence in service must be maintained.

Our transportation facilities of all sorts must be kept at the highest state of competence. The new transportation facilities must be so developed and shaped as to supplement the existing facilities. From the Chicago (Ill.) Journal of Commerce.

THOMAS JEFFERSON SAID—

Never put off till tomorrow what you can do today; never trouble another for what you can do yourself; never spend your money before you have it; never buy what you do not want because it is cheap; it will be dear to you; pride costs us more than hunger, thirst, and cold; we never repent of having eaten too little; nothing is troublesome that we do willingly; take things always by their smooth handle; when angry, count ten before you speak—if very angry, a hundred.

POLAR BEARS CLOSE SEASON WITH A WIN

Trounce Petoskey Bon Tons by Score of 35 to 18.

The Charlevoix Polar Bears closed their season's schedule in the local gymnasium Tuesday night by decisively defeating the Petoskey Bon Tons 35 to 18.

The visitors were no match for the local five at any time during the game. Although slow in getting started, the Polar Bears opened up in the second half to run up a lopsided score. The count at the half was 17 to 11.

Kens was high point man for the Polar Bears with 16. Brown scored 7, Todd 4, Kipko 3 and Davenport 2. In the preliminary game, Charlevoix business men won the "rubber" from Boyne City business men 10 to 6. The two teams previously had one game each to their credit. The Charlevoix five showed decided improvement over their previous form, having practiced religiously for this final game. The contest lacked the rough-house tactics of the game at Boyne City, and proved the local five superior.

FINE ATTENDANCE AT P. T. A. MEETING

Election of Officers at Next Meeting, March 10th

About seventy-five people were at the P. T. A. meeting last Wednesday evening to hear Dr. Winder's talk on "Observations and Experiences while dentist at the States' Prison."

The problem of the prison population of the state has yet to be solved and no one who listened to the talk could have any doubts but that such a problem exists. Somewhere in the background of nearly every crime is the lack of the right kind of home training. In some instances heredity would seem to be responsible. Prison life reforms very few and about a third of those who are discharged find their way back.

Officers will be elected at the next P. T. A. meeting which occurs April 10th.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

The regular meeting of the W. C. T. U. was held at the home of Mrs. B. L. Harrington on Clinton street, Friday afternoon, March 15. Mrs. Rife, the president, presided. Thirty-seven were present.

This was a splendid meeting, and enjoyed by all. Mrs. Ball, president of the fourth district, was present and added much to the meeting. She gave a splendid talk on helpful lines, which was much appreciated. Mr. and Mrs. Kitch debuffed the night.

selections. The paper by Mrs. A. C. Belding was timely (see another column), and thoroughly enjoyed and appreciated. A number of new members were reported by the group leaders.

The local union is working hard for new members, and hope are the membership campaign closes to see many new faces. "Come then with us and we will do thee good." The W. C. T. U. is a wonderful organization, and women will find a warm welcome in its midst.

SHOW RECORD NUMBER OF CLUBS FOR STATE

All Michigan Counties Except Five Had 4-H Clubs.

A record number of 4-H clubs and a total membership of 19,022 boys and girls enrolled in those clubs in Michigan during the past year is reported by the state club leader at Michigan State College.

If the percentage of the youngsters who finished their projects can be taken as a measure, 1928 was Michigan's banner year for 4-H clubs as 79.3 per cent of all members completed their allotted work. The clubs provide practical instructive work for boys and girls in all seasons of the year.

Business men's organizations in Michigan cities now are assisting in the leadership of many of the clubs; in several cases, the men act as part-ners of individual club members. The senior partner often loans money to the junior to enable him to purchase livestock or seed. The loan is secured by a note when it is paid when the crop or livestock is sold.

4-H club work was organized in all but five Michigan counties last year. Next year's plan made by the state leader calls for 20,000 club members in 80 counties.

Summer camps for Michigan club members are held at East Lansing, Gaylord and Chatham. At these camps, contests are held to determine district champions, and final contests are held at the Michigan State Fair to select state champions, who represent the state in national competitive events.

Charlevoix County Farmers Study Farm Accounts.

Twenty-six Charlevoix county farmers started keeping farm accounts at two recent meetings held in Charlevoix and Boyne City on March 12th and 13th.

H. A. Berr, specialist in farm management, of M. S. C. was present and explained the manner of keeping records and outlined the huge amount of useful information to be derived from this new project.

In all cases each cooperator makes an opening inventory as of March 1 and then will keep an accurate account of all expenses and receipts until the book is closed one year later. This will give the farmer a clear insight of his farm operations and enable him to locate the leaks in his farm operations and repair the damage before it is too late.

The following wide awake farmers have enrolled:

Boyne City: Mrs. E. T. Davis, Harry Behling, Frank A. Behling, Howard Stephens, Ben Gardner, Clyde Clute, Bert Lumley, Robert Tainter, Douglas Tibbitts, Henry Kortthase.

East Jordan: Fred Larson, Archie Murphy, Geo. Hanson, Orval Bennett, Eveline Orchards.

Charlevoix: Oakley Saunders, Geo. Meggison, H. C. Newman, Lee Sneathen, Richard Paddock, T. J. Smith, Mrs. O. Cook, Robert Kane, Ecklund Brothers.

Wallon Lake: Allan Sherk.

Charion: Clyde Kent.

Several more farmers will undoubtedly be added to the above list later, as some were unable to attend.

* CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH * * B. C. Mattson, Pastor. *

Morning service and sermon at 10:30 a. m.

Sunday school at 12 noon.

Evening meeting at 6:00 p. m.

From this date I will not be responsible for any bills contracted by anyone other than myself.

INGALLS FARM HOME DESTROYED BY FIRE

Explosion of Gas Engine Caused Blaze Monday Morning.

The farm home of Elmer Ingalls, well known local dairyman, was completely destroyed Monday morning by fire caused from the back-fire of a gas engine located in the dairy room and used to pump water.

Mr. Ingalls was in Charlevoix covering his milk route when the fire started. An assistant at the farm called the local fire department, who responded, but were unable to give much aid, except to keep nearby buildings from burning. Had there been an open well near the house, the truck pumper could have been used and the house saved.

Mr. Ingalls lost all clothing except what he wore, but otherwise most of the contents of the house were saved. The dwelling was a model farm home, equipped with all city conveniences. The loss, which will be several thousand dollars, is covered by insurance.

A Parable

One time there was a fellow who thought himself a pretty good business man.

He went out a fishing one day and to get out of a hard rain crawled in a hollow log. The rain made the log swell so he couldn't get out. He thought he was a goner and got to thinking about his past.

Says he, to himself—"Here I am forty-five years old. Had lots of chances in my day and let most of them get away. Haven't a penny's life insurance—no savings account—don't even own my home."

Well sir, don't you know that feller kept a thinking and the more he thought the smaller he felt—until at last he crawled out of the little end of the log and went home a different man!

Kentucky Youth Is Best Tester

Hilson Guier Is Only Boy to Own and Officially Test His Cow.

"Naturally, I am the happiest boy in the world," declared Hilson Guier, of Farmington, Ky., when he received the official figures which showed that his Jersey cow has broken the world record for production in her class.

Two years ago Hilson was just one of the hundreds of thirteen-year-old boys attending public school in western Kentucky. Shouting and pushing in line, tripping the fellows as they marched up to the teacher's desk, loyal to his gang in its strenuous activities and giving praise in ear-splitting yells for every holiday, Hilson was just one of the reasons why pounds of milk in her official five-day test.

It's a main-size job to do official production testing. The daily weighing of the milk, the record keeping, the attention to feeding, and the necessity of sticking to this routine day after day might well deter any schoolboy. Yet, inexperienced as he was, Hilson Guier, calf club boy, now in the first year high school, was able to set a new standard for the world with his one Jersey cow. There was no record of high performance in the pedigree of Proud Prince's May; there was no certain reward for the job he had started, but he stuck to it. He had confidence in the better he had purchased, but he did not dream that his cow would break a world's record under the most ordinary farm conditions.

Record Being Broken

In the second month of her test Proud Prince's May produced 87,239 pounds of butterfat, a yield more than half the average yearly production teachers favor the five-day week. Then County Agricultural Agent P. H. Wilson started a dairy calf club for boys and girls in Callaway county and Hilson became one of the 32,471 members of such clubs sponsored throughout the nation by the United States Department of Agriculture.

Only Boy to Own Champion

Now, at fifteen, Hilson Guier is the only calf club boy in the United States to own and officially test a world champion cow. The calf which he purchased two years ago with his first $150 in savings has finished her first and she is the highest producing senior three-year-old Jersey on record, tested for 345 days. Proud Prince's May, his cow, produced 75,404 pounds of butterfat and 12,621 pounds of milk in the United States. In the little month May's total was 17,007 pounds of butterfat, and the public began to believe that a world record was being broken by a world champion cow. Then the Guier farm became a mecca for lovers of good dairy cattle.

At the end of 345 days, when the entire test had been officially checked by the supervisors and accepted by the American Jersey Cattle Club, the national organization of Jersey breeders, this Kentucky boy knew that his $150 calf club heifer had become the highest producing Jersey in the world in her age class. By virtue of the accomplishment of his cow, Hilson Guier has earned a place among the most renowned cattle men of the day.

Moist Loamy Soil Best for Culture of Kale

Kale being a heavy feeder requires rich soil with plenty of manure and fertilizer to make a good crop. A moist loamy soil is best. The land should be plowed several days before sowing to let it settle, then just before sowing give it a good harrowing to kill all weeds and grass. 40 for (billion) lb. head best, about 1,500 pounds will be used or in the drills about 500 pounds. A good fertilizer to use is one containing 5 per cent nitrogen, 4 to 8 per cent phosphoric acid and 5 per cent potash. A top dressing of 100 to 200 pounds of nitrate of soda will greatly help the plants.

The Scotch and Seckon are the most popular varieties of kale. The Scotch is a bright green kale and very popular for shipping, owing to its appearance, and being hard and stiff, it keeps perfectly when packed. The plants are very spreading and dwarf rarely growing over 18 inches high. The plants will remain over winter below zero. The Seckon leaves are very large and plain in the center, but heavily curled on the edge. It is hardy and grows rapidly and is very slow runner to seed in the spring. The Seckon is more tender for home use or food market, while the Scotch is better to ship.

Tuberculosis of Fowl Is Often Overlooked

Deserves More Attention From Flock Owners.

(By Robert B. Lusk, United States Department of Agriculture.)

Tuberculosis of poultry, though not so dangerous in many respects as the bovine form, needs greater attention by flock owners and by the public. If the spread is to be checked, says Dr. John R. Miller, chief of the bureau of animal industry, United States Department of Agriculture, "avian tuberculosis" as it is called, is easily transmitted to swine and a large percentage of infections of hogs in packing houses on account of tuberculosis is the result of the avian type of the disease.

"This poultry malady is most prevalent in the Middle West," "There is more hog tuberculosis than formerly, but the avian form is much less virulent than the bovine form and is frequently confined to the glands of the neck in hogs."

"The veterinarians who are going from farm to farm in the work of tuberculosis testing of cattle are making observations of poultry flocks. When tuberculosis is found they explain the disease can be controlled and eradicated."

The bureau of animal industry is ready to cooperate in any way possible in this work.

Agricultural Notes

Ames not needed for field crops, fruit, garden, or pasture should be growing that other essential farm product—wood.

These are the nights for reading. And don't think it is necessary to read only technical stuff to improve your work; have a good time with a good novel.

Manure applied to alfalfa during the winter will protect the plants and increase the yields of hay the following season. The ground should be firm when the manure is applied.

A good farm record book accurately kept will help a farmer to know his business. A farm without records is like a clock without hands. It may be running right but there is no way of knowing it.

The black stringy substance that develops in Irish potatoes in storage is caused by a fungus known as fusarium wilt. The fungus gained entrance to the potato crop either through the soil or through the seed planted last year. The best way to check such trouble is to buy certified seed and plant on ground that has never produced potatoes.

English Department

The sophomore English students have chosen the country which they are most interested in and are making magazine reports on that country in class. On Wednesday the reports will be written in the form of a travel article.

Biology

The biology classes have been constructing bird houses. Some are of wood and other are of birch bark. Some are intended for large birds and some for the tiny wrens. As spring is here with all its joys, including the merry songsters of the summer, this is indeed a fitting thing to do.

Kindergarten

We have our new kindergarten tables to match our chairs now. Friday morning the children in the kindergarten are going to dramatize the song "Rainbow Fairies" for the grade assembly.

Fourth Grade

The fourth grade pupils received letters from the fourth grade at Blissfield, Michigan. The letters were interesting.

Pupils of the fourth grade are busy making Easter baskets.

First Grade

The first grade is enjoying a miniature cardboard village presented to them by Mrs. Charles Lamphorn. We used our penmanship period this morning to write her a "thank you" note and the best copy was chosen to be sent in the afternoon mail. The copy, chosen from the standpoint of neatness and legibility, was written by Frances Meggison.

A forward look promises for the first grade much educational value as well as pleasure stimulated by our language project—the child-made radio. Committees have been chosen to construct the radio, choose a fitting name for our station, and select a capable announcer. Some children have already volunteered to furnish part of the first radio program, but their critical classmates feel a need for standards of presentation into which each contribution must fit before it is broadcasted. Twelve children have brought drawings of the radio at home to serve as guides for the construction committee, and it has puzzled their young minds as to which plan they should follow in order to obtain the most satisfactory results.

Our language periods for the rest of this week will be set aside for meetings of the committees, in which the children will work out the standards mentioned above and a definite plan for construction. Next week's paper will give the results.

Elementary Notes
A fire drill was held this week and we are proud that our building was emptied in just 65 seconds, which is the shortest time we have been able to report this year.

Friday morning of this week a general assembly has been planned for all of the grades of the elementary school and the county normal. The program will be as follows:
Piano Solo, Jean Campbell.
"The Milk Fairies," in playlet, fifth grade.
"Rainbow Fairies" (dramatization of a song), kindergarten.
Anyone interested in the program is invited to come to the auditorium at 8:45 Friday morning of this week. (Continued on page 7.)

"SAFEGUARDING THE COMMUNITY"

PAPER GIVEN AT W. C. T. U. MEETING FRIDAY.

Mrs. A. C. Belding Outlines Duties of Parent to Children of Present Generation.

"Youth is the natural period for joy. Adolescence should be a free and happy period of life. For life and its possibilities are unfolding; great, new, restive energies are stirring in the boy and girl, but full responsibilities have not yet come. It should be a time of budding forth, of fun and innocence. It is the plastic age; the period of promise; the age of happy dreams and visions. It is also the age of bitter loneliness, moods of depression, the black feeling of being misunderstood, and the bewilderment over the pull between custom and desire.

"How carefully then should be considered the need of the soon-passing child. Now comes the need for understanding, social relationship, pride of race, responsibility to future generations, the relation of the individual to society—for in this period he must gather, in a large measure, through his own choice, the associations and impressions which will mould his adult years and make or mar for life.

"Many people talk today as though our young people were made of different stuff than in past ages, but the responsibility for the gap of misunderstanding between them and ourselves really falls upon we older people. It does not do to get the reputation of being narrow-minded, or old-fashioned in dealing with the young people. The older and younger generations seldom agree about how certain situations should be met, and in these times the chasm between the thought of older people and younger people seem very wide; but there are a number of points upon which we as parents can surely agree regarding the necessary safeguards for our young people.

"Young people have a right to certain definite things, the first of which is knowledge. If conditions of life have changed, then it is our responsibility to see that our young people get the sort of education that will fit them to meet these conditions. I mean education regarding the human body. Health education is a necessity. Young people need definite training in the line, clean, wholesome facts of life. A knowledge of the laws of life; of personal and social hygiene.

"The history of civilization is that of training desires and appetites. All are born with desire, and if we guide the mental, or physical desires of our children, we must have a knowledge of the significance of desire, and how to direct it into safe channels. If a boy is to make a successful fight that he may attain to a clean fatherhood, he needs to know the way of nature, and why self-control is a vital force. The modern girl needs to know that playing with "Emotional fire" is dangerous.

Youth is a difficult, but God-given period of life. We, as parents, should realize that this is the time to mould and shape. We must help without pushing; lead without driving; watch without mistrusting. It has been said that more young people go wrong trying to have what they call a "good time" than in any other way. Quite naturally their eager, restless energies demand frequent and thrilling good times. Boys and girls have sought one another for joyful adventures since the world began. Any attempt to thwart, or repress, the joy demand, or urge, for friendship and admiration from the opposite sex but swells the rebellious tide. Here is our hopeful task—the framing of new delights and outlets for youthful energies and interests. Happy the home to which boys and girls—in search of a good time may be always sure of a welcome, and a place for their romping and laughter. If the boy's gang wants the home, give it to them. It is better to have damaged furniture than damaged lives. Regular tasks and plenty of work all play their part in safeguarding the youth. Supervised amusements are a necessity. We should have the right to regulate for the sake of the youth, but how to do so without too much repression is a matter for careful study.

Surely, too, we ought to spend more time and talent in moulding ideals concerning the great venture of marriage and home building. We are finding that there has been something radically wrong here. If it is worth while to prepare for citizenship, surely it is worth while to prepare for mating—fatherhood, motherhood and home making. In our country the women's organizations are all turning definitely in this direction in an attempt to stem the present tide which leads away from the home.

AT THE MOVIES

Screen Lovers That Producers Can't Separate.

The combination of Dorothy Mackaill and Jack Muhlall in a cinema offering has come to mean so much that the producers cannot "separate" the two screen lovers.

Ordinarily, five film patrons these two first National players and a good plot, and they're happy. Considering the fact that "Children of the Ritz," their latest vehicle, which is coming Saturday and Sunday to the Palace Theatre, is Cornell Woolrich's celebrated $10,000 prize, magazine serial movie original story plot, it would seem that that gives the picture "everything."

However, the producers put more into the prize package. Two regular leading ladies, famed for beauty and histrionic skill, two handsome and talented leading men, and a famous stellar comedian head the notable supporting cast.

Norma Shearer Plays Her First Crook Role in "A Lady of Chance."

Norma Shearer assumes the first "crook" role of her career in "A Lady of Chance," a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production that will open at the Palace Theatre next Wednesday and Thursday.

portion of the money. Fred C. Holbeck, Long Lake; B. H. DeChaire, Saint Clair Shores; A. D. Culbertson, Flint; H. A. Osborn, Saint Ste. Marie; Luther E. Hall, Ionia; and Edward L. Smith, Grand Rapids.

Concern over the ultimate fate of the administration amendments to the criminal code, designed to remove liquor law offenders from the life imprisonment provisions of the code was manifested in the senate late last week when an apparent unwillingness to consider the bill was evidenced in the judiciary committee, where the bill now rests after having passed the house.

A reported deadlock between the judiciary committee in the house and the senate because of the failure of the senate committee to report out these crime code amendments, otherwise known as the Watson bill, was not officially recognized, but there was strong evidence that the house committee had decided to "sit" on senate measures until the Watson bill saw light of day in the senate. The senate judiciary committee considered, quietly, the policy of not reporting any house measures out in retaliation. Thus was tied the knot which was being drawn tighter as the week closed.

STATE NEEDS NORMAL SUGAR BEET ACREAGE

Price Guaranteed to Farmers Highest in History.

Every Michigan farmer should be as much interested as the sugar beet grower in the maintenance of a normal beet acreage as a lowered acreage will mean more land devoted to general crops, according to statements of farm crops men at Michigan State College.

Beet soils, while especially adapted to the production of that crop, will return good yields of most crops grown in the state. The average acreage planted to beets in Michigan is 115,000 acres.

The guaranteed contract price offered by the factories this year is the highest in the history of the industry, and the contract contains a more liberal bonus clause, in the opinion of the farm crops department at the college. The manufacturers are attempting to assure themselves of a tonnage of beets which will keep all of the Michigan factories busy throughout the sugar campaign.

Beets are normally one of the most profitable field crops and a shift to other crops by state farmers would remove this chance for profit and would perhaps add to the marketing problems which are faced by all growers of farm products. Beet growers and sugar beet manufacturers are united in asking for tariff protection which will remove beet sugar from the low price level which now exists.

College specialists working on new methods of beet culture report that large groups of beet growers are attending the extension meetings.

"Substance" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Christian Science churches on Sunday, March 17.

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "And Jesus said unto the centurion, Go thy way; and as thou hast believed, so be it done unto thee. And his servant was healed in the selfsame hour" (Matt. 8:13).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Corruption, error, or error, as seen to hide Truth, health, harmony, and Science, as the most correct the sun or the moon; but Science, the sunshine of Truth, will melt away the shadow and reveal the celestial peak" (p. 299).

ISLANDER HAS A THRILLING TRIP

OUT 24 HOURS ON ICE CROSSING AFOOT TO ST. JAMES.

Broke Through and Narrowly Escaped Drowning—Aeroplane Prepared to Join Search.

What might have been another tragedy, similar or even worse than that of Louis Sweet, Alanson fisherman lost on Lake Michigan ice floes in January, was narrowly averted last Saturday when Leroy Sendenberg arrived safely at Beaver Island after being missing on Lake Michigan 24 hours.

Joe Sendenberg, Leroy's brother, brought the missing man to Beaver Island in a rowboat from Garden Island, where he was found at the home of Mude Jensen. Leroy reached the Jensen home at 1:30 Saturday morning, completely exhausted after his 18-mile walk from Gray's Reef to the island in the night. Several times he broke through into the water and narrowly escaped drowning.

Sendenberg started from Cross Village Friday by dog sled in company with Bill Davis. The ice was solid as far as Gray's Reef, but from there on it was so cracked and honey-combed that Davis turned back. Determined to reach his home at Beaver Island, Sendenberg continued afoot. News of his departure from Cross Village was sent to Beaver Island, and residents there anxiously awaited his arrival. They knew conditions were bad, but that morning the mail carrier, Joe Left, started out for Cross Village, but returned on account of the unsafe condition of the ice. Late in the evening a searching party went out to look for Sendenberg, but found no trace of him.

When Saturday morning came and he was still missing, real alarm was felt. Mike McCann of St. James, communicated with R. P. Sloan and Dr. C. J. Winder of this city, asking that efforts be made to have either a boat or an aeroplane sent in search for Sendenberg. Dr. Winder immediately telephoned Gov. Fred W. Green at Lansing. He was not there, but was located at Detroit, and gave his promise that planes would be sent and everything possible done to aid in finding Sendenberg. It was still alive. Lieut. Williams prepared to leave from Detroit, and Lieut. Evans from Selfridge field, but being held up on account of poor flying conditions, word of Sendenberg's safe return was telephoned to Detroit before the planes departed.

Relatives and friends of Sendenberg at Beaver Island expressed their appreciation of the efforts made in their behalf by the Charlevoix Association of Commerce through its president, Dr. C. J. Winder.

Mail service between Cross Village and the island was discontinued Saturday. The ice has broken up so badly, further trips were deemed unsafe. Negotiations are now underway to procure plane service until navigation opens. A postal inspector here Saturday believed the government would allow a contract for a plane to carry mail, but he thought it improbable that any airplane company would send a machine here for so short a time. It is the general consensus of opinion in local marine circles that boats will be able to reach the island this week or early next week. Persistent northeast winds have driven the ice floes south clear of ice.

COMMERCIAL FISHING DUE FOR REGULATION

The passage and signing by the governor of the Indiana Commercial Fish Bill, news of which was received today, coming as it does on the heels of the highly successful conference held in Madison, Wis., on the 18-19th by the joint senate and house conservation committees of Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota, where uniform commercial fish regulations for these states were unanimously adopted, is, in the opinion of Director George R. Hogarth, of the conservation department, the most forward looking step to be taken in years and lends a clarifying tendency to the general atmosphere of conflicting opinion in these states.

WORK STARTED ON NEW MACKINAC STATE PARK

Fire Lines and Buildings Are Now Under Construction.

The forestry division of the state conservation department starts development work this spring on the 58,000 acre Mackinac state forest. Complete housing facilities will be built, including superintendent's residence, barns, tool house and garages.

The nature of the work this summer will consist mainly in the construction of fire lines rather than planting, as it is necessary first to protect existing timber.

This forest is located in Mackinac county near Rexton and is readily accessible from main highways. Forty-seven per cent of the land within the reserve is state-owned, the balance being privately owned or tax-delinquent lands. Mackinac forest commands the attention of the sportsmen because it has been dedicated as a state forest and a public hunting grounds.

METHODIST CHOR THREE-ACT COMEDY

AT SCHOOL GYMNASIUM NEXT TUESDAY EVENING

Proceeds of Play to Pay Purchase of Piano for Church—Local Actors Make Up Cast.

"Tea Toper Tavern," a three-act comedy-drama, will be given in the gymnasium Tuesday evening, April 2. This play is sponsored by the choir of the M. E. church. The proceeds are to apply on the piano recently purchased for the church parlors.

Three college graduates, inspired with the determination to aid their college endowment fund, decide to open a tea-room for the summer—and thus the story begins. The varied experiences of these girls with the usual college girl's lack of culinary skill, complicates matters with an increasing interest until the climax of the plot.

The following is the cast:

Marion Day, a canny chaperon, Lena Bergeon.

Rosamond Reid, her niece, just out of college, Virginia Solomon.

Sally Dixon, from the sunny south, Lillian Miller.

Ann Annesley, a social service girl, Juanita Secord.

Barry Reid, Rosamond's freshman brother, Bill Brown.

Harriet Annesley, Ann's younger sister, Helen French.

Tess, Ann's protégée from the village, Roberta Stafford.

Mike Ryan, an Irish policeman, Archie Belding.

Brian Pierpont, a brilliant young lawyer, Arthur Edwards.

Archibald Perry, pastor of the village flock, Warren Kibbe.

Dallas Thorne, owner of the tavern, Verne Miller.

John Schewick, an old flame of Miss Day, Rock Miller.

Gloria Sherwood Jerome, a fascinating widow, Rena Edwards.

Celeste, Gloria's maid, Opal Lewis.

The cast has been working hard for four weeks in an earnest effort to produce a play that is both clean and highly entertaining. If the audience gets half the laughter out of it that the cast has had rehearsing it, they will feel it an evening well spent.

Preceding the main performance, the kindergarten will give a musical

Pageants Presented at Methodist Church

The pageants "The Founder's Vision" and "Daring Youth," presented by the Methodist Missionary society, assisted by the Queen Esther Circle, at the church Sunday evening, was a decided success from an entertaining standpoint as well as a lesson sermon. Special music by members of the parish helped to put the thought of the responsibility of the younger generation toward the promotion of Christianity before the audience. It was shown how the young people of today are better fitted than ever before to carry on this missionary work, both at home and in foreign lands.

P. T. A. PLAY A DECIDED SUCCESS

PUT ASSOCIATION OUT OF DEBT WITH BALANCE ON HAND.

Charlevoix Masculine Actors Showed Great Technique in Portrayal of Feminine Roles.

From an entertainment standpoint, the "Womanless Wedding," sponsored by the Charlevoix Parent-Teachers' association and directed by Miss Lucille Becker of the Symphon Levy company, far surpassed advance predictions. The production was staged at the high school gymnasium last Thursday and Friday night with a cast of over fifty local business and professional men.

Reports of several cases of martial strife have been received as an aftermath of the play, when local matrons, after seeing their husbands in the dress of the fairer sex, have attempted to make the change a permanent one.

The wedding guests arrived singly and in pairs, walking through the audience to the stage, until the entire assemblage had gathered. The makeup and costumes were realistic and very funny, causing an uproar of laughter from start to finish. Among the most interesting arrivals were the bride's weeping mother and comforting father. Archie Livingston, as the mother, displayed great dramatic ability. R. F. Sloan and Frank F. Bird were ideal representatives of Mark Twain's Tom Sawyer as the bride's little brothers, who their father, D. T. McElroy, found it hard to discipline. Ray Hamilton as Charlie Chaplin put the real Chaplin to shame. Warren Kibbe as Ike Rosenstien, the Jew peddler, brought the house down with his variety of stunts. Fry Bradley was a scream as Sis Hopkins, the county maiden, while O. P. North, her bashful "feller," needed no prompting. Milton Kibbe made a wonderfully dainty bride, and the mystery surrounding identity of the groom was dispelled when our diminutive mayor, Arthur Bergeon, took the vows of matrimony "in the name of holy macaroni."

Space does not allow us to cover the entire cast. They were all good and certainly played their parts well.

From a financial standpoint the play was also successful. The Parent-Teachers' association cleared $174.20, which clears them of all indebtedness and gives the association a balance of some $20 to start the next year.

STATE RECOGNIZE RESORT INDUSTRY

$200,000 NOW AVAILABLE FOR ADVERTISING MICHIGAN.

Two Thousand for Exhibit at Outdoor Life Exposition at Chicago Coliseum in May.

The state assembly has given official recognition to the tourist and recreation industry by voting an appropriation of $200,000 for advertising the state's resources. The above amount is available for expenditure within the next two years. A further official recognition comes from the administrative board which has released two thousand dollars for the purpose of exhibiting in the Outdoor Life Exposition to be held in the Coliseum, Chicago, May 6 to 11. The action of the administrative board was brought about through the combined efforts of several tourist organizations and a number of commercial associations such as the Michigan Tourist and Resort Association, the Upper Peninsula Development Bureau, the East Michigan Tourist Association, the Gogebic Co. Advancement Assn., the chambers of commerce of St. Joseph, Benton Harbor, Ludington, Charlevoix, etc., etc.

A two day conference was held in Lansing last week for the purpose of securing correct interpretation of enrolled act No. 7 and considering methods of spending money appropriated by this act in presenting a mass appeal "Come to Michigan." Among those present were Hugh J. Gray, sec.-manager of the Michigan Tourist and Resort Association, Grand Rapids; T. F. Marston, secretary-treasurer of the East Michigan Tourist Association, Bay City; Geo. E. Bishop, secretary-manager of the Upper Peninsula Development Bureau, Marquette; and A. Marsh, representing Lee Barrett, secretary of the South Eastern Michigan Tourist and Publicity Association, Detroit.

None of the $200,000 appropriated for advertising purposes may be used to pay salaries of any of the officers of the associations above mentioned and which are named in the bill. A further guarantee that the money will be wisely spent lies in the method of which the money may be released.

The secretaries of the four tourist associations must first raise money by county board and city council appropriations, the sale of memberships in their respective organizations, and by donations from chambers of commerce, firms and individuals. With the money so raised advertising is placed in newspapers, magazines, on billboards, and booklets and other publicity prepared and distributed. The secretaries of the associations must show receipts of the money to the administrative board, which, if spent in keeping with the provisions of the act, will be approved and the administrative board will reimburse the association to the extent of 50 percent of the money spent. But in no case will the board pay more than $25,000.00 per year to any one of the four associations named in the act.

Thus, any county or community working with one of the four associations may have each dollar it raises for advertising purposes purchase two dollars worth of advertising.

The purchase of space and the printing of booklets for distribution at the Outdoor Life Exposition are interpreted as legitimate advertising provided that such exhibit is under supervision of one of the four secretaries. The Outdoor Show, held in Chicago early in May of each year attracts a quarter of a million vacationists who are there for the purpose of selecting a place in which to spend their vacation. And it is expected that the Michigan contingent will arrange exhibits that will eclipse those of all other states.

HURRY-UP WEDDERS STUMBLE BEFORE 5-DAY LIMIT

Many blighted romances may be traced directly to Michigan's law requiring five days notice of intent to marry before a license is issued, is the belief of Mrs. Irene Ferris, deputy county clerk of Ingham county. Mrs. Ferris displayed a package of marriage licenses, some of them beginning to turn yellow with age, for which application had been made. "Something happened—no one but the principals knows what, to change their minds after they made those applications," Mrs. Ferris said. They were mute reminders of pre-nuptial rifts which could not survive even the five days.

NO CONTEST FOR MONDAY ELECTION

CITY AND STATE TICKETS TO BE VOTED ON.

Several Townships Adjacent to Charlevoix Have Two Tickets in the Field.

There will be a sharp contrast between the election to be held Monday and the primary March 4. With contests on for many city offices, interest ran high at the primary and this city polled a record vote. The same was true with the entire county, with the three-cornered race for judge of the 13th judicial circuit the center of political attention.

The election Monday holds no prospects, however, of getting out anywhere a representative vote. There are no contests for city office and up in this district the state tickets causes barely a ripple.

Following is the line-up:

City Ticket.

For Mayor—Arthur Bergeon.

City Clerk—Ray S. Hamilton.

City Treasurer—Elma H. Cook.

Park Commissioner—John Zeiler.

First Ward.

Supervisor—H. A. Craig.

Alderman—Oakley J. Hammond.

Constable—Joseph Howard.

Second Ward.

Supervisor—John H. Bugbee.

Alderman—Ernest Kibbe.

Constable—Elmer Johnson.

Third Ward.

Supervisor—Archie Aleock.

Alderman—Jesse Smith.

Constable—W. J. Weikel.

State Ticket.

Justices of the Supreme Court—

Judge Louis H. Ford, Newberry;

Judge Walter H. North, Battle Creek;

Highway Commissioner—Grover C. Dillman.

University Regents—Walter H. Sawyer, R. Perry Shorts.

State Board of Education—Allen M. Freeland.

Supt. Public Instruction—Webster H. Pearce.

State Board Agriculture—Clark L. Brady, Wm. H. Berkey.

In four of the townships adjacent to Charlevoix two tickets are in the field and hot contests are in prospect.

LAKE CADILLAC LOSES ITS FISH

Spring Rains Clear Shore Line.

Prof. Carl Metzler of the state department of conservation has been summoned to Cadillac to try to discover what has mysteriously killed thousands of fish in a bay of Little Cadillac Lake.

As the ice is melting more than 1,000 dead fish—perch, pickerel, walleye pike, bull heads, grass pike, suckers, blue gills—have been washed to shore.

More than 10,000 remain lodged in the ice not yet thawed out.

Dr. P. A. Wolfe, president of the Cadillac Isaak Walton League chapter, and Ross Fowler, Wexford county game warden, are making a study of the dead fish, but so far cannot solve the mystery.

HARBOR SPRINGS WON STATE TITLE

CLASS C CHAMPIONSHIP COMES NORTH FIRST TIME

Jackson Gets Cup in A Division With Grand Haven Best in B and Bridgman in D.

For the first time in history of state basketball championship tournaments the class C trophy has been brought to Northern Michigan, with Harbor Springs, winner of the Charlevoix district and Petoskey regional meets, having the honor of bringing home the trophy. Harbor Springs won the title and cup at Detroit Saturday night, their playing being the feature of the entire tournament, according to reporters covering the contests.

Harbor came from behind in the final quarter to tie the count at 19 all with the powerful, rainy St. Michael's of Flint. The determined playing of the Harbor boys told in that fourth quarter and they sank four baskets to three for the Flint boys. They went into the overtime period confident they had at last found their shooting eye and proceeded to hook three baskets while the Flints were dropping through a lone free throw. Many Harbor Springs fans, both from home and from among the present residents of Detroit were on hand to cheer the boys from Little Traverse bay. They had been given an even chance to win from the larger team on pre-game dope by the experts.

Harbor used eight men in this contest, throwing fresh players into the fray and thus was able to sweep the Flints off their feet at critical moments of the game. Wingarden was high for his team with four baskets, while G. St. Michael of Flint, Reilly was high with three. Harbor's guards not only contributed their share with clever defensive work, but came thru with five field baskets, Campbell getting three and Linelan two. Faunce, sub center, scored one, and Bill, sub forward in McElroy's place, counted two.

The Flint lads counted nine field goals and two free ones, while Harbor hooked a dozen field baskets and one from the free toss line. Harbor Springs celebrated Saturday night with fireworks, whistles, etc., and with whistles and noise when the boys came home Monday.

Jackson in Class A

Jackson was best in Class A, easily defeating Highland Park of Detroit 29 to 15. The Prison City lads were careful and deliberate, working in for good shots while holding Detroit off with a stiff defense.

In Class B the Grand Havenites were altogether too good for Stambaugh and tired them out in the last half for a 25 to 18 score.

The same proved true when the Little Elk Rapids lads stacked up against Bridgman. The count was 20 to 19. Bridgman was playing class B brand ball during the entire tournament.

COUNCIL AID COMMUNITY CLUB PROJECT

Gave Financial Assistance to Organizations Monday Night.

Some time ago the Board of Education granted the women's organizations of the city the use of the old kindergarten room in the central school building for community club room purposes.

Last Monday evening representatives of the Shakespeare and Dancers Temperance Union appeared before the city council and asked for some financial assistance toward furnishings for the same.

After due discussion the request was granted. In most places the size of Charlevoix the library basement is available for club meetings and other small meetings of an educational nature, and the action of the board and council bring Charlevoix in line with the rest without putting the city to the expense of providing new quarters for its officials.

"Konjola certainly proved a God-send to our household," said Mr. and Mrs. Peter Deval, 27 Somerset avenue, Battle Creek, Michigan. "It relieved us both of years of suffering from indigestion, and that is our reason for endorsing this new medicine. We didn't know what it was to eat a meal without going thru terrible agony afterward. Food always caused gas and caused terrible bloating. Dizzy spells and heart palpitation also caused their share of trouble. Food did not digest properly, and we did not get the proper nourishment from it."

"We read and heard much about Konjola, and decided to try it, and it certainly proved itself to us. Our digestive organs are now functioning perfectly, no matter what we eat, and we are getting the proper nourishment from our food. Konjola gave us both new and glorious health, and we are glad to be able to tell everybody what a wonderful medicine it is. We shall recommend it every time we hear of anyone suffering from indigestion or any of the common ailments that we suffered from."

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

By B. C. Mellencamp

East Jordan Business Men's Club Finance a Potato Club.

At a meeting held in East Jordan last Thursday night, March 21, plans were perfected for the organization of a Potato Club by members of the East Jordan Business Men's Club and the parents of the interested boys and girls.

P. G. Lundin, potato club leader, from Michigan State College, was present and outlined in detail the method of organization, manner of carrying on the project and the objects in view.

The club will operate under a senior and junior partnership with a business man from East Jordan acting as senior partner and the boy or girl club member from the rural districts as the junior partner. Each senior partner will back the club member to the extent of signing a note for $20.00, which will purchase sufficient certified seed, fertilizer, corrosive sublimate for seed treatment and spray materials to care for a one-half acre plot. This will give the boy or girl everything necessary for high quality production potatoes. When the potatoes are sold each boy or girl will pay his or her debt from the sale of potatoes, and in addition should make a clear profit of from $20.00 to $50.00.

The senior members will visit the boys field of potatoes several times during the year and will put on a potato show and big banquet at the end of the year.

If you have a boy or girl who is interested in this project, see any member of the East Jordan Business Men's Club, Henry Wylie, agricultural teacher, or your county agent, and we will be glad to explain the project in detail.

Club Leaders Visit County.

G. A. Thorpe and Miss Sylvia Wixson, club leaders from M. S. C., spent the two days of March 21 and 22 in visiting the 13 Clothing, Handicraft and Hot Lunch Clubs that have operated this winter.

There are at present five boys clubs, six sewing clubs and two hot lunch clubs that are finishing their respective projects. They are already making plans for the Achievement days, at which time the best boy or girl is selected from each club, who is named the local champion.

The above indicated clubs were organized last November and have been faithfully completing the articles necessary, as well as the reports and stories and will finish their projects the first of May.

Evening Gowns Should Preserve Feminine Charm.

In order to appear smartly gowned make your evening frocks and sports outfit as different one from the other as possible.

This is the advice of Mary Nolan, who plays an important role in Lon Chaney's starring vehicle, "West of Zanzibar," for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer program coming to the Palace Theatre Saturday and Sunday.

"West of Zanzibar" was directed by Tod Browning, who also wrote the original story. Elliott Clawson adapted the story for the screen. The cast, beside Lon Chaney and Mary Nolan, consists of Warner Baxter, Lionel Barrymore, Kalla Pasha, Jane Daly, Rose Ward and others.

French Film is Vivid Portrayal of Great Stars.

Napoleon Bonaparte, one of the most romantic figures in all history, lives in vivid and unforgettable fashion in the great epic film titled "Napoleon" which was produced in the identical surroundings in which fate cast his brilliant and ill-starred life, and which now comes to America under the auspices of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, and will be shown at the Palace Theatre next Wednesday and Thursday.

"Napoleon" is a film that has captured the very spirit of a life and a brilliant, stirring, dramatic age. Motion picture critics and others who have seen it, have pronounced it the greatest film production that has ever come out of France. The most famous director of that country, famous in all Europe, Abel Gance, directed it.

FLASH
George MarshCHAPTER V—Continued
Drum-Beat of the Blizzard

The following night, Brock and Flash returned from the traps to find Gaspard with supper waiting.

"Kekway!" he shouted in the manner of the Cree as he thrust his head through the tent flaps. Then seeing the broken skin of Gaspard's cheek, asked in excitement, "Where did yuh get that?"

Gaspard smiled a one-sided grin. "Oh, I got dat from a f'ren ov yuh."

"You run into 'em? Got shot at?" demanded the aroused youth. "What're yuh holding back on me? Hurry up!"

Gaspard related the details of the ambush and his stratagem in luring the would-be assassin to his deserved doom.

"Old pard!" cried the white boy, seizing his friend with the top of a bear. "I'm sure proud of you!" Won't their eyes stick out when I tell them at Hungry House?"

Gaspard's dark features set like stone. "We not too sure to see Hungry House, Brock. These people are on de hunt for us. Dat Cree follow my trail, for sure, and den cut ahead to shoot me."

"Well, if it snows every few days, they may not find the camp for weeks, and remember, they think Brock and Kitchie are hunting them. That keeps 'em worried, and will keep 'em north of the lake, too."

The following morning Brock and Flash started for the end of Brock's trapline. On his last trip he had made a discovery: From a barren hill beyond the last of his timber and marten cubing traps, which ran along a timbered ridge, Brock had studied the country to the southwest through the small field-glasses loaned him by his father. For miles, the white barren was dotted with blue-gray shapes of feeding caribou. Evidently a winter migration, at which he had often the first days of the sun filtered like fingers of fire across the white plain reaching endlessly before him. But the wolves had done their work. Not a caribou was in sight. Focusing his glasses, Brock peered out, miles away, some gray objects moving rapidly on the horizon.

"There they are!" he muttered. "Scattered the deer to the four winds. Well, I'm going to get Flash, and see what the country looks like over west. I'll probably strike some caribou, too, and I'm hungry for fresh meat."

Returning to his camp, Brock lit the Flash to the sled, on which he loaded his blankets, a sled tent and what provisions he had, and started south-west on his wolf and caribou hunt.

Throughout the morning, although they crossed the trails left by the splayed, round-toed hoofs of hundreds of traveling caribou, and an animal did Brock see feeding on the barren where had they gone?

Then, as the low December sun sank, huddled by a leaden sky, warning the hunter that the swift night was hovering, he saw them. Far off, to the west, his glasses picked out groups of deer, digging the snow from the moss of the barren. But it was too late.

Turning back into the timber, Brock found a sheltered stand of spruce under a ridge, and cutting firewood, started his kettle, dug a sleep-hole, lined it with brush, and across one end anchored the canvas with twine.

With Flash between his knees, he waited for the gull to build.

"You know, old socks," Brock said to the dog whose narrow, oblique eyes looked with worship into the wind-burned face of his master. "We're two days' travel from home, and if we don't get a shot at the deer early tomorrow, Flash has got to eat fish."

At midnight, when the boy turned the sleds had been wiped from the sky as a spore upon clean white.

"Snow!" he muttered. "Later when he walked in stagnant darkness to consult his watch, he found that it was six o'clock. As his breakfast kettle boiled, the snow began to fall, and the wind rose.

"No hunt today, Flash! home for us!" announced the boy to the dog who sprang from his hole in the snow to shake himself and stretch.

Then, heads down, into the rising wind, Brock led the way to the end of the trap line. Gradually, as they traveled, Brock breaking trail for his dog and the sled, the wind gathered velocity, and the pin-pointed crystals hit their faces with increasing sting.

"A northern, for sure!" muttered the boy, between his teeth, as he doubled into the drive of the toothed wind, followed by the great husky, nose at heels of Brock's shoes, coat already crusted, shiny eyes shut against the torment of the pelting, sand-like crystals.

As they tumbled on into the pounding wind, "sneaked with snow like two white wraiths, the thoughts of Brock flashed back to the warning of his father: "Many a good man, stronger, older and wiser than you, my lad, has starved out after a big snow—lost!"

"But I'm not lost," he muttered in his teeth, "and once I strike the line, I'll get into camp in a day."

But Brock knew he was not traveling two miles an hour and would have to stop and make camp while there was light. That meant, if the wind held, he would take another day to reach his lines.

Flushing a wildbreak of thick growing spruce, the exhausted Brock rubbed the numbness from his hands, and dug a sleep-hole where, after many attempts, he kindled a fire of dried spruce sticks, then across it felled whole trees to feed it.

At last, rested, and warmed by the fire and hot tea, Brock gave the ravens Flash half the frozen fish he had brought, and made a stew for him, set of half the dried caribou. For dog and boy who had thundered all day through drift into the heart of the wind, the half ration of food felt stomachs aching in protest. But before them lay many a white mile, shoulder deep with drift, so Brock saved his food.

As massed artillery pounds enemy trenches, through the night the northern pounded the Kiwedin wastes. Hour by hour the drifts rose in height on the trail back to the trap line.

In the blackness preceding the late dawn, Brock walked cold to find his sleep-hole half buried in drift, for the wind had shifted. With numbed fingers he shoveled out the hole and gathering dead twigs from the under side of spruce, finally, peeling bark from a birch, got a fire going while the gray drift swept steadily over him.

"Three-day blow, Flash!" he greeted the dog, returning from an inspection of the drifts surrounding the thicket. "If we don't want to starve we've got to make tracks today."

Finally the water melted and Brock, allowing himself a small piece of cold bannock, filled his aching stomach with tea.

"Over the wind should shift!" he mused. "Must be in the northeast now."

By nine o'clock it was light enough to distinguish objects down wind, and Brock started. Had he been well supplied with provisions, he would have weathered the blow in camp, but to wait one—two days, until the northern blew itself out, while he and Flash grew weak from hunger, was not to his liking. While he yet had his strength, he would try for his trapping camp, where there was a little food and dried meat, and fish for Flash. It could not be far, not more than ten miles, and if the wind eased they might make it by night.

For two hours, the dogged youth, with the nose of his husky at his heels, pushed into the howling wind. At length, weak from hunger and exhaustion, he crossed a small valley where the drifts rose shoulder-high but the windbreak of the ridge ahead eased the going. He knew he must find a camping place soon and weather it out, for his legs were stiffening. The grub at the end of the trap line was still miles away. He must hold up for the night and wait for the morning to blow itself out. He couldn't back this wind loaded with shot. He was beaten.

But there was no cover here. He would freeze if he stayed. They must get over the ridge and down into the thick timber. Head down, body doubled on his thighs, the desperate lad plunged into the pin-pointed harp, which beat the blood like sand blasts, to his frost blackened face.

At his heels craved a dog. Through the white mist of the exposed ridge they battled; now flattened to the snow as wind flattens grass; now reeling forward until, again beaten to their knees, they sought breath for another effort. On and on went the pair, boy and dog, fighting for every white yard they wrung from the bludgeoning wind, as they sought the sanctuary of the spruce. There, at last, they won their way, and, side by side on the snow gasped for breath as the northern thundered over them.

Beaten, Brock wiped the ice from his tortured face with a blue handkerchief, and the feel of the butt of Brock's shoes, the husky had held to his master's heels. Tenderly the boy freed the inflamed eyes of his dog from the crust which blinded him. Then, where the spruce stood thick and no drift was making, Brock dug a hole, lined and covered it with boughs and cut wood for a fire.

"Well, wait it out here, Flash," he muttered. "You survive, my son, and I will have."

Exhausted with hunger after the hours of grinding toil against the force of the wind, dog and boy finished the pitiful last-ration of food which remained, and curling before the blizzards, slept the sleep of exhaustion.

To Brock's surprise and joy, he opened his eyes at dawn to find that the blizzard had blown itself out and the snow had ceased.

"Hey, you Flash!" he cried to the dog who had dug into the snow at the side of the hole. "Wake up, you old sleepy head! Today we have a real feed."

Brock was weak from lack of food but the thought of the meat he and Flash would share at the trap line that day, drove his hunger from his mind. Drinking the water in which he had boiled his tea bag, he lightened his belt over his empty stomach and started on legs stiff from the exertion of the day before.

On the brow of the first ridge he mounted, Brock stopped to set his course. For a long space he gazed to the north and east, then his brows contracted as a puzzled look entered his eyes.

"By the great horned owl, Flash," he announced to the dog whose eyes watched the boy with interest, "I don't see one darned landmark!"

MAKE THIS YOUR CREED

"The most malign of all dangers confronting the nation today is disobedience of law."

"There would be little traffic in illegal liquor if only criminals patronized it."

"No greater national service can be given by men and women of good will—who, I know, are not unmindful of the responsibilities of citizenship—than that they should by their example, assist in stamping out crime and outlawry by refusing participation in and condemning all transactions with illegal liquor.—From the inaugural address of President Herbert Hoover."

RAISING THE MONEY

From the cradle to the grave, it's trouble—and taxes.

Once upon a time, this sounds like a fairy tale, taxes were simple to levy and collect. They were of but one or two kinds—general property, personal property, and maybe one or two other things. But now it is different.

The taxpayer pays and pays. He pays for his real estate, for his piano, his automobile and the family dog. He pays when he mortgages his home, buys a car of tobacco, and his estate pays when he dies, paying taxation has not entirely consumed his property.

Governor Fred W. Green had much of this kind of a picture in mind when he suggested at the beginning of the legislative session a state income tax, limited both as to time and amount, as the best means for providing funds necessary for a state institutional building program.

Nobody denies that Michigan state institutions are in a deplorable condition. Too long have they been made the cat's paw of politics and neglected. Everybody is agreed this condition should be remedied, but when we look around for somebody to pay the bill the line divides.

It was to save the small taxpayer that Governor Green first suggested a state income tax. He believed those most able to pay should bear the brunt of this great humanitarian work. As a large taxpayer he did not seek means of exempting himself. He saw in it an opportunity for wealth to justify its position in relation to society.

In this he seems likely to meet with disappointment. The mere mention of such a tax brought forth a storm of protest, particularly from the metropolitan press, which by virtue of its location represents the majority of those most likely to be affected by a tax upon incomes.

It is not a time when this kind of selfishness should be taken into account. The legislature, rejecting a state income tax, immediately finds itself confronted with all kinds of new tax ideas, but in all of them the element of evasion looms high. Perhaps that is the reason why many of them are seeking to make it a personal matter with the governor, to charge him with being responsible for the condition which the state finds itself, to blame him if the method they select results in putting the burden upon those least able to pay. It is true—that the power to tax is the power to destroy—but no people were ever destroyed by taxing the strong to aid the weak.

THE HUNGER FOR BUSINESS

To most sensible minded people it looks as if the cigarette makers were going too far. They are too hungry for business.

Probably cigarette smoking, within reason, is the least harmful use of tobacco. But tobacco in any form is bad for young people—bad for boys and girls. Young folks do not need tobacco—but milk. The destructive effect of the cigarette on growing folks has been demonstrated beyond doubt.

Women do not need to smoke. They have enough trouble with the complexion as it is. Smoking is worse for women than for men—and worse in another respect—women transmit their weakness to the future. Men do, too, but not as obviously or as directly.

But the cigarette makers do not care about these things. If they only dared they would go further than they do. As it is, most of them have offended, through their advertising and arguments, nearly every sound thinking person, irrespective of personal opinion as to the use of tobacco.

There was once a certain, degenerate type of a saloonkeeper who started to make future customers out of the boys of his day. Society soon fixed him. The cigarette manufacturer is next in line for discipline.

THEY INJURE THE CAUSE

The Cuthbertson bill, providing life sentence for fourth time prohibition offenders, which was buried in the senate last week when it was referred to the committee on state affairs over the protest of L. G. Dickinson, will be reported out of the committee this week at the personal solicitation of Governor Green, who was charged by both Mr. Dickinson and Rev. Holsapple with being responsible for its subversion.

That is more fair than either of these gentlemen would have acted were the situation reversed. So victors have the attacks of Rev. Holsapple been recently against those who refused to do his entire bidding that eleven members of the house, known and proven friends of prohibition, went on record last week seeking his removal as a member of the anti-saloon league.

When the avowed champions of prohibition protest against the actions of the state leader there is every reason to believe the true cause of temperance is being injured. The surprising thing about men of the Holsapple type is, they seek only to crush the offender, never striving for his reformation and the consequent good it will do their cause.

It seems impossible for them to understand that severity has never been a deterrent. That under the life penalty for fourth convictions only the driftwood was being caught. That Michigan was being held up to ridicule and the natural resentment of a large class of our citizens was leading them to withdraw their active support in the battle against the liquor evil.

It seems peculiar that so much stress is being placed upon vindictive punishment, with never a thought about the convicted man after he has been sent away to prison. You cannot reform society or remedy a condition by such methods. You cannot take a man away from society, proceed to make a worse criminal out of him, and then turn him back into the world without injuring those who helped to put him there.

When we become more concerned in reformation of the individual than in wholesale and unforgiving indictment, then we will begin making progress. Putting men in overcrowded prisons under excessive punishment destroys their very souls, causes a cancerous growth in our social system which is likely to end in disaster. It is time we began using a little common sense.

INDIVIDUAL RESPONSIBILITY

Michigan legislators face the task of providing funds for an institutional building campaign. It is ten weeks since they convened and as yet nothing has been accomplished.

The lack of facilities in caring for unfortunate in need of hospitalization has reached a deplorable condition. The situation will brook no further delay.

Yet, in spite of this necessity for immediate action, we find certain legislators injecting personal politics and ambitions into the already jammed mess. Alleviating as quickly as possible this needless suffering and misery seems to have no part in their little program.

If this situation is not met promptly and effectively the people are going to demand an explanation. No shifting of responsibility will be allowed—every soul will be forced to stand upon his own feet.

The people, always patient, are chafing under this "Nero" act by those chosen to represent them at Lansing. Action alone will be accepted as an answer.

PROTECT THE HIGHWAYS

In spite of strict regulations limiting the weight of loads that can safely be transported over paved and gravelled highways at this season of the year, highway officials are being compelled to make wholesale arrests in order to enforce these traffic regulations for the preservation of this modern means of transportation.

One would naturally think that those engaged in this kind of transportation would be among the first to observe this means of protecting their own business. But such is not the case. Cupidity and selfishness enters into their conduct much the same as it does in other lines of business and so the state has found it necessary to restrict these unscrupulous drivers from doing the very thing that would destroy them.

Michigan furnishes these freight cars of the highways roadbed at practically no cost. At public expense this right-of-way is kept open for use every month of the year—practically every hour of every day and night. One is at a loss to understand the reasoning of those who would violate the provisions of this intelligent effort to protect one of our greatest necessities and conveniences.

OUR LEADERS

Calvin Coolidge is now a private citizen of the United States of America.

While thousands were cheering the inauguration of his successor he quietly boarded a train for his old home, content to let history write the final chapter of his life as a public servant.

In the quiet and peaceful succession of our leaders lies the strength of this nation.

Though they may be leaders of peace or war, there comes the inevitable into the ranks of common citizenship. There is far fare for the moment while the change is taking place, then solitude and calm retrospection.

No nation more severely reverts to its great men than the United States. Yet we know there is a time and place for them all, and while there may be regret at their passing, we accept the change as a part of the great scheme evolved by our colonial fathers for the perpetuation of this government.

ENCOURAGING REPORT

The financial position of farmers in Minnesota, Wisconsin, North Dakota and Michigan as reflected by their payments of installments upon their land when due and more prompt payments of state and local taxes has improved materially during the past year, according to Fred H. Klawson, president of the Federal Land Bank, in a statement just made public.

Another commendable portion of the report shows that despite the extra work incident to the sale of farms and the unfavorable sentiment created by the mismanagement of former officers of the bank's net operating profit has increased.

Under Mr. Klawson and his present corps of efficient associates the bank is functioning in the manner and for the purpose for which it was intended and will prove of immense value to the agricultural interests of the Northwest.—Bemidji (Minn.) Sentinel.

MICHIGAN PROSPERS

Latest releases on employment figures for Michigan indicate this state is among the most prosperous in the nation.

More men are now employed in gainful occupation than in any other period in several months. Experts are predicting new high levels in the labor market before the end of the year.

Which means, that compared with the rest of the country, we are in a prosperous condition. Products of Michigan factories are finding markets in every part of the known world and this export trade is expected to increase under the new industrial policies of the Hoover administration.

Last year the automotive industry figures for Michigan indicate the exports of automobiles. Foreign demand for Michigan made cars is increasing and all of this gives employment to Michigan labor. The future looks far more bright than it has in a long time.

SPRING UNDER FOOT

We are now preparing to welcome spring.

Perhaps we should not say anything about it, for when we talk about the weather some changes usually come about. If we call the weather cold, it gets warmer. If we tell of warmth the chill winds begin to blow.

But spring must come. It always has. It always will. The first days of spring are not always pleasant. The receding snow leaves the dirt. But the warm rains soon take away the winter's grime and nature turns green.

Then it is that winter has its compensations. No part of the United States is more wonderful in summer and fall than this county with its lakes and woods and hills.

Winter helps to strengthen by its contrast.

IT MAY BE DANGEROUS

In the early days of the west a man who rode a horse was given the "California collar," a hanging was then called.

We think of the older days as very, very rough, and they were.

Now a murder happens in the larger cities every few days and what happens? No one is hung—except under unusual conditions and in most cases the murderer is not even apprehended.

The enforcement of law is at the basis of government. At some time in the future America will realize that fact.

Then it will not be safe to kill a man, whether you dislike him or not.—Grand Rapids (Minn.) Herald-Review.

"The election has again confirmed the determination of the American people that regulation of private enterprise and not government ownership or operation is the course rightly to be pursued in our relation to business."

Thus does President Hoover challenge the right of government to enter into competition with its citizens. It is an emphatic declaration that hereafter private initiative will not be hampered or hamstrung by Washington bureaucracy entrenched behind government ownership.

It is the firm call of one citizen to another that it is the duty of this nation to encourage individual effort in this great industrial era upon which we are just entering.

Spray Residue Removed

By Washing the Fruit

Fortunately the washing of fruit now seems to be a fairly simple solution of the spray residue problem. Fruit immersed for one minute in a bath of hydrochloric acid of 1 to 500 has given very satisfactory results, and treated fruit has been kept in storage for five months with no apparent injury. In fact, the bath seems to improve the flavor of some varieties, notably Rhode Island Greening. In the fall of 1926 two men using sprayer baskets and wooden hogheads dipped 150 baskets of fruit in three hours. The acid costs about 15 cents, and the entire operation was performed for less than two cents a bushel.

White Pine Blister

White pine blister rust is caused by a fungus. Very strangely it spends part of its life on currant and gooseberry bushes and part on the pine. Accordingly the best methods of control are to remove all currant and gooseberry bushes from the vicinity of white pine plantings. The disease is usually not detected on the pine until it has become established, showing itself by the bright orange-yellow pustules that break through the bark from within.

Experience may be the best teacher, but many of her lessons are disregarded.

GLOS-TONE

Martin-Sencour Glos-Tone is a free-flowing, washable, subdued gloss paint of superior quality. It is ideally adapted for interior decoration of homes.

Glos-Tone may be applied with full assurance of satisfaction on surfaces of wood, plaster, wall-board, cement, stucco, brick, stone and metal.

The Motorist Will Stop for the Signal Light at the Street Intersection Where He Will Not Slow Down for Oncoming Train

It is one of the strange experiences of railroads in dealing with traffic at the highway crossing that a large number of motor vehicle drivers are indifferent to all danger.

It is an anomaly of this situation that the motorist will stop for the red light at the street intersection, where he will give no heed whatever to the signal at the railroad crossing on the highway.

DANGER lurks around the corner in both places.

BEHIND the automatic signal at the street intersection there is generally the police officer and the police ordinance with its inevitable fine to back its message.

BEHIND the automatic signal or the crossing watchman there usually is no such force of law, but there may be injury or death.

THE Motorist, through some perversity in make-up, stops at the Street Intersection for the Signal Light which indicates possible peril or a police court fine, where he often will not be aided by the oncoming train with its infinitely greater danger in the event of a mishap.

TOO often this certain type of motorist seems to set a higher value on his pocketbook than on his life.

THE American railroads are doing everything within their power to prevent casualties at the crossings.

THE American railroads have not the money to eliminate all of the grade crossings, for this would involve $20,000,000 additional investment.

ELIMINATION of crossings would not be necessary, if the motorist and others were made to take reasonable care in crossing railroad tracks at grade.

PUBLIC authorities, including the Police, State Troopers, and Village Marshals—as well as the Newspapers—should take an aggressive interest in any policy that makes for obedience to the railroad crossing signal.

NEWSPAPERS should constantly impress upon all the importance of observing signal indications.

THE caution so given by public authority—or the warning so sounded by the newspapers—may save a life—or many lives.

AFTER all the saving of a citizen's life alone pays a big return on the good work so done, whether the result arises from individual or co-operative action.

What Do Your Crops Pay?

In making your farm-crop plan this year, or for any year—the regular crops should be grown as usual. But A SPOT CASH CROP OF PICKLES deserves a prominent place in any successful farm plan in Northern Michigan.

By planting the "COMMON SENSE" way, and thinning vines as covered in growing directions, the crop is easily handled. In fact, record shows less labor hours than required by several other crops such as potatoes, etc.

PICKLES PLANTED AND THINNED RIGHTLY 6t in on any farm, large or small—even where help is scarce. Ask us. We'll give you full directions with actual views of "Common-Sense" fields of Pickles that pay big returns with less labor.

Many uncertainties removed. Seed free. Market sure. Prices guaranteed, and Spot-cash paid on delivery. Cash yields speak for themselves:

John Triplett	$256.68 acre	Wm. Shaw	$214.48 acre
Mrs. C. Beattie	$128.06 acre	T. Finely	$173.44 acre
A. J. Bolhuis	$140.22 acre	E. Chvátal	$164.76 acre
C. Zitka	$166.98 acre	S. Bysira	$284.72 acre

Scores of similar yields are on record year after year. At the high 1929 prices, the acre not producing at least $150 is not doing nearly what it should. Acreage will be large. Secure your contract now. Write or phone—

A telephone makes any room more livable. You may use it not only to talk to near neighbors and distant friends, but the installation can be made so that it will be possible to telephone from one room to another within your home.

Extension telephones are inexpensive conveniences which are becoming more and more popular. There are portable telephones, too, that can be moved from room to room.

FLASH The Lead Dog

Bruck got out his glasses from the shed and slowly swept the surrounding country. Every hill and conspicuous spruce or jack-pine, every ice-topped pond, every reach of frozen muskeg, he studied for some landmark he had noted on his way south west along the great barren. But his search was in vain. He was in a country he had never seen.

Somewhat he had been tricked by the wind. It had shifted and he had followed the shift. He had probably worked far to the east, but not more than ten miles. He hadn't made much more than that against that wind. So he turned into the northwest.

Through the short hours of the sub-arctic December day, they traveled over the fresh blanket of snow which had buried the country. But when the sun deflected into the lead-colored haze, signaling the western horizon, and Bruck's double camp, the wind-blown features of the boy's face, started by the whip of the blizzard, were sober with doubt. That day he should have reached or seen the ridge at the end of his lines and the barren to the south. As the light faded and the space filled with purple shadow, days or months away with a quashed sun, he had worked far to the east or west—which he did not know.

And the last of the food was gone! How long could he travel without grub? Staring as they were, he and Flash could make the trap-lines and home camp—if he only knew in which direction they lay. But to wander—lost!

Suddenly, the two friends slept, while out faded a glowing stars stole the cloudy patches of the forest night, while a faint moon for that which would fill the arch of their timbered ghostly shapes. The gray shadows drifted noiselessly through the silencing air, talons rose to the swift thrust of hapless mouse or rabbit.

"Flash, you look hungry," said Bruck in the morning, with a wry grin, as he tightened his belt, and started into the north. "Today we hunt as we go. A couple of rabbits would taste pretty good, eh?"

Only they could run into earthen thought the boy, but the presence of elves on the blades of the midnight doubtless had scattered the deer far and wide.

At noon, Bruck built a small fire and rested. While Flash as yet showed little interest from his look of lead, Bruck was fast working. The ache of his clamoring stomach had now ceased but in its place stood a heaviness—a numbness into his limbs. He wondered how long he would be able to travel searching for the food and when he failed to strike game; two-three days, possibly more, then a starvation camp, where day by day he would weaken until he could no longer put wood to keep his fire and the numbness of the white death would find him before he could find Flash. He would still hang on, for a lucky starves slowly. And then again, he would find rabbits, or caribou, and work back to camp and Gaspard.

Filling his stomach with hot water, with a strong brook turned to the dog, "Flash like a fool, I got you into this mess. Now I'm going to get you out. Come on, old boy, and we'll shoot some supper."

Before dusk dropped like a blanket on the Kiwadin wastes, Bruck shot two rabbits, which he shared with Flash, and that night, for a space, the fear in his heart was dulled.

Wrapped in his robes by the fire, Bruck's harassed thoughts thrashed back and forth over the days just passed. Often he had heard his father say that bushmen, backed by nerve, would, in the end, bring my lost man home. What heat them was losing nerve and heart at the same time.

Well, ruminated the boy in the robes, if nerve would drive him to the Yellow-Log he would make it tomorrow or the next day. Then it would be a case of having the strength to reach the camp on the headwaters. But his strength was going fast. To the best of his belief he had wandered east, past his trap-lines, in the blinding snow. If only he could uncoil himself! What a feast he and Flash would have on red meat!

Then, there was Gaspard! Already, in search of his old-time partner, he would have visited the trap-line camp! But Bruck's trail to the big barren had been signed out by the snow floor Gaspard!

UNDER THE DOME AT THE STATE CAPITOL.

In a week characterized by considerable static, the deliberations in the senate Thursday stood out with prominence as the only session of the week which was charged with statewide interest.

Action on the Cuthbertson "boot-legger" measure by the senate produced virtually the only news of the week.

By a vote of 28 to 4, the senate approved the Cuthbertson-Miner liquor bill which would provide a mandatory penalty either by fine or imprisonment, for every violation of the liquor law. If a sale is involved and proven, the minimum would be one year imprisonment and a fine of $100. The maximum would be imprisonment for four years and a fine of $2,000.

Home brewers and others submitting defenses where a sale is not proven, would be subject to a mandatory sentence of either a fine of from $50 to $2,000, or imprisonment from 50 days to four years. Those who opposed the measure were Senators: Adolph F. Heikamp of Lake Linden; Cass J. Jankowski, George J. Kolowich and Arthur E. Wood of Detroit.

While attention was directed last week toward the subjects of liquor and crime prevention, the finance committees of the house and senate continued their joint daily meetings, laboring in their attempt to find a path through the jungle of tax legislation, to lead them to the solution of the financial problems which beset the state because of the large institutional building program sponsored by the governor for the next four years.

The close of the week found that sentiment was definitely centering on the old, reliable plan to lay enough tax on the property of the state to settle the immediate institutional building needs. The governor is thought not in opposition to such a plan, in view of the utter failure of the legislature to agree on any one kind of special taxation to raise the needed funds.

Thus, the legislature has but to see its way through the matter of finances, and then plan to start for home a few weeks later. It is concluded that the easiest way to raise money for state institutions, is to increase the state property tax, and go home. After the general needs of the state have been taken care of, then special forms of taxation for the relief of the poorer school districts can be considered.

Consideration of the 3-4ths mill tax for the institutional building program, as embodied in a measure by Rep. Gus T. Hartman of Houghton, was delayed in the house committee on general taxation, Wednesday, when Rep. Wilbur B. Snow of Comstock, author of a 2 per cent state income tax measure, asked that the matter of the mill tax deliberations be put over until after the joint meeting of the two taxation committees scheduled for Thursday afternoon.

George Lord, former state tax commissioner under the administration of Governor Groesbeck, addressed the two committees Thursday afternoon, discussing ways and means of meeting the state's financing problems.

Political circles throughout the state, so far as county government goes, have found cause for study in the joint resolution in the senate which would provide for complete upheaval of many political jobs now held in nearly every county in Michigan. The measure, from Sen. Ernest T. Conlin of Grand Rapids, is a joint resolution which would call for a constitutional amendment, if passed in the legislature. The essence of the measure is that home rule for counties, with county managers, would be available to any county whose citizens elect to come under this act. A vote by each county would be necessary to bring the county under the act.

Of interest to agriculturalists was the course of the measure sponsored by Sen. Norman B. Horton of Fruit Ridge, which would create new regulations for the handling of dairy products. At the close of the week, it was in order for final consideration by the senate, but was delayed further, pending the removal of a number of amendments which have been attached to it since its introduction. A second public hearing on this measure was set by the senate for Wednesday afternoon, March 27.

The house of representatives approved the measure sponsored by Rep. H. Earl McNitt of Cadillac, which provides regulations for the sale of table stock. Irish potatoes, setting up grading rules relative to the condition of the potatoes.

Passage of a house measure by the senate, relating to the standards of fruits, virtually makes it law, that the standards set by the commissioner of agriculture will be legal standards, except when others are specifically provided for the state. The measure still requires the signature of the governor.

Another piece of progressive legislation in the house that was advanced another step toward enactment as law, was the reporting out of a committee of the proposed constitutional amendment by which the state would aid in the financing of homes for persons in the lower income groups.

The proposed amendment to the state constitution empower the legislature to provide for the creation of home loan districts with authority to raise money on the credit of the district and to advance the money to housing associations.

Saving of large amounts in state finances were claimed for the proposition of having all public and university text books in this state, printed by convicts, in an address to members of the house, Tuesday night by former Sen. A. D. Hughes. Speaker Ming's approval of such a plan has already been enlisted. A cut in taxation for education would, result, it is claimed.

From the desk of Sen. Charles A. Sink of Ann Arbor, came a measure by which the state would share with assessment districts the cost of constructing drains, if any state lands are located within the districts benefited by the proposed drains. The percentage of the cost that would be paid by the state would be determined by the state administrative board. This was passed by the senate Monday evening.

PROHIBITION

President Hoover's first reference regarding prohibition and its enforcement by the national government seems to have satisfied even the most ardent supporters of the cause. He has assured the people that a thorough investigation will first be made, then intelligent action will follow.

It is probable that in due time some satisfactory solution will be arrived at, but first President Hoover calls attention to the hypocrisy of the individual who, while pretending to deplore wholesale violations of the liquor laws and slack enforcement methods, is himself a patron of the bootlegger.

Such a situation is irreconcilable. It is the old story of the house divided. As long as a man remains in the market for liquor somebody will be found to supply his wants. Both equally are law breakers. One will not long exist without the other. If national tastes must be changed, but that will take a long time, for tastes and habits change slowly.

At Lansing legislators wrangle over the length of prison sentence that should be dealt out to habitual offenders. All agree that offenders should be punished, but are split on the question of severity. Nothing, however, is said about the legislator who insists on exacting the extreme penalty, but who is guilty of buying liquor.

In the meantime it might not be a bad idea if the average citizen set his own house in order by refusing to purchase booze thereby encouraging violations. Prohibitionists would gain strength for their cause by pleading for voluntary abstinence on the part of the individual, instead of wasting their time demanding excessive punishment for violators.

We first have to save the state and nation by preaching respect and observance for all laws. In time, if personal liberties have been unduly abrogated, they will be restored through the peaceful machinery of the law. But our nation is our greatest concern—it must come first.

CHARLEVOIXITES TO PICNIC IN THE WEST

Call for Reunion at Los Angeles Made to Former Residents.

From California comes a request from Mrs. Hazel Pearl Phillips, former local resident, for the Courier to publish the following notice of a Charlevoix picnic to be held at Los Angeles in April:

"Attention! All Charlevoixites living in California! On Sunday, April 14th, at the Michigan Picnic at Syracuse Grove, Los Angeles, there will be a reunion of all the Charlevoix people. We will have our picnic dinner at the tables in the garden to the left of the band stand. Reservations have been made for these tables for us. We wish to organize a semi-annual Charlevoix picnic and reunion this time. Cards will be sent to all whose addresses can be procured. Let's get together and meet old friends and acquaintances."

If it was a month or so earlier, ye Ed, certainly would like to be there for that picnic, but seeing how spring is with us again, Charlevoix isn't to be beaten anywhere.

GOOD FRIDAY UNION OBSERVANCE BY LOCAL CHURCHES

Following the plan of observance in past years, the churches of Charlevoix will hold a union Passion service during the hour from two to three o'clock Friday afternoon, March 29, in the Congregational church. A combined choir with singers from the cooperating churches under the leadership of Mrs. A. J. Stelter, will sing a choral work by Daniel Protheroe entitled "The Passion." The address by Rev. B. G. Mattson will occupy the interludes between the several parts of the music, the whole being an appropriate interpretation of the Passion Hours on the Cross.

All business houses are being requested by a special committee appointed by the mayor to close their places of business for an hour and a half from 1:30 to 3:00 o'clock.

It should be noted that similar observances have become the custom in nearly all towns and cities in the country.

The churches sponsoring this union meeting earnestly invite the people of Charlevoix, young and old, to be present. The co-operating churches are: Baptist, Congregational, Christian Science, Church of God, Protestant Episcopal.

Election Monday.

Next Monday is election day. Most everything is settled in Charlevoix at the primaries, but occasionally an amendment is submitted or someone runs on slips, so it is never wise to be absent from the polls on the day when a candidate's fate is clinched.

LOCAL GIRLS WRITE COLLEGE SONG WORDS

Verse Accepted at Central State Normal College, Mt. Pleasant.

Charlevoix high school seems to have more than its share of young people to gain distinction at other schools and colleges.

The last to make a mark for themselves are the Misses Julia Britton and Kathryn Tumati, students at Central State Normal College at Mt. Pleasant, who have written the words and music for a school song which has been accepted and added to the list of alma mater praises. The girls have, with the assistance of the school band director, arranged the music for band instrumentation, so the strains of "We're on the Line to Victory" may be heard wherever the Normal athletes are engaged in defending the school honor. Follow are the words:

We're on the line to victory, There are no warriors such as we, We'll stand here and cheer for you, We're from "Central State."

RAH! RAH! RAH! We're on the line to victory, None so brave and true as we; We're going to win, so don't give in, Oh, "Central State."

SMELT RUNNING LOCAL STREAMS

LARGE NUMBER TAKEN FROM STOVER CREEK LAST WEEK

Storm Conditions Have Halted Run Temporarily—Streams Under State Supervision Now.

A two-year search to determine whether smelt spawned in streams entering Lake Charlevoix and Lake Michigan ended last Friday when it was discovered they were running up Stover creek in quite large numbers. Several young fish were said to have snatched about fifty with hook and line during the day time and brought several to Wood Bros. Hardware store.

A small group of men accompanied Game Warden Henry Fike to the stream that night, and were allowed to dip. Probably a thousand smelt were taken. Later, however, other parties visited the creek and dipped several thousand more.

Inasmuch as Stover creek is a closed trout stream, Warden Fike immediately got in touch with the conservation department at Lansing for instructions. District Warden Ed. Deuell was in Lansing at the time and, upon his return, he brought word that the department had issued a special permit for dipping. Warden Deuell also announced Tuesday that there was a large run of smelt in Boyne river and also in Advance creek near Boyne City. The latter stream is open for dipping by special permit, but no dipping will be allowed in Boyne river this year at least.

Last Saturday night a large number of both local and out of town people were at Stover creek after smelt. It is estimated several thousand were taken, but since that time the run has completely stopped. No smelt were found Sunday, Monday and Tuesday nights. It is thought that the terrific northeast wind during Sunday night and Monday's storm blocked the creek outlet into Lake Charlevoix with ice and slush snow, stopping the fish from entering. The outlet was clear Wednesday morning, however, and it is expected the run will start again. Of all the smelt taken so far, the male species has predominated ten to one and this fact has led to the opinion that the spawning run has just started and will not reach its height until this week.

Warden Fike will be in charge of dipping at Stover creek during the balance of the run, and others have been placed in charge in the eastern end of the county. If necessary, to handle the crowds, Sheriff Dave Vaughan will deputize several men to assist. From now on no dipping will be allowed until a certain hour. This regulation was lacking the first two nights and resulted in small catches. Warden Deuell also announced Tuesday that he had asked that county fire wardens be commissioned to patrol the streams.

Charlevoix county has a bonanza in the discovery of smelt in its streams. Comprehensive plans are under way to handle the situation another year and it is expected the run will be much larger than. Thousands make the trip to dip smelt at Reuland and Charlevoix county will get its share of this thing another year. Although smelt are useless from an angling standpoint and are known to be a deadly destroyer of small game fish, they are in our waters and the only thing to be done is to capitalize on them.

It would appear to this writer that an excellent plan would be to place

SUCKER CREEKS OPEN TO SPEARS

Lots of Fun Anticipated by Those Who Care to Try Their Luck.

Spearing suckers is now authorized by the department of conservation on Susan creek, according to an announcement made early this week by Game Warden Henry Fike. After considerable effort on the part of Ed. Deuell, district warden, and Henry Fike, state department officials have granted permission so that those enjoying this sport may try their luck. Many streams in Emmet county have also been opened. They are mostly in the northern part and are as follows:

Carlton Creek, French Farm Creek, Big Sucker Creek, Little Sucker Creek, and Wycamp Creek between Wycamp Lake and Lake Michigan.

A part of Carp river is also opened, the river being opened down stream (north) from Section 32, Town 39, North Range 4 West.

Prospective fishermen are advised by field officer Bryant of the conservation department to make sure of the lines of section 32, as it is unlawful to take the mentioned fish in other parts of Carp River.

APRIL LAMB WAS A ROARING LION

OLD MAN WINTER PAYS US UN-EXPECTED VISIT

Citizens Don Fur Coats and Shovel Coal As Spring Weather Turned to Wintry Blasts.

Those weather prophets who scoffed at the old adage of "March coming in like a lamb and going out like a lion," or visa versa, took a severe jolt last Sunday and Monday when after four weeks of beautiful spring weather Old Man Winter paid us another rather unwelcome visit.

Northern Michigan residents shook the moth balls out of the winter togs they had stored away for next season's use and dug deep into the remains of their coal supply to keep warm.

Starting with a decided change in temperature Saturday afternoon, the storm gradually increased in violence and by Monday morning city streets and almost every road except the state trunk line highways were piled high with snow. Highway truck plows were kept busy maintaining automobile traffic on the trunk lines and, owing to an unexpected misfortune which occurred when the city truck hit a manhole and was disabled, city streets did not get plowed. Fowler's bus completed their morning trip, but after bucking deep drifts, turned back and did not make their afternoon run between here and Petoskey.

However, the Charlevoix region did not seem as hard hit as was the central part of the lower peninsula. Around Big Rapids, Howard City and other points in that section the rain and snow turned to sleet and the communication lines were completely wrecked. At least this was the word coming through from points along the northern edge of the storm belt. Thompsonville and Cadillac reported wire trouble on south.

While roads were drifted the railroads did not seem to be so deeply snowed in, their trains running nearly on schedule.

Radio broadcast in the word that the storm was general all over the lakes states and that wires were down in many sections of Wisconsin and other states. The Milwaukee and Chicago newspaper radio station broadcast out news in the west, and in many locations this was the only means of getting news through.

Janet Livingston was a charming young hostess to twenty-three of her girl friends last Wednesday evening at the home of her parents on Clinton street, the occasion being her thirteenth birthday anniversary.

Games and contest were enjoyed by the young people, after which Mrs. Livingston served lunch, which included the usual birthday cake. Miss Janet received many lovely gifts in memory of the occasion.

RECORD LOW VOTE WAS SET MONDAY

SEVERE SPRING STORM KEPT VOTERS FROM POLLS.

Little Interest Throughout Entire County With Less Than One Thousand Ballots Cast.

A late spring blizzard of unprecedented severity, which made travel in the city and country next to impossible, contrived to cut the vote in Charlevoix and county at large to the smallest on record Monday. In Charlevoix city, but 79 people exercised their voting franchise. There is considerable contrast between this year's election and last, when the record ballot of 615 was cast. A year ago there were contests on for alderman in the second and third wards, while Monday there was no opposition for any office, nor any local issues to entice the public into a raging storm.

Following is the vote of the three wards:

First Ward.
For Mayor—Arthur Bergeon.....8
For City Clerk—Ray S. Hamilton.....8
For City Treasurer—Elma H. Cook.....6
For Park Commissioner—John J. Zettler.....6
For Supervisor—Harry A. Craig.....6
For Alderman—Oakley J. Hammond.....6
For Constable—Joseph Howard.....6

Second Ward.
For Mayor—Arthur Bergeon.....39
For City Clerk—Ray S. Hamilton.....39
For City Treasurer—Elma H. Cook.....39
For Park Commissioner—John J. Zettler.....39
For Supervisor—John H. Burbee.....39
For Alderman—Ernest J. Kibbe.....39
For Constable—Elmer Johnson.....39

Third Ward.
For Mayor—Arthur Bergeon.....27
For City Clerk—Ray S. Hamilton.....26
For City Treasurer—Elma H. Cook.....28
For Park Commissioner—John J. Zettler.....27
For Supervisor—Arelie Aleck.....27
For Alderman—Jesse Smith.....27
For Constable—W. J. Weikel.....27

The city of Charlevoix cast but one Democratic vote on the state ticket. Fifteen out of 25 precincts of the county voted 478 Republican and 65 Democratic ballots.

MOYER FARM HOME AND BARN WERE DESTROYED

A blaze from burning grass set a fire which completely destroyed the house and barn at the William Moyer farm, several miles north of Charlevoix on US-31 last Friday afternoon. The city fire fighting equipment went to the scene, but were unable to render assistance other than to keep the fire from some of the smaller buildings. The loss was a heavy one.

OLD OFFICERS ARE STILL IN FAVOR OF VOTERS.

Hayes Proposition to Move Township
Hall Lost by 12 Votes—Light Ballot Cast.

Although interest in the spring election in townships adjacent to Charlevoix was high, badly drifted roads following the severe storm of Sunday night and Monday cut the vote down nearly fifty per cent. Many who went to the polls were forced to walk, while the majority stayed at home.

Out in Hayes township the proposition to raise $1,000 to change the location and erect a new town hall lost by 12 votes. Those from the western end of the township most interested in the proposition were unable to get to the polls.

In Marion township, William Withers, incumbent, won out on Ticket No. 2 for clerk, as did also Bert Elhoff for highway commissioner. In Norwood township Joseph Holecbeck, who lost a year ago to Penny Genett for highway commissioner, turned the tables and defeated Genett this year. In Eveline township, Mrs. Mable Hanson, candidate on Ticket No. 1 for treasurer, defeated Fred Crowell.

CATHOLIC PASTOR LEAVES CHURCH LATE THIS WEEK

Sunday afternoon the children of St. Mary's school gave a farewell party for the Rev. Fr. Theodore Wemhoff, who is leaving the local parish this week for Cleveland, Ohio, where he will be engaged in missionary and welfare work.

Monday evening church members gave Fr. Theodore a farewell banquet at the school hall. This affair was featured by several short talks by members of his congregation, who all regret his departure after only a year in the Charlevoix church. In this short time Fr. Theodore has won and retained the admiration and respect of the entire parish.

INTERCLASS TOUR- NAMENT NEXT WEEK

CLASS BASKETBALL TEAMS TO COMPETE FOR HONORS

Series Opens Wednesday Afternoon and Closes with High School Polar Bear Contest

After two weeks of inactivity following the district tournament and spring school vacation, Charlevoix basketball teams will swing into action again next week and local fans will witness the annual tournament between class teams.

Both girls' and boys' teams will compete for honors. The winners will be presented with insignia in class colors, while for the grand prize the Charlevoix Courier has presented the school with a 12-inch silver loving cup upon which the names of the two winning teams will be engraved.

The opening tilt of the series will be Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock between the girls. The boys get in to action at 5 o'clock and 7 o'clock that day and the girls again at 8 o'clock in the evening. Consolation games for both boys and girls will be played off Thursday afternoon at 4:00 and 5:00 o'clock and the final Thursday evening at 6:30 and 7:30 o'clock.

The final game Thursday evening will be between the high school five and the Charlevoix Polar Bears. This game will wind up the season for both squads. Coach Kynke will play with the high school and the contest will be interesting and should be a big drawing card.

No admission charges will be made to the games Wednesday afternoon and evening and Thursday afternoon. Thursday evening charges of 10¢, 15¢ and 25¢ will be taken to cover the cost of prizes and miscellaneous tournament expenses.

Last year the junior girls and boys carried off all honors in the interclass series. The attendance at the games was large and interest keen throughout the tournament. With the probable exception of track, this tournament will close the athletic activities of the school for the 1928-29 term and everyone will want to be present. Reserve the dates and plan to be there.

RAMBLER TOOK MAIL TO BEAVER ISLAND

Week Last Saturday.

Beaver Island residents received their first mail for over a week last Saturday evening when the gas boat Rambler made the trip over from Charlevoix to St. James harbor. The boat was unable to reach the regular harbor landing place and tied up at the lighthouse dock. Capt. John McCann with the tug Venus, also went to the island the same day.

The Beaver Island mail steamer James H. Sanford pulled out Wednesday morning for Manitowish, Wis., and will go into dry dock there for repairs before going onto the regular season's run. The boat was to have left Saturday, but unfavorable weather detained the start.

LOCAL CHURCHES OBSERVE EASTER

SPECIAL SERVICES AT ALL PLACES OF WORSHIP.

Severe Storm Failed to Keep Crowds Away and Attendance Was Up to Average.

Religious devotion commemorating the Easter time in Charlevoix began with the Good Friday community service at the Congregational church at 2:00 o'clock. The Congregational choir, assisted by Mrs. B. G. Mattson, Dr. Frank Wilkinson and Harker Kirby, soloists, gave Passion selections from Protheroe. Interpretive remarks by the pastor, Rev. B. G. Mattson, as to the message of the selections as well as the message of Good Friday, added much to the solemnity of the occasion. All business and public places were closed during the hour of the service.

Further services at the Congregational church began with a Sunrise meeting under the direction of the Christian Endeavor. This was followed by the usual Easter sermon at 10:30 and a special anthem by the choir assisted by Mrs. B. G. Mattson, soloist, and Mrs. A. J. Stelter, director and organist. The Vesper service at 4:30 o'clock ended the church program. At this time were heard the exercises by the Sunday school primary department as well as the "Easter Message," the pageant presented by the junior choir with special music by the choir. A large congregation was present at all services during the day.

Rev. John E. Lockyer of the Methodist church directed the Sunrise meeting at his church, featuring a Sacramental service at 6:30 o'clock.

Dr. J. L. Randall of Traverse City, gave the Easter address on the topic, "The Resurrection in the Light of Today's Needs," at 10:30 o'clock. This was supplemented by a special anthem by the choir and violin obligato by Harold Eklund of Grand Rapids during the prelude and offertory. Baptism and reception of members was held at this service.

At 7:30 o'clock the young people of the Sunday school presented the pageant, "Eternal Light," which was a complete service with a missionary message.

There were only two services at the Baptist church on Easter Sunday due to the fact that the local church has been without a pastor for some time. Rev. W. H. Rauch of Reading, Michigan, a prospective minister for this parish, preached the Easter sermon at 10:30 a. m. Special music was furnished by Miss Sylvia Black as soloist, assisted by her Sunday school class. A regular evening service was held at 7:00 o'clock.

The attendance was good at the Church of God at both the morning and evening services. At 10:30 Rev. G. H. Pye preached from Phil. 1:21, "For Me to Live is Christ, to Die is Gain." In the evening the members of the Sunday school were in charge of the program. The primary department was well represented by Janita Dickie, Ralph Stevens and Rowell Guild, who gave Easter recitations. This was followed by a pageant, "The Pilgrim's Vision," by older members of the church school.

The Episcopal church was favored Sunday evening by an Easter service by Rev. Edward Dean of Petoskey. Rev. Dean was assisted by his choir, also from Petoskey, who sang the greater part of the Episcopal service. Many non-members were present due to the fact that some of the local churches had no evening program.

BASSETT SATURDAY Died Last Thursday Following Stroke of Paralysis.

Freeman Bassett, age 71, a resident of Charlevoix for many years, died last Thursday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Turner, where he had been confined in bed since suffering a stroke of paralysis while visiting there two weeks ago last Sunday.

Funeral services were held Saturday morning for the late Mr. Bassett at the home of Rev. G. H. Pye of the Church of God officiating. Interment will be made at Brookside.

Mr. Bassett is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Carrie Murray, also two sons, Dan and Fred, all of Bay Shore.

KONJOLA IS JUST WHAT I ALWAYS NEEDED

Happy Lady Tells How Just Six Bottles of Konjola Brought New and Glorious Health.

MRS. MARY PEREZ

"What a joyous privilege it is to read and hear the many endorsements of Konjola, the new and different compound that has become the most talked-of medicine in America. Konjola, with its 32 ingredients, 22 of which are juices of roots and herbs, contains no alcohol, no nerve-deadening drugs, no heart-depressing chemicals, yet it cleanses and soothes, and paves the way for the return of health.

Consider, for a minute, the fine experience that Mrs. Mary Perez, 200 Chene street, Detroit, had with this master medicine:

"I was run down and worn out by years of indigestion and kidney trouble. My back ached and every duty was drudgery. No food agreed with me. I tried simply everything recommended, but nothing touched the spot until I put Konjola to the test. At once I started to get better, and day by day my digestion improved. In six weeks I was perfectly well again, feeling better than in years. I am sleeping like a child and eating anything I like. Konjola as a medicine is in a class by itself."

Konjola is sold in Charlevoix at F. J. Fossenden's drug store and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

Island, arrived here Wednesday from Detroit, where he had been spending the winter.

The fish tug Venus was the first boat to make the trip from Charlevoix to St. James this spring. She landed at the Harbor Light House Point Saturday evening.

Navigation is open between St. James and Garden Island. H. R. Pischner and son, Emil, came over with their skiff Thursday, having finished their winter work on Garden Island.

Dr. Russell Palmer has purchased from Mrs. H. R. Pischner the place south of John Grill's store. Dr. Palmer will have extensive improvements made on the place. Gus Mielke will act as overseer of the work.

When coming home from Garden Island on Sunday, March 17th, H. R. Pischner stepped into an air hole in the ice and had a narrow escape from drowning. Being alone, he had to work around until he came to where the ice was solid enough to pull himself out.

Most lawns need an occasional application of some good fertilizer. One that gives excellent results, says the U. S. department of agriculture, is a mixture of 1 part of ammonium sulphate and 3 parts of cottonseed meal, applied at the rate of from 12 to 15 pounds per 1,000 square feet. The mixture should be put on three times during the growing season. Cottonseed meal alone is satisfactory, but is not as quick acting as when in combination with the ammonium sulphate.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

By B. C. Mellencamp

Four Sheep Meetings in Charlevoix County.

All farmers who are interested in sheep are cordially invited and urged to attend a series of sheep meetings to be held in Charlevoix county on Wednesday and Thursday, April 10 and 11, with V. A. Freeman, specialist of Michigan State College in charge of the discussion.

Attend your nearest meeting of the following schedule:

Wednesday, April 10th, at 10:30 a. m. (standard time), Hayne Falls consolidated school.

Wednesday, April 10th, at 2:30 p. m. (last time) farm of Terry Bascie on Deer Lake road.

Thursday, April 11th at 10:30 a. m. (last time), farm of Ed. Graham, 3 1/2 miles south of Charlevoix on Barnard road.

Thursday, April 11th at 2:30 p. m. (last time), farm of Alex Curry, 2 miles east of Ironton ferry on Ironton road.

This is the time of year when you should be thinking about the dipping of sheep, castration and docking of lambs, drenching for worms, and many other factors, and these meetings will be devoted to a discussion of the above subjects as well as of any other problems that are bothering.

Mr. Freeman has in former meetings discussed all of these subjects and we are sure you will derive much good from attending these discussions. A great development has taken place in the sheep industry during the last three years, many new flocks developed, and better care and attention given them by farmers.

Let's start the new year right, attend your nearest meeting. Remember the time, place and date.

Report of Charlevoix County Dairy

Herd Improvement Association.

Two hundred twenty-eight cows were tested in February with an average production of 475 pounds of milk and 19 pounds of butterfat. Four cows were sold for beef.

Six members have changed rations during February and others will soon do so as their home grown barley and oats will have to be replaced with purchased grain, which requires good judgment of feed values. There seems to be a general impression that corn is a very high protein food. While it has plenty of merits it isn't worth more than oats or bran, but should be fed in addition to these.

In planning crops for the coming year, plan to plant a few peas with barley and you will find oats and peas are the highest protein feed grown in this section. Peas will save buying high priced commercial feed or oil meal and cottonseed.

Light cows for February are as follows:

Second Year Old Class

First, Wm. Withers, PBI No. 246, 1,000 lbs. milk, 30.1 lbs. butterfat.

Second, Clinton Blanchard, Jersey, 731 lbs. milk, 37.3 lbs. butterfat.

Third, Geo. Meggison, 854 lbs. milk, 36.7 lbs. butterfat.

Third Year Old Class

First, Clinton Blanchard, 310 lbs. milk, 40 lbs. butterfat.

Second, Pat Ulund, 1274 lbs. milk, 36.8 lbs. butterfat.

Third, Chas. Reidel, Guernsey, 714 lbs. milk, 35.7 lbs. butterfat.

Fourth Year Old Class

First, Joel Bennett, 1154 lbs. milk, 48.5 lbs. butterfat.

Second, Frank Russell, 980 lbs. milk, 44.1 lbs. butterfat.

Third, Frank Russell, 991 lbs. milk, 43.6 lbs. butterfat.

Fourth, Frank Russell, 991 lbs. milk, 43.6 lbs. butterfat.

First, Geo. Meggison, 1120 lbs. milk, 56 lbs. butterfat.

Second, Joel Bennett, 1154 lbs. milk, 54.9 lbs. butterfat.

Third, Joel Bennett, 1154 lbs. milk, 54.9 lbs. butterfat.

Fourth, Joel Bennett, 1154 lbs. milk, 54.9 lbs. butterfat.

First, Wm. Withers, 571 lbs. milk, 27.74 lbs. butterfat.

Second, Pat Ulund, 545 lbs. milk, 28.1 lbs. butterfat.

Third, Joel Bennett, 883 lbs. of milk, 35.1 lbs. butterfat.

Fourth, Clinton Blanchard, 69.2 lbs. milk, 30.9 lbs. butterfat.

First, William Withers, 510 lbs. of milk, 17.7 lbs. butterfat.

Second, Pat Ulund, 492 lbs. milk, 16.6 lbs. butterfat.

No report was made in January, so a summary is given now. High herd honors went to Joel Bennett & Son, Clinton Blanchard, John Seiler, Geo. Meggison, Pat Ulund and Wm. Withers in their class. The average production for January was 558 lbs. of milk and 22.36 lbs of butterfat in the county.

Tests covering only a short period are far less reliable than yearly tests for cows vary in persistence of milk flow. As good cows sometimes have off years in production, a single year's testing is not as valuable as continued testing. Time, the scales, the Babcock test and good judgment are all essential in determining the true value of dairy cows.

Oat Smut Can Be Prevented.

Smut in oats causes a very large annual loss that can be almost wholly prevented by treating the seed with formaldehyde, says the U. S. Department of Agriculture. This material is easy to apply, is cheap, and is effective for controlling both loose and covered smuts. One pint of formaldehyde will treat 50 bushels of oats and may be applied as a spray, sprinkle or dip. Add the pint of formaldehyde to one pint of water for spraying or to 10 gallons of water for sprinkling or dipping. The seed should be thoroughly cleaned and graded before it is treated and unless it is sown right away it should be spread out and thoroughly dried after treating. Bags or sacks that have been used for oats before should be soaked or sprayed with a formaldehyde solution before putting treated seed in them. Contaminated drills also should be disinfected. Formaldehyde should be handled with care, as it is irritating to the nose and eyes.

CHAPTER VIII

The Hate of the Long Snows

Down of the following morning overtook the two still heading north. The rabbit had put new life into the husky. Although thinner, as yet his thick coat shone with vitality, and he still carried his bushy tail jauntily curved above his back. But the days of starvation and grinding snowshoeing had stripped the flesh from the square frame of Brock McLean. His hollow eyes glowed with the light that comes from food without food. That morning, as he traveled, his eyes began to play him tricks. He found it difficult to focus on objects. Distant hills danced upon the horizon. Black spots and pinpoints of light blurred his vision. Suddenly, like the chill of cold steel, the thought that he could not sight his gun on game stopped him dead in his tracks. Baiting his rifle, he tried to line the sights on a jackpine, but the head on the muzzle wavered, in and out of the rear sight shot which appeared, then faded, then appeared, as if mocking him.

"I guess I'm done for," he groaned. For a space black despair lived in the heart of the boy caught in the pitiless grip of the long snows. Then, as he stood brooding, a moist nose touched the bare hand holding the rifle. The crease of a warm tongue roused him. He glanced down at the eager brown eyes which spoke worship of the loyal heart which beat in that shaggy chest.

"What you think, Flash, is the river over those hills? Can we make it, boy?"

For answer the dog whined, rubbing against Brock's legs, as the boy's hand rested on the massive skull.

"Up to the lake, my legs won't last much longer. I can't feel 'em any more."

Then at the thought of his father's words the boy pulled himself together. "Flash, we've got the nerve, you and I. If we are young, and shy on bushcraft. Tomorrow, we're going through to the river—over that ridge!"

So Brock plodded on, hoping against hope for the sight of game. But the strange ill luck which often pursues those whose need is greatest followed the footsteps of the starving trapper. Trails of fox and lynx, rabbit tracks, and the newworkings of grouse and partridge, he crossed, but for hours his peering eyes saw no game—not a bounding trail of caribou. They had left the country.

Again dusk fell. Again there were no rabbit runways in which to set snares. Again boy and dog sat in silence by a fire, over the fire hung a ball in which water boiled. In the water were strips of the pelts of two rabbits and small pieces of rawhide bones. The eyes of the boy, bright with starvation, hungrily watched the unseasoned stew.

"I won't help much, Flash," muttered the boy. "But it'll warm us up—warm us up. My feet are cold—are yours? I can't feel my toes—the fire's no good."

With shaking hand the boy stirred the pitiful supper in the pot.

"We're lost—and starved out, Flash. My legs are good for one day more—then I guess I'm through."

The starving pair finished the stew, then side by side lay before the fire. "Of course, Flash," murmured the semidelirious Brock, "I could shoot my gun—and get back. Lots of meat on yam old bones—yet right through the ears, eh? You'd never know what Brock did to you—and then he'd see home again—the family. West d'you say?"

With a low whimper, the husky began to nuzzle into the boy's face, buried in his head under the ribs.

"Don't want Brock to do it, do you?"

As if sensing the glacial meaning of the words, the dog again thrust his nose into the boy's hand. For an instant his hairy muzzle touched the lean cheek of his master. Then with a throaty rumble it was withdrawn.

"You old fool!" cried the aroused youth, sitting up in his blankets, stung by the dog's caress. "You think Brock was serious? Crawl out by yourself—his pup—like a dirty Indian?" Impulsively the boy drew the massive head of the husky to his breast. "You fool dog! Brock shoot his Flash to save his own hide!" And the boy crowded incoherently into a hairy ear. As the great plume of a tall waxed to and the dog in the deep snow. It was all over! They had lost it! It was—the end!

Panting in his weakness, Brock stumbled forward over the broken trail left by moose and deer. Then, of a sudden, the yelps of the husky changed to roars of rage.

Flash had caught the boy's foot on, hoping, still hoping for one last shot. He broke through the thicket to gasp in amazement. Bearing in the snow, a young bull, his horns still in the spike, lashed with his great forefeet at the dog who leaped around him. Flash stiff, eyes bloodshot, his breath coming from dilated nostrils like the exhaust of an engine, with his sharp hoofs the bull bayed the air as the dog lunged in and out. And then, as the desperate beast tried to rise on his hind legs and fell back helpless, Brock saw.

"Hamstrung! Flash, boy, you've saved us with your teeth!"

More fully Brock caught the light with a bullet through the beast's brain. As the animal fell, blackness closed on the vision of the exhausted boy, and he fainted.

The starving husky, mad with the taste of blood, tore savagely at the throat of the moose, then at the sight of the crumpled figure of Brock, ran to him with a whine. Slowly the biting air revived the youth whose desperately exertion had sapped the last ounce of his stamina. He got to his feet while the dog went back to his red meat.

"My old Flash pup!" said Brock, caressing the husky. "Hamstrung him you did, old pal! Bless your bones!"

But the dusk was close and there was no time to lose. Leading the reluctant dog from his quarry, Brock, delirious with joy at his luck, went back for the sled. And there, in the swamp, within easy reach of the meat which would thicken his blood and give him back his strength while he rested, he built a fire and made camp.

But Brock was wise, and sitting by his fire with the gorged Flash, he drank, at intervals, a small cup only of the broth from the smoldering pot of moose broth. Full well he knew (Continued on Page 7) chance, driven by the dogged will, cease to move.

Then, of a sudden, as the uncertain eyes of the boy, whom hope had deserted, peered ahead for the wind break which would shelter his last camp, his heart gave a great throb, then checked, to pound again furiously as he swayed on his feet at what he saw.

"Dear trail!" he gasped. "Dear trail, Flash! Made this morning! He can't travel for in this! We'll hang to him, Flash—hang to him!"

Then the boy shivered as stark fear gripped him. "Flash! He ain't his gun? Could he hit the game?"

But there was no place for doubt here. He had to hit him. It was his last chance.

Leading Flash on a rawhide thong, to prevent him bolting with the sled when they saw their game, Brock followed the trail. Hope now drove his stiffened legs—hope of red meat, food—life. And here, at last, the careful training of months proved itself. On a leash Flash had been trained to silence.

The trail led through a stand of scrub spruce and out over the parched snow of ley shell of a brook. There Brock suddenly stopped, his jaw dropping in amazement.

"Moose!" he gasped. "Moose, up here on the Yellow-Lag!"

Instead of the familiar, round-topped tracks of a caribou, stamped into the hard footing, like the thrust of a die in wax, were the long, pointed, cow-like tracks of a moose.

Following the trail which led in the direction of a heavy stand of black spruce and cedar, under a ridge, Brock led his plunging dog.

"Shut up, Flash! Steady boy!" he ordered in low tones. "He's there, in that bush!"

The animal had traveled up wind—he would not smell them; so it was safe to hold to the trail. Slipping off the dog's harness, leaving the sled, Brock led him by the thong. As they entered the cover of the thicket, ears and eyes tense, the heart of the boy shook him as an engine shakes a launch. Somewhere ahead in the spruce was food—life. If only he did not miss!

For an instant, he paused, in doubt. He would cast his gun against a tree—if he could—had time. But suppose Flash lunged as he need? It might be safer to keep him here. No, he did not dare. His hand shook like a leaf—he would only wound the moose—would need Flash.

So, weak with fatigue and excited mind, Brock went on—on into the thick thicket, nerves strung like bow-strings, straining uncertain eyes for the vision of a huge shape in the snow. Then, dilating his nostrils in deep sniffs of the air, Flash suddenly went mad.

Falling on the trembling husky, Brock seized his nose. "Shut up, Flash!" he gasped in desperation. "Steady, boy! Shut up!"

But the starved dog trembled where he crouched, with his charge the heart whose scent was strong in his nostrils. With stiff fingers, Brock knotted the leash to a sapling, and left his dog to make the stalk.

He had moved by a few yards when suddenly he saw a patch of black dimly between the dark green of two young spruce trees. Life hung on the pitiful hands which raised his rifle to his shoulder. His eyes blurred as the head wavered past the open rear sight. Again he looked for his target.

The black patch was gone.

With a groan the boy reeled, his fevered eyes peering desperately into the thicket already blue with shadow. Then, to his dank, he saw a shape plundering in snow to his shoulders. It was the last chance!

Crouching, with elbow on knee, Brock fired.

As the bullet shattered the silence, a great gray and white shape, sinking to the shoulders at every leap, plunged past.

"Flash!"

With all the strength he could summon, Brock ran. He had missed—hardly seen his sight! "One more shot—only one shot!" he sobbed, as he shuffled after the dog, who had snuffed his leash.

Brock reached the trail of the moose where the dog had joined it. Not a drop of blood on the snow! He had missed.

Ahead, Flash yelped, hard in pursuit of the fading beast. But the love-

The World
We Live In—

Today the world is literally at our doors. A spin of a dial, and we listen to the President at Washington, or a football game in San Francisco. From our talking machines the greatest of operatic stars sing to us, the foremost dance orchestras play lively syncopation of our choosing. Our automobiles stand ready to whisk us over smooth boulevards to new scenes. Monday is no longer blue; the family washing is done by electricity; so too is the cooking, and the preserving of food, and the sweeping of floors.

Yes, the world we live in has changed . . . changed marvelously for the better.

Have you ever stopped to consider the part advertising has played in this change? Glance over the advertisements in this newspaper. How many of the products mentioned are old friends of yours, familiar because you already own them or intend to get them soon! And the articles in your own home. Every one of them, probably, is advertised, either here or elsewhere. The chances are you first learned of them through the advertisements.

Advertising is important to you because it keeps you informed of the changes in the world. It tells you of new products, of improved designs and workmanship and materials. It helps you to spend your money wisely and well. It points you to the better things of life.

The Eyes of the Boy, Bright With Starvation, Hungrily Watched the Nauseous Stew.

From the deep throat of Flash rumbled in ecstasy.

Down—and a dazed voyager, seeking the valley of the frozen Yellow-Lag, shuffled on matted legs through the spruce into the north—at his heels a bony husky drawing a small toboggan. Through the morning went the pair, stopping frequently to rest. Lean from lack of food though he was, the husky, owing to his marvellous vitality, still retained much of his strength. For the Ungava, like a wolf, starves slowly. But the master who reeled over the white floor of forest and barren, barren—the end of his stamina. Two—three miles more, and the reeling legs would crumple under him—the snow shoes which slide me-

Skim milk from a creamery should not be fed to calves unless it is made safe by boiling or pasteurization. Calves may contract tuberculosis by drinking milk from tuberculous cows.

Growing chicks need calcium phosphate in addition to the grain ration. This can be supplied by adding to the ration small quantities of ground steamed bone meal and ground limestone.

Provide up-to-date hives for the bees—that is, hives with movable frames in which the bees can build their combs. Keeping bees in boxes, hollow logs, or straw "skeps" is unprofitable and unprogressive.

The farm population of the United States is now the smallest in twenty years, according to the U. S. department of agriculture. It is estimated that on January 1, 1929, there were 27,511,000 persons on farms, as compared with 32,000,000 in 1909.

Horsemen do not agree as to whether the horse should be watered before, during, or after feeding—so take your choice. It is important, however, that he be watered at regular periods, as frequent changing from one plan to another will affect the animal's appetite. A horse needs from 10 to 12 gallons of pure water daily.

To help get sprouting of acorns and survival of young oak seedlings, good leaf litter should be maintained on the floor of the woods by preventing all fires. The leaf litter stabilizes the moisture and temperature conditions, and prevents the surface soil from becoming so compact that the roots of the seedlings cannot penetrate it.

To avoid losses of chicks from gapes, keep them away from turkeys; the turkeys may show no signs of the disease, but they can pass it on to chicks with fatal results to the latter. Gapes is caused by a parasitic worm that gets into the chick's windpipe, and the male and female worms have the curious habit of attaching themselves so firmly to each other that at first sight they look like a single worm with two heads and two necks. It is pretty difficult to extract the worms, and it is better to put your faith in prevention. Put the chicks, as soon as hatched, on clean ground, and keep them away from turkeys or ground occupied by turkeys. Adult chickens seem to be immune from gapes.

The Poor Man's Cow.
The goat may never entirely supplant the cow as a source of milk, but it might well be used more widely by families which want a small quantity of milk and do not have room enough, or cannot afford, to keep a cow, says the U. S. Department of Agriculture. The milk-coat of the goat is thicker than that of the cow, and it is produced by a comparatively small proportion of superior milk goats and is only in its infancy, but in Europe where the goat is often called the "poor man's cow," it forms a flourishing branch of the livestock industry.

On New Pasture.
Dairy cows should not be turned on early spring pasture until the grass is 3 to 4 inches high and then only for a few hours a day at first. Continue to feed hay and silage for a time after starting them on pasture. A gradual change of this kind will lessen the danger of bloat and will minimize the grassy taste in the milk. If cows that are producing moderately are in thin condition at the end of winter, they may increase in weight on pasture alone. It is generally good practice, however, to continue feeding grain to cows on pasture because the milk production will be higher and will be maintained longer.

Inside Information
Children learn to dress themselves if fastenings are easy to find and manage. Use front openings with buttons, large and flat buttons.

Has your dustpan a firm straight edge which fits the floor so that part of the dust is not brushed underneath? A long-handled dustpan will save much stooping.

Plan to make a number of sun-baths for the little runabout this spring, to be ready for the first warm days of sunshine. Accustom him to playing in the sun for short stretches at first. Make a shade hat to protect the eyes.

Egg-yolks are among the best iron-rich foods. They also contain phosphorus and calcium, elements needed to build bone, teeth and other tissues. Vitamins are present, and some fat. Foods containing egg-yolks are therefore always valuable.

At this season the markets are full of the so-called "protective foods." They are the fresh fruits and vegetables, eggs, dairy products—all good sources of minerals and vitamins, insuring growth and health and preventing the diseases that come from too limited a diet.

Much of the dirt the housekeeper has to contend with is tracked in. A cement path to each door of the house, mats and scrapers outside the doors, and special places just inside the doors for muddy rubbers and boots, will make a big difference in the amount of cleaning to be done.

The temperature of the home refrigerator, in the milk compartment, should be kept at or below 45 degrees F if possible. Refrigeration is used to retard the development of bacteria in milk, and above this temperature, bacterial growth is very rapid, causing changes to take place in the milk that may render it unfit for food.

"Reality" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Christian Science churches on Sunday, March 31.
Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "While we look not at the things which are seen, but at the things which are not seen; for the things which are seen are temporal; but the things which are not seen are eternal" (II Cor. 4:18).
The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Perfection underlies reality. Without perfection, nothing is wholly real."

STATE HAS STARTED STRIPPING RAINBOW

Annual Work of Gathering Spawn is Now Under Way.

Field station work for the annual collection of rainbow spawn is under way. Rainbows are being taken and stripped of spawn at Junction Dam, on the big Manistee river; on Pine Creek, a tributary of that river, and at Fox Bridge on the Little Manistee river. Twenty-five per cent of the fish taken at Junction Dam will not be stripped, but will be transferred and released above the Stromach dam on Pine River, four miles above Junction Dam. At Fox Bridge the same percentage will be released, unstripped, above the trap.

The Consumers Power company is co-operating in the transfer of wall-eyed pike and rainbow trout over the dam at Newaygo on the Muskegon river, but no stripping is being done there. Last year 400 fish were transferred over the dam at this point. The same work is being done at Cheboygan and at Alverne Dam on the Black River, in co-operation with the Michigan Public Service company.

The department of conservation made an investigation of conditions on the Walhalla Flats of the Pere Marquette River in Mason county after numerous requests had been received from people who claimed a bad situation existed there. It was reported that many fish were stranded in trying to ascend the stream through channels of insufficient depth. It has been suggested that a deep channel be dredged through the flats to insure a free passage for these fish. Before passing on this suggestion, the application of which will be costly, the department has installed a counting weir below this point to ascertain by actual count the number of fish ascending the stream for spawning purposes. A daily tally is now being made.

—not the look of Low Price

YOU can be proud to own a Plymouth, the Chrysler Motors car in the lowest-priced field. —proud, because the Plymouth is a full-size car, not a miniature—a comfortable car in which you and your family and friends can relax to the fullest, instead of feeling crowded and cramped; —proud, because Plymouth is so typically Chrysler in performance—so swift in traffic, so eager on hills, so competent. In addition to its full-size body, chassis, engine and axles—Plymouth gives you the easy control and the protection of Chrysler full-size weather-proof internal-expanding four-wheel hydraulic brakes. For reasons of both pride and purse, Plymouth is today's finest investment in the field of lowest-priced motor cars.

General News
Mary Simmons, "Johnnie" Ripley, Eleanor Thomas and Rebecca Wilson made a pleasure trip to Bayne City, Wallow Lake and Petoskey last Wednesday evening.

Esther Goldstick, Fern Crandall and Myrtle O'Neill made a trip to Mackinac City last Friday.

Due to stormy weather, many of the high school students were absent on Monday. Also Mr. Kipke, Miss Tower and Miss Hood were missing from the high school teaching staff, being detained on account of stormy weather.

Mr. North, Mr. Kipke, Miss Tower, Miss Hood and Miss Keller spent Easter vacation at their respective homes. Mrs. McKinley was a guest of Miss Mellin at her home in Marquette. Mr. Coleman, Mr. Otterbein and Miss Thomas spent Easter vacation in Charlevoix.

Preparations are being made for an interschool basketball tournament for the different teams in the high school. No definite plans are made as yet.

The oratorical contest will be held Thursday, April 4. Charlevoix will be represented by Mary Orlovski, who was considered best in the declamation contest which was held in the high school several weeks ago.

The junior high are having a party on Friday, the 5th of this month.

On April 9th the Methodists are giving the play which had been postponed before.

The sophomores have scheduled a party at the gymnasium on April 12. The junior play will be held on the 26th of this month.

There were no first hour classes Monday morning with the exception of Miss Thomas' first year shorthand class, whom she insisted on reporting to the classroom for work. We just imagine this was her idea of an April Fool joke and on hard feelings were held.

Commercial News
Bronze medals for expert typing of 10 or more words a minute were received by the following students: Norrene Moran, Doris Solomon, Angie Scott, Erma Meggison and Jane Siminow.

A silver medal for expert typing of 50 or more words a minute was received by Velora Ripley.

General Science

As this is the season of the year when the angry waters of the Mississippi river and its tributaries spread disaster upon the surrounding country, the general science classes are taking the opportunity of getting all the news they can find about this subject. The students are making maps of the Mississippi region and are blocking off the districts which are usually flooded. We intend to paste all the newspaper clippings on this subject in the corner of the map. This course promises to be delightfully entertaining rather than a drudge.

English Department

Our English test for last month covered the American poets of modern times, which we have been studying. Among those poets are Walt Whitman, Louis Untermeyer, Amy Lowell, Sara Teasdale and Vachel Lindsay. We have also read poetry from other modern writers.

The class is now taking up letter writing and we intend to read letters of some of the great men of our country with the hope of improving our own diction.

An April Fool Trick

The Weather Man played a real April Fool trick on Charlevoix residents on Monday. He could have done no better if he had spent the entire winter preparing the trick. After the beautiful vacation week preceding Easter, everyone was beginning to forget such things as blizzards, icy sidewalks and zero temperature. However, to celebrate the opening of school after the vacation, the students dug out their winter wraps and braved one of the worst storms of the year. A number of those who live at some distance from the school did not appear Monday, and several teachers were unable to reach Charlevoix on the opening day of school.

The storm wrought havoc with the telephone lines. After the raging blizzard which occurred two weeks ago, wires have been greatly disturbed and large numbers of repairsmen have been seen working on the lines. This storm has increased the damage to the wires and it will be some time before the telephone service can be restored to its usual efficiency. The spring election has also been affected by the quips and wiles of the Weather Man, and all business operations which were not absolutely necessary were suspended.

Biology Notes

The biology class of April 1 was considerably decreased to the amount of seven being present. Perhaps the absent students were on a field trip for bird study.

The senior English classes are studying Rudyard Kipling. One of his characteristics as a writer is his antipathy toward women and love. His works are more masculine. A writer's characteristics are influenced by his life. At one time Kipling proposed to a young lady and she accepted him with the condition that he give up smoking. As Kipling sat at his desk reflecting over the matter, he glanced at the beautiful box of cigars on his desk. As he gazed at the dusky beauties, he suddenly said, "A woman is only a woman, but a good cigar is a smoke." He married somebody else.

Some of the high school students were informed by their upper classmen that they were wanted in the office on Monday. Forgetting the date, the unsuspecting freshmen walked into the office and with trembling hopes asked what they were wanted for. Their fears were immediately put to rest when Mr. Otterbein informed them that it was April Fool's Day.

the danger of being a starved and weakened stomach, and that night—craving it though he did—he touched the meat.

"Well, see home, now—Hungry House and the family. And old Gaspar, what'll he think has become of us, Flash?" he rambled on in his joy to the dog at his side. "But we're lost—we've got to find the river, old dog. Well, come right here, feeling on that hill, 'll Brock gets his legs back, then we'll take a hundred pounds of meat and, cliche northwest, what?" Then the boy leaned and buried his head in the gray mane of the dog who grunted with contentment at his side.

For days Brock camped beside the frozen mouse meat, while his strength returned. As his endurance increased he climbed the nearest ridges to search the horizon for a familiar landmark, but to his bewilderment and chagrin, found none. In the end, he was forced to the realization that, instead of being south of the headwater lakes and the river valley, he must have worked to the west, in the two days' blizzard.

Taking a hundred pounds of meat, a heavy load for the husky traveling across country, Brock turned south-east. In the hollow of his arm he carried his untested rifle, for he was now sure he was well beyond the big lake, in the enemy's country. Constantly, as he traveled, he watched his flanks and back trail, for the memory of his capture was still vivid.

Brock camped that night in a country still unfamiliar, but the next day at noon, from a barren hill, he sighted, far to the east, the well-known ridges circling the great lake. As the storm day waned and he looked for a camp ground, suddenly he came to a dead stop.

Checking his rifle, the boy knelt beside his curious dog, as his roving eyes covered the spruce and jack pine timber surrounding him, in a searching inspection. A snowshoe trail! How odd! he wondered.

Hearing, seeing nothing, after a space Brock walked to the tracks in the snow and bent to study them.

"By the green horned owl, Flash," he said to the dog sniffing at the trail, "it's Gaspar!"

The familiar shape of the shoes, which Gaspar had himself made, and a spool in the webbing, identified them.

"Now what is he after, I wonder?" said the curious boy, aloud. "He's given me up as wiped out, I'll bet, and has gone on a man hunt."

In the morning, because of the better footing it gave the hilly husky, Brock took Gaspar's trail back to camp. At the head of the lake Brock's eyes widened in surprise as he stared at the tracks in front of him. Then, he moved swiftly into a clump of young spruce and waited, ears alert. A chickadee called, then the silence remained unbroken. Cautiously Brock walked down the trail to what had stopped him.

The story the snow told was easy to read. Some one had followed Gaspar's trail up to this point, where he had left it to travel a hundred yards to the right.

"What shall I do, Flash?" queried the puzzled youth. "The trails were not fresh, that was evident. If Gaspar had been followed, it had been two days before. He was beyond help. If they had captured him, it was too late to overtake them now. Finally Brock decided to take the meat to the cache, and return on Gaspar's trail with Flash. He would never again travel without his dog.

About five miles from the boys' camp, the tracks which overlay Gaspar's trail had joined it, leading from the lake. Worried for his partner's safety, Brock reached the camp in mid-afternoon, and to meet a loud growling from three ravenous dogs wired to trees.

Entering the tent now nearly buried in snow, Brock found a roll of the inner bark of a birch on which had been burned with a stick characters of the syllable writing used by the Cherokees.

Taught the phonetic symbols as a boy by an old Cherokee, Brock had often made use of this Indian shorthand and easily read the message.

"Where I thought for your trail, now I go to look for them now. I will come back in a few days, but if you are not here, then Gaspar and I will go back the north to join his father."

"Good old Gaspar!" exclaimed the youth, his eyes flared by surprise. "He looked for me after the snow buried my trail, and has given me up. He's not going back to Hungry House; he's going north to hunt them down."

Starting a fire in the tent stove to cook his supper, Brock had no time in deciding on his next move. Gaspar had been gone at least two days. In the morning he would take Flash and all the gear he could easily carry in his pack and follow the trail. If they had captured his friend, the snow would tell the story—then what? He would wave a goodbye toward the south and those he held dear, at Hungry House, and follow Gaspar as the half-breed had followed Brock and his captors. And at the end, the boy promised himself, Flash and Brock McLean would show these renegades how a white boy and his dog could fight for his partner.

* UNDER THE DOME AT THE * * STATE CAPITOL. *
*** * * * *

With significant developments along the lines of taxation and crime prevention legislation, at the Michigan legislature, last week, observers saw the first actual intimation that the session was about to enter into its early phases of adjournment. The most important function of any legislature is to levy sufficient tax to carry the state along for the next two years. Its next most important task is to bring crime legislation up to the requirements of the times, and once these two things are done, little else of equal importance remains to be accomplished.

The administration-sponsored tax bill designed to raise more than $27,000,000 for institutional buildings during the next four years, was being favorably considered in the house, shortly after its introduction. Thus it was that important barriers to adjournment were being worked loose from their moorings. While the large bills were being subjected to scrutiny, smaller bills were being boiled out like chicks from under an incubator.

Thursday morning saw the criminal code amendments feature, introduced early in the session by Rep. George H. Watson of Capac, favorably reported out by the senate judiciary committee, without amendment after this measure had been passed in the house. This is the bill which would, in effect, remove liquor law violators from the mandatory life imprisonment provisions of the criminal code, on fourth offense. It would also remove those convicted for fourth offense, for some 200 felonies, from the danger of life imprisonment. Rules were suspended in the senate to allow for quick passage of the measure Thursday afternoon.

Thirty senators voted for the measure with no opposing votes.

The measure introduced by Rep. Alex D. Cuthbertson of Flint, was passed in the house two weeks ago, to checkmate the administration in its efforts to remove liquor law violators from the life imprisonment provision of the code. This would be accomplished by raising the maximum sentence for first violation of the code, which, with the proposed code amendments, would call for life for fourth offense. The amended code would levy a 7 1/2 to 15 year sentence on fourth liquor law offenders, and not life.

When the Cuthbertson bill passed in the senate on March 21, however, the maximum sentence for first offense was dropped to four years, thus removing liquor law violators from the life imprisonment provisions of the code. But the upper house added a section, submitted by Sen. Leon F. Miner of Flint, which would impose a mandatory minimum penalty of $50 fine or 50 days in jail for first violation of the liquor laws, not involving a sale. This would mean considerable trouble for the casual possessors of liquor, and for the home brewer making his own supply of beer. On the senate amendments, however, the house refused to concur, and the bill was sent back to the senate last Tuesday, where it was tabled by Senator Miner, who said, off the floor that attempts to iron out the difficulties would be made informally, in the near future.

The tax measure calling for an eight-tenths mill tax for four years, which was introduced in the house last Tuesday, was considered favorably by the taxation committee and sent to ways and means committee, the same day, indicated that speed would be shown on this highly important measure, in its course through the lower house.

Another taxation measure, which has already been passed in the senate, was altered by the house. The house amendments did not suit the senate, with the result that the bill was temporarily shelved in the senate. It was the oil and gas severance tax measure which would impose a two per cent monthly tax on the gross market value of such natural products taken in Michigan. The difference of opinion developed over the matter of the division of the money. The measure, from the desk of Sen. Chester M. Howell of Saginaw, would have divided the money so that the state would get one per cent while the remaining one per cent would have been divided equally between the county and the township where the tax was levied. The house suggested an equal division between these three political subdivisions. The measure will be ironed out in conference.

A stiff battle arose in the senate on Tuesday and Wednesday, when Sen. William F. Turner's measure calling for distribution of $2,000,000 annually in the so-called poorer school districts, was finally passed over the strenuous objections of Sen. Wood of Detroit, who claimed that Wayne county would pay most of this additional tax.

Senator Turner, in 1927, secured passage of a similar bill, when he was a member of the lower house. This bill would have appropriated $1,000,000 for relief of poorer school districts, but, as there was no tax clause in the measure, the money was never realized. The present measure has a tax clause attached.

Senate judiciary committee, considering capital punishment, appointed a sub-committee to draft a compromise bill for consideration of the committee.

The house has passed the bill repealing the Horton corn borer act of 1927, and has sent this measure to the senate for approval.

The senate also approved a house measure, a proposed joint resolution by which the constitution would be amended so as to allow the state to aid in the opening up of rivers and streams of the state. The passage of this measure in the senate is virtual assurance that voters will be asked to express themselves on this question at the general election of November 1930. The constitution at present forbids the state to join in such ventures. The joint resolution was introduced by Rep. Fred C. Holbeck of Long Lake.

Drainage districts, counties and townships, would be protected from fraud or embezzlement on the part of any county official, by a house measure passed in the senate Monday night, after its introduction by Rep. Sheldon Coleman of Lawton. This measure would provide that in case such irregularities were discovered, the county board of supervisors could reimburse the district affected, by a draft on the general fund of the county concerned.

The senate went a long way Tuesday in solving the vexatious matter of relations between regular "medics" and members of the other Osteopaths were granted privileges equal to those of regular doctors by a senate measure passed by the upper house Tuesday. This bill was sent to the house for approval. All healers will have to fulfill the increased provisions of new educational requirements as embodied in the so-called "basic sciences" bill passed in the senate at the same time.

The joint resolution authorizing the state to create home loan districts for the purpose of aiding in the financing of homes for those in the low income brackets, once defeated in the house, was taken from the table Wednesday afternoon and passed. The measure, like all joint resolutions, calls for a constitutional amendment and consequently a vote from the people in November, 1930.

Among the radical changes in homes wrought during the past few years, the improvement of the basement is noteworthy. That part of the home gradually has become a light, airy and warm room, instead of the damp, murky place of other years. It has become livable, instead of merely tolerable.

Another convenient improvement for your basement would be an extension telephone. When the telephone rings upstairs, and you are in the basement, it would be much easier to take the call without climbing the stairs!

C. M. T. C. QUOTA HAS INCREASED

FOUR HUNDRED MORE THAN A YEAR AGO ANNOUNCED.

Each Student Must Buy Own Railroad Ticket and Get Refund Upon Arrival at Camp.

Phelps Newberry, civilian aid to the secretary of war, has received instructions from the war department that no students attending the Citizens' Military Training Camps this summer at Camp Custer or Fort Brady will be furnished with railroad tickets by the government. Each student will purchase his own railroad ticket from his home to Camp Custer or Fort Brady, and on arrival in camp they will be repaid for the transportation at the rate of five cents per mile. On leaving camp after the 30 day training each student will be paid in cash his transportation back to his home at the rate of five cents per mile, computed over the shortest usually traveled route. There is no objection to students coming to camp in their own automobiles and this will not prevent them collecting the five cents per mile.

The war department has also notified Mr. Newberry that the quota for the Sixth Corps area, of which Michigan is a part, has been increased to 4,700 young men, which is 400 more than the quota for the corps area in 1928. In order to be sure that this number will be trained at the various training camps in the corps area Major General Paul B. Malone, commanding officer of the Sixth Corps area has authorized the enrolling of 6,000 young men in the corps area. All over the 4,700 will be enrolled as alternates to be sent to camp in case sickness or other good reason prevent any of the young men from attending. Mr. Newberry calls attention to the fact that it will be necessary for young men planning on attending one of the Michigan camps this summer to get their applications in at once. Unless the applications are in they will not be considered and no young man can go to camp without filing an application. Young men between the ages of 17 and 24 years, in good health, of good character, who are American citizens, are eligible for the training camps of 30 days at the expense of the government. In addition to paying the railroad fare from home to camp and back home again, the government pays for the food, clothing, shoes, bed linen and all other necessary expenses including medical and dental care if necessary.

Everyone of the 83 counties in Michigan have county committees in charge of enrolling young men eligible for the camps. In addition to these county committees application blanks for enrollment can be obtained from the members of any American Legion post in the state, from Phelps Newberry, civilian aid to the secretary of war, 443 Book Tower, Detroit, Mich., from the commanding officer at Fort Brady, Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., from the chief of staff 85th Division, 438 Book Tower, Detroit, Mich., or from any newspaper published in Michigan.

The dates of the camps where Michigan young men will attend are as follows: Camp Custer, July 19 to August 17, for basic students and advanced infantry; Fort Brady, Mich., from July 19 to August 17, basic students and advanced infantry; Fort Sheridan, Ill., near Chicago, for students who have graduated from the basic course and have selected the cavalry as the branch of service they are interested in; Camp McCoy, Wis., near Sparta, for students who have graduated from the basic course and selected artillery as their branch of service. This includes both field and coast artillery.

Mr. Newberry calls attention of prospective students and their parents that there are physicians in every county who will make the physical examination of young men desiring to enter the training camps free of charge. No applicant or his parents should pay one cent for a physical examination. Names of physicians who conduct the examination free can be had by writing Mr. Newberry.

AT THE MOVIES

"Love" Brings Two Big Stars Together.

John Gilbert and Greta Garbo, who as a team scored one of the sensational successes of the year in "Flesh and the Devil," and whose real-life romance immediately following furnished gossip for film fans the world over, appear again before the camera, for the first time since, in "Love," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's spectacular filmization of "Anna Karenina," Tolstoy's classic of Russia, which comes Saturday and Sunday to the Palace Theatre.

The new picture, one of the most gorgeous and spectacular film romances of the season, presents both in roles that perhaps fit them better than any others that could be imagined. Gilbert, splendidly uniformed, is seen as the debonair and romantic Count Vronsky, a role that recalls his great hit in "The Merry Widow," with Miss Garbo in the role of the tragic Anna, who sacrifices all for love only to be degraded by a strange and sinister doom.

Sixty Indians and U. S. Soldiers in "Glorious Trail."

Three different states are visited in photographing "The Glorious Trail," Ken Maynard's latest First National western feature coming to the Palace Theatre next Wednesday and Thursday.

The picture was started in California, the troupe then went to Montana and finally finished in Wyoming. All of this traveling was necessary in order to get the actual locations to fit the subject of the story.

"The Glorious Trail" is an original story by Marion Jackson and tells of the perils and hardships encountered by the men stringing the first telegraph wires that connected the East and the West. The wires according to historical fact, were first used by Union troops to call from fort to fort in case of Indian attack. The connecting link that brought the East and the West was strung somewhere in Montana.

Clean Cut Victory Over Armada Places School in Semi-Finals.

Just two leaps from the debating championship of Michigan is the position of Cheboygan high school today after her clean cut victory over Armada high school in the quarter finals last week. Cheboygan now enters the semi-finals with a splendid chance of getting into the finals and then to the top-most rung of the debating ladder.

In their Armada debate Cheboygan seemed to have reached her highest point. The delivery was splendid and the points presented by her speakers were so well grounded that the opposition could not dislodge them.

The team is made up of Carleton Jacobson, Wendell Horning and George Keldsen.

The semi-finals debates will be held within two weeks with the finals likely being called to Ann Arbor late this month.

GEARLESS CAR ON DISPLAY IN ENGLAND

A godsend to the motorist—the "gearless" car being displayed at the Olympia motor show at Olympia, England. Its speed is adjusted by a small "control" on the steering wheel, being operated by Miss Kitty Trimmell.

STARTING MOTOR DURING WINTER

Main Trouble Is That Gasoline Does Not Vaporize Readily Enough.

Of course the principal difficulty in starting a car when it is cold is that the gasoline does not vaporize readily and combine with air into a combustible mixture. Understanding this, do not wear out the storage battery with the starter or your patience with the crank handle in a fruitless endeavor to start something. Use your head instead of your arms. It will start easier, for neither headstone nor armstrong starters are worth while.

Open Choking Device.

As soon as the engine starts it is very important that the choking device be opened partially, depending upon the temperature until the engine heats up, and then fully opened. Otherwise the excess of gasoline will cause the engine to run sluggishly. Indeed, it may load up the cylinders with such a mixture that the engine may stop again. This in turn will make it harder to start the engine than before. Do not close the choking again if the engine stops from this cause. Get as much air in as possible while you crank the engine and thus approximate a correct mixture.

If using of the choking device fails to start the engine the only thing left to do is to apply heat to the intake manifold. You may pour a little hot water over the manifold. The intake will get warm enough this way in a little while. But a surer way is to wrap a cloth about the manifold and empty the teakettle slowly upon it. Extreme care must be taken not to get any water on the high tension ignition terminals or in the float chamber of the carburetor. Water will not pass through the spray nozzle and a tiny globule will stick there and hold back the gasoline.

Warming Device.

Practically all modern carburetors have some sort of warming device to heat the gasoline and air entering the mixing chamber. Some get air from a stove or hot-air furnace attached to the exhaust pipe and some depend on hot water from the cooling system. Neither of these will get into action, however, until after the engine has been running some time and will not help the cold morning troubles of the owner. If there is a hot water jacket on the carburetor, persons who drain the cooling system on cold nights will aid starting materially if they fill the radiator with hot water in the morning just before it is time to start the engine. This denotation is not likely to occur.

It Is Not Necessary to Prime Gas Tank by Hand

The idea that when one runs out of gas and the vacuum tank has run dry, it is necessary to prime it by hand, is erroneous, according to a factory authority. A knowledge of how to refill the tank without leaving the driver's seat will save time and effort. Here's how: Turn off the ignition and throttle down, then step on the starter and turn the engine over a dozen times.

This creates sufficient vacuum to draw gas from the gas tank to the vacuum tank, and fills it up, ready to go as soon as the ignition and gas are turned on again.

Warning Signal Light Attached to Oil Gauge

While the oil gauge on the dash indicates plugged oil pipes by registering excessive pressure, or oil-pump failure by a low pressure reading, you may not happen to look at the gauge. The illustration shows how to install an electric indicator lamp that will immediately call your attention to any oil failure in case you do not notice the warning of the oil gauge.

Pressure an extra oil gauge and mount it on the back of the dash. Remove the glass. Mount a fiber or rubber block just above the gauge and on it fit a couple of light brass fingers arranged to make contact with the gauge pointer. The proper set times will, of course, depend on the characteristics of your particular car.

up to the regular running point. It anything goes wrong with the oiling system, the gauge pointer will touch one of the fingers and the light will flash a warning. Popular Science Monthly.

Auto Stopped Instantly With Original Device

A device which the inventor holds will save human life by stopping an automobile almost instantly has been perfected and a patent for it has been sought by Paquale Strano.

The mechanism, the inventor says, can be applied to any car. It stops the vehicle, he declares, by dropping under the rear wheels a shock, or shoe, the sole of which is fitted with a cork pad to prevent skidding. The shoes, which weigh about eight pounds, are fastened on a pair of rocker arms integral with the chassis. They are wedge shaped, and the points pass under the wheels. The wheels cannot pass over the shocks, Strano asserts, because the top surfaces of the shoes are fitted with rollers on which the wheels revolve if power is applied before the shocks are pulled up.

AUTOMOBILE ITEMS

On the highways and in politics, detours are the order of the day.

If the accidents caused by road hogs

Another good way to acquire a vocabulary is to try making the old tires last through the winter.

Now that gear shifting is to be made easy, perhaps the automotive engineers will devise a silence for brakes.

German railway car manufacturers who turned to making automobiles to save their profits have found the venture a failure.

A partially charged fuel line will permit the car to run up to certain speeds, then a popping noise starts in the carburetor.

To mention some of the important changes in spraying materials, wettable sulphur sprays are gaining in favor in almost all sections of the country because they give good disease control and less injury than standard lime-sulphur. The sulphur in lime-sulphur reaches the tree in soluble form, and if it gets into the insubstantial form of leaf or fruit tissues, injury results. Furthermore, lime-sulphur tends to form compounds with arsenate of lead which are apt to give burning, although hydrated lime added to the spray helps to overcome this disadvantage.

SMELT SPAWNING RUN OVER HERE

ONLY SMALL CATCHES MADE AFTER FIRST TWO NIGHTS

Local Opinion Favors Belief Run Was Practically Over Before Found at Stover Creek.

Almost as suddenly as it was discovered a week ago last Friday, Charlevoix's smelt run up Stover creek at the south city limits, came to a close. Two nights of dipping was the limit, although large crowds were on hand each evening up to last Saturday night. Strict regulations were kept in force under the supervision of conservation officials, assisted by Sheriff Dave Vaughan and Special Deputies Ed. O'Neill, Sam Hamilton and Harry Gregory, until it was ascertained the run was over.

The last time smelt were taken in any large number was a week ago Saturday night, the second night of the run. At first it was thought that the fish could not get in from the lake. The stream was clear last Wednesday night, however, but the smelt did not run, nor have they since. Last Wednesday evening it was reported a good catch was made at Advance creek, near Boyne City, but Thursday night there were none there.

Inasmuch as this year was the first experience local conservation officers and sportsman had with smelt, they were not acquainted with the habits of the fish, or how they would act under different weather conditions. The streams were practically over their banks with flood water all last week, and many contribute this as the reason the smelt did not run.

The most logical conclusion arrived at, was that the run was well advanced before discovered. It has since been learned that the young fish were taking smelt from Stover creek several days before others found it out, which fact would be proof the run had been underway for several days before dipping was commenced, and that the usual ten-day period of spawning was probably over the middle of last week. The same is true at Advance creek, where natives had been dipping for several days before others knew of it.

Two facts no one is in doubt about are that smelt are in local waters and that prospects for another year are bright. Plans are already under way for next spring and Charlevoix will not be caught napping. This year the run at Beulah was set as the time when local streams were to be patrolled. The spawning run at Stover creek started at least two weeks before it did at Beulah and local sportsmen will keep this fact in mind when making preparations for next spring.

When it is considered that thousands visit Beulah annually during the smelt run, it can be easily figured what the discovery of smelt in Stover creek is going to mean to Charlevoix. In his sports column in the Grand Rapids Herald, Max Sandy calls attention to the fact that Beulah's hotels have been well filled, and a busy Fourth of July atmosphere has dominated this northern Michigan area since early in April. He writes further: "Nor is Beulah alone. Charlevoix has hoped covery that smelt also are moving up creeks running into Lake Charlevoix. It has been known for some time that the smelt were becoming numerous in the big lake, but no one hitherto has found any considerable evidences of a spawning run. We may be approaching a time when the imported smelt will become a spring-time attraction all up the west coast of Michigan."

CAMPBELL NAMED ON INQUIRY BOARD

Indian River Senator to Investigate
State Utilities Body.

Lieut. Gov. Luren D. Dickinson announced Thursday afternoon the appointment of Senator Calvin A. Campbell of Indian River as member of the senate committee to investigate the Michigan public utilities commission. He replaces Senator Orville Atwood, who asked to be relieved because of his recent employment by the commission.

The probability that the administration bill providing for a three-member public utilities commission will not be given legislative approval appeared Thursday when Gov. Green said many house leaders were opposed to the measure.

Representative Abner B. Green, chairman of the public utilities committee, in which the bill is being considered, affirmed the governor's statement. Representative Green said he personally does not like the provisions reducing the personnel and giving the governor authority to appoint the chairman. The present five-man committee rotates the chairmanship.

GRAND RAPIDS PAS- TOR AT ST. MARY'S

REV. R. E. FITZPATRICK TRANS-FERRED TO CHARLEVOIX.

Prominent in Grand Rapids Athletic Circles at Catholic Central High School.

Rev. R. E. Fitzpatrick, for more than eight years assistant pastor of St. Andrew's cathedral, Grand Rapids, will take charge St. Mary's parish, Charlevoix, according to appointments announced last week by Rt. Rev. Joseph G. Pinton, D. D., bishop of Grand Rapids. The appointment is effective April 12.

Rev. Fitzpatrick was ordained to the priesthood June 20, 1920, in the cathedral of the late Rt. Rev. Edward D. Kelly, D. D., and after holding several temporary assignments was appointed assistant at the cathedral, Jan. 26, 1921.

Fr. Fitzpatrick has taken an active interest in promoting athletics at Grand Rapids Catholic Central high school and it was chiefly through his efforts that the alumni of this institution were organized to support the school's athletic teams. This movement resulted in the Catholic Central football team rising from its former humble position to city champion caliber and placed it on several occasions as strong contender for state honors.

He has been athletic director of the school for several years and was also representative of parochial schools to the Michigan State Inter-scholastic association.

Among his other duties Fr. Fitzpatrick is school director of the Holy Name society.

Fr. Fitzpatrick replaces Rev. Fr. Theodore Wemhoff, pastor for the past year, who leaves for Cleveland, Ohio, to enter the field of missionary and welfare work.

POTATO ACREAGE PLANTED IS LESS

LOW PRICES HAVE MADE FARM-ERS MORE CAUTIOUS.

Michigan Prices Determined by National Crop—Last Year It Was

Potato growers in Michigan would plant only 260,000 acres of their crops in 1929 if they carried out their March 1 intentions as reported to the crop reporting service. Herbert E. Powell, commissioner of agriculture and Verne H. Church, agricultural statistician for Michigan said today that this intended acreage is much less than the average acreage of potatoes in Michigan, and that in terms of per cent the intended decrease was greater than that planned for the United States or other nearby states except Wisconsin.

According to the March 1 report made by potato growers, the intended United States potato acreage for 1929 is 3,418,000 acres. From this intended acreage about 2 per cent should be deducted to allow for usual losses during the season, and this would mean 3,350,000 acres for harvest next fall, compared with 3,825,000 harvested in 1928 and 3,176,000 in 1927. With average weather conditions this United States acreage would produce something like 390,000,000 bushels. Consequently, after the holdings of the 1928 crop are off the market, this suggested production would mean only about the usual supply of potatoes next season.

These calculations indicate that the strongest possibility is for a near average production of potatoes in the United States the coming season. In contrast to this outlook for the United States crop, Michigan growers are planning an acreage which with average weather would result in a crop approximately 13 per cent below the average production for the past ten-year period. Michigan growers can expect to receive a fair price for their potatoes whenever the United States crop is not above average, for the state's position relative to the market is more advantageous than that of many of the heavy producing states further west.

Michigan potato growers are inclined to be cautious in planting acreage this year because of the experiences of the past two years. In 1927 the Michigan crop of potatoes was short, but the United States production was so large that the price was forced down and Michigan growers were not able to obtain the usual high price that goes with a short production. Ordinarily our crop does not vary that way, but 1927 proved conclusively that the Michigan price is determined by the size of the national crop. Then the 1928 potato crop was the largest on record in the United States, and the price has been low. It is true nevertheless that there are now many Michigan growers who have learned the reasons for growing a normal acreage of potatoes each year. The entire situation is presented in the intentions to plant report. Cheap seed will mean that the cost of production will be curtailed and that the best seed can be afforded. Growers who can ordinarily obtain good yields and who feel that they can profit by producing potatoes in Michigan when average prices are in prospect, should find encouragement.

STRIP RAINBOWS IN BOYNE RIVER

PREPARATION MADE THIS WEEK FOR ANNUAL RUN.

Supt. Hoofnagle of U. S. Hatchery and Conservation Officers Are Co-Operating.

Preparations are being made this week for the annual collection of rainbow spawn in Boyne river. Supt. Hoofnagle of the Charlevoix federal hatchery is in charge.

Informed by the fish and game committee of the Association of Commerce of the excellent possibilities to gather spawn in Boyne river, Supt. Hoofnagle got in touch with U. S. Bureau of Fisheries officials at Washington, D. C., obtaining permission and an appropriation for the work. Through the co-operation of Ed. Deuell, district game warden, a special permit has been granted by the state conservation department to take spawn.

Sunday, Mr. Hoofnagle and County Warden Henry Pike made a survey of Boyne river and selected a site below the power dam between Boyne city and Boyne Falls. Previous to this time racks had been constructed at the hatchery here, and Mayday they were put across the river. Stripping and fertilization of eggs will be carried on at the field station and the spawn will then be transferred to the local hatchery for propagation.

The spawning run is now in progress and it is estimated many thousand eggs will be taken and hatched out and the fry planted in Charlevoix county rivers and streams. The project has all the earmarks of being a successful one this season and will go a long way towards insuring an excellent planting of fry to restock local waters. Gathering spawn has been attempted for several years, but lack of early preparation resulted in failure.

Survey for Rearing Ponds. It is understood that officials of the state department of conservation will come to Charlevoix some time this week to select sites for the bass and trout rearing ponds mentioned in a previous issue of the Courier. Stover creek seems to be in favor for the location, although since the matter was first brought up, many other sites have been offered and are available. Flood waters are receding rapidly and a careful survey of all streams is planned.

No project undertaken by the Association of Commerce has met with such spontaneous enthusiasm as the bass and trout rearing pond proposition. It should be thus, for in the opinion of the writer, the plan is destined to bring Charlevoix county lakes, rivers and streams back to their former fame, and right now the greatest resort attraction any community can offer is good fishing. If you are asked to cooperate, be ready to respond, and Charlevoix county will ultimately be put on the map as a "Fishesman's Paradise."

BELOVED SUMMER RESIDENT DEAD

MRS. J. J. KNIGHT PASSES AT KALAMAZOO HOME.

She Was a Member of One of Char-levoix's Earliest Resort Families.
Spent Many Seasons Here.

Charlevoix people will learn with sorrow of the death of Mrs. John J. Knight, a member of one of Charlevoix's earliest resort families, who passed away at her home in Kalamazoo last Thursday evening. Mrs. Knight's family, the Potters, maintained a cottage on the Belvedere Club for many years, and just recently Mrs. Knight built her present beautiful home on Belvedere avenue. She was very active in the resort colony and had a host of friends among local residents. The following obituary is taken from the Kalamazoo Gazette:

"Mrs. May Potter Knight, 80, widow of the late John J. Knight, died at 6 Thursday evening at her home, 718 West South street.

"Mrs. Knight had not been at all well of late. Two or three times last winter she had been seriously ill. The last illness lasted about 10 days.

Mrs. Knight was the daughter of one of Kalamazoo's most distinguished and valuable families. Her father and mother were the late Mr. and Mrs. Allen Potter. The father came here in the 40's and his oldest child, May, was born in June, 1849. Her birthplace was the unique cottage house on South Westnolze avenue now occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Don H. Ross and family. Allen Potter built that, his first home here and at the time far beyond the village limits. For 50 years the family has lived in the South street residence.

"Aided by family connections, May Potter at once took a leading position in the social and musical activities of the community and by her singular graciousness of manner she never lost that position. She was devoted to music, and even in the late years of her life played with ability. She was a member of several local musical and literary organizations and in her younger years was very active in the work of the First Lutheran church society.

"She married the late John J. Knight early in the 70's. They were residents of Kalamazoo, with the exception of a few years when they lived in Chicago. Five children were born to that union, Potter, Robert, and Allen having died. The Potters were among the first Kalamazoo families to regularly spend their summers at Charlevoix, maintaining a cottage at that popular Northern Michigan resort.

"With all her activities in local and church life, Mrs. Knight was distinctly bound to her family and to such is remembered as the generous and sacrificing mother.

"The funeral will be held at 4 Saturday afternoon from the late home in West South street. Burial will be in Mountain Home cemetery."

DRIVEN BY WANT, MAN ROBBED P. M. STATION

Lloyd Hoag Released Under Bond
Tuesday Following Arrest.

Driven by destitution and inability to procure employment to provide money, Lloyd Hoag, 30, was taken into custody at the Pere Marquette station at the noon hour Monday.

Suspicion was directed at Hoag because, after working on the grounds nearby, he ate his lunch in the station waiting room during the noon hour while N. Nickerson, agent, was home. When first questioned by Deputy Charles Marshall, Hoag denied his guilt, but upon being searched, the money was found hidden in one of his socks.

Hoag was released Tuesday afternoon when he furnished $250 bond for his appearance at the May term of court. This looks like a case where the man needed assistance, rather than condemnation.

Bridge Luncheon Affair.

A delightful bridge luncheon was held at the Glen See home on Dixon avenue last Tuesday afternoon. Twelve were present. Out-of-town guests were Mrs. Russell Blakeslee and Mrs. Wm. Hampton, Jr., of Detroit, and Miss Sara Groves of Seattle, Washington. Mrs. Arthur Ranger won high honors at bridge.

Konjola triumphs when all else fails simply because it works as a medicine should—right at the source of the ailment. The 32 ingredients of Konjola, 22 of them the juices of roots and herbs, all work together, yet each has its own mission to perform. How Konjola works is illustrated in the case of Mr. Harry Smith of Dexter, Mich., who says: "I suffered so long from rheumatism that I believed that there was nothing to help me. Pains filled my entire body, particularly the lower limbs. My kidneys were bad, too, and back pains added to my woe. Though I had no faith in any medicine, I decided to put Konjola to the test. And what happened? Konjola helped me at once, and today I can walk as well as I ever did; all my pains have vanished and life is worth while. I will never lose an opportunity to praise this glorious medicine."

Konjola is sold in Charlevoix at F. J. Fessenden's drug store and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

CHAPTER IX

The Return of the Lost

Thinking that Brock had decided to weather it out in his camp on the bank of the great barren, Gaspard waited for his return at the end of the north—but Brock did not come. Puzzled, the half-breed went to the outlying camp of his friend, where, to his amazement, he found that Brock had not spent the two days of the wind and snow. Where had he gone?

Worried, Gaspard returned to camp. His partner had been caught, somewhere, while hunting. If he had meat, he would work his way home. But three days passed and Brock did not return. Gaspard drifted far to the south and west, but found no fresh trail of the boy and dog he sought. Brock was a good hunter; he would not starve, and he wouldn't stay lost, he'd work north and home. Then the thought of how his father had vanished into those pitiless white hills chilled Gaspard's heart. Was he to lose Brock, his friend, also? Brock, whom he loved as a brother?

Sorrowfully, the half-breed returned to camp. The days went by and Brock did not return. At length, hope died, and Gaspard wrote the message which he felt the eyes of Brock would never read, and started on his man hunt.

To the rich catch of fur which they had hidden in their cache in the swamp, he gave no consideration. At Hungry House this fur would buy him much that he needed. But Hungry House had seen the last of Gaspard Lacroix. Brock was gone, and he had promised them he would bring him safely home in the spring. The spirit of his father called him—the father whose bones had lain undisturbed the sport of bird and beast—whose death was as yet unavenged.

So, with food for a few days in his pack, Gaspard started on his man hunt.

He had passed the inlet—ten miles from camp, when, in a thick stand of young spruce, he turned sharply to the right and from the cover of a clump of seedlings, watched his back-trail. What sixth sense had given him the uneasy feeling that he was being followed, he could not explain. The morning was still, without wind, but he had heard no click of the haws, no creak of shoes on the snow, dry as powder. But the stalker would have seen to that—he would have muffled the sound. No, if there was some one on his trail, he was far back.

Shivering with the intense cold which cut through his caribou-skin capote, the half-breed was fast becoming convinced that his premonition was false, when he suddenly stiffened where he lay. The barrel of his rifle slowly lifted as his right eye fixed the night. A hundred yards distant a hooded figure carrying a rifle, moved over the trail.

So they were hunting him again, were they—these people who had hunted his father? Well, before the snows faded in April he would give them their bellies full of this little game. The small eyes that followed the Indian trailer over the rite sights glittered with hate. Slowly one closed. Again the right eye covered the up of the muzzle. A finger moved—and the soundless forest echoed with a splitting roar.

With a scream, the crouching shape on the trail lunged into the snow. From the thicket above which drifted a wispy of gray smoke, clicked the action of a rifle as the lever tossed aside an empty shell and pumped a cartridge into the barrel. Again, silence settled on the scene. Slowly the snow beneath a sprawled leg of the crouched figure reddened.

Then, crouching cautiously until he saw the gun of the would-be assassin lying where it had fallen, out of reach, Gaspard walked boldly to the unconscious Indian.

"Alchah!" he muttered. Then, first drawing the knife slung to the Cree's sash and tossing it away, Gaspard examined the wound. His shot had gone home. He had struck the thigh as he had intended, and the Cree had fainted from shock and pain.

"Quietly the half-breed fashioned a tourniquet of the Cree's sash and bound the leg. Then, shortly, he had a fire going. Carrying the groaning man to the fire he laid him on a bed of boughs. But in spite of the light bandage above the wound, to Gaspard's surprise the hemorrhage continued.

As the Cree became conscious of his surroundings, Gaspard forced hot tea down his throat. The shivering did its work.

"You wish to live," rasped the youth, in the Cree language, "you talk with a single tongue."

Fear-shot eyes in the seamed features of the stricken Indian searched the cold face of the man who had outwitted him. Again Gaspard held the black tea to the gray lips.

"What you told me far to kill or take me?" began the Indian.

"Where is your camp?"

"The monning face of Lacroix approached the other's."

"Far from here, in the north."

"How many Cree and white men?"

"Many—right, ten."

"Who is the chief—the boss?"

"A white man who came in a ship. He has a red beard."

"Then the youth drew his skinning knife. His glittering eyes drew close to the ash-gray face of the man who lay by the fire under the blankets.

"Were you here—last long snows—in this country?" he asked, hoarse with passion.

The pinched face nodded.

"There was a man—from the south—approached, in the month of the melting snow. Is he alive?"

In the eyes of the Indian fear gave way to a look of bewilderment, of agony, as he gasped: "I am very sick."

"You saw this hunter?" pressed the inexorable son of Pierre Lacroix.

The Indian feebly nodded.

"Is he alive?"

There was no answer. Gaspard glanced at the distorted face, bloodless, still; then fumbled under the Indian's capote for the heart beat.

There was none.

Rising, the baffled son of Pierre Lacroix shook his fists at the insensate spruce. In his heart was no pity for this man at his feet, who had tracked him that day to shoot him through the back. These men had taken from him the father he loved—were ruthlessly hunting down Brock and him self. At that moment, his missing partner natch the somewhere, still in the snow, as this assassin lay here, at his feet.

It was war to the death, now, between Gaspard Lacroix and the men who had taken from him father and his friend. Through the winter he would hunt them as one hunts the wolverine who robs the traplines. Before the March crust they would learn that on their trails followed a tracker merciless as the caribou, untrifled as the timber wolf. The war was on!

Leaving the body of the Cree to the mothed and clawed merces of the wood-folk, who would shortly find it under the heap of snow with which Gaspard covered it, he continued on his wide circle north of the big lake, heart sick with thoughts of his missing partner, he approached the camp. Eighteen days now, he thought. With the country full of game Brock couldn't have starved, even if lost. And if lost, in time he was bound to find the lakes or the river. No, they had taken or killed him—the friend he loved.

The dogs, ravenous with hunger, greeted him with a chorus of yelps. Then he saw, standing in the snow, Brock's trapping sled. His heart pounded. Brock was safe—had come home! Brock was alive—his partner—was alive!

"Kekway!" he shouted in his joy, running to the tent. "Ha! You Brock!" But the tent was empty. He had gone again! Where?

Circling the camp, Gaspard found his own trail of three days before, followed by the well-known tracks of Brock's wider web.

"By Gar!" He ran to find Gaspard's cried the excited hunter. Then, in his emotion, he lunged each of the clanking huskies.

With Brock alive, the situation was changed. He now had some one to live for—to take care of. His promise to Angus McCain, made at Hungry House, to bring Brock back, bound him. He could not ask his partner to go north with him and throw his life away in a mad attempt at vengeance. He would stay with Brock and trap while the fur was prime, then in March, he would journey north in search of his toes. If he failed to return, Brock could take the dogs and run the river to the sea, alone, and carry to Hungry House a fine pack that would pull the eyes out of the factor's head.

Late in the afternoon of the second day, as Gaspard followed Silt-Ear pulling the hindquarters of a caribou in over the ice-bound trail leading to the camp, Flash met them with an extravagant welcome.

"Hello, you man-Ebert! What d'you mean by leaving just as I totter back after starving out in the bush?"

The lean face of Gaspard shone with his joy at seeing his friend.

"You're Brock? You gave me some bad day, Brock?" he cried, punching the shoulder of the sturdy white boy, as he wrung his hand. "I hunt an' hunt for your trail!"

"But tell me," Brock interrupted. "You were followed, and you waited for him. But how did you know he was on your trail?"

"I feel dat day were after me, dat morning. And you saw him?"

"Yes, I wanted to be sure he didn't get you and leave on your shoes, so I looked at the body. Did you learn any thing?"

"No, de Cree have seen my father—he know; but he was weak an' nevaite tell how my father die."

"You had! I'm mighty sorry, partner," Brock rested a mottled hand on the shoulder of his friend, whose dark features pictured the bitterness of his disappointment.

Then over a supper of caribou steaks and tea, Brock told his story.

"Nevaire travel een a murder again," commented the bushwise Gaspard. "Wait for de sun; den you don't get lost."

"By gar, dat Flash ees smart den!" cried the half-breed, who a Brock told of missing the monster. "De wolf hunt string caribou; but full-moon, in de deep snow ees ver' strong. Dat ees cross dog, dat Flash!"

"His heart's all iron, and the way he traveled on an empty stomach was a caution. He hadn't eaten for days when he tackled that monster. Gaspard if it wasn't for me, he'd have been a long time in the bush."

The lean features of the other lighted in understanding. It was Brock McCain's way, to have his friend, his dog, with all the capacity of his big heart. There were no reservations in Brock.

• • • • •
Hitching the dogs to the long, hauling sled which had come on the canoe had all the way from Hungry House, with Flash in the rear, behind Silt-Ear, to separate him from the leader, Yellow-Eye, the boys started next day over Brock's trapline trail, buried under the new snow. Gaspard led the team, tramping the new sled down to the ice-hard trail beneath, now frozen solid to the ground by the constant traveling of Brock and Flash with the trapping sled.

With the tangible warnings Gaspard and Brock already had had, to attempt to blush the winter on Yellow-Eye legs meant a life of constant vigilance. Once their enemies from the north worked south of the big lake and found the trapline trails, they might be ambushed or taken in their sleep, for the dogs could be poisoned or shot. But never, for an instant, did the two hunters consider a retreat. The heart of Gaspard Lacroix was set on revenge.

UNDER THE DOME AT THE STATE CAPITOL

Michigan's legislature developed more speed, and produced more actual results, in its 14th week of existence than in any week previous. At the close of the week leaders in the house and the senate were generally agreed that the present session would end during the first week in May, because of the progress being made in solution of financial measures.

GROW ARTICHOKE'S The New Sugar Crop

Last year's crop, now being due, is paying our growers as high as $40.00 per acre, at the rate of $1.00 per 50 pound bushel.

We want more members to raise artichokes this year, for seed.

It is the most easily cultivated root or tuber crop to be found in the temperate zone. It does better on poor sandy soils than other root or tuber crops.

We have proved, by growing this crop the past 7 years in Michigan, that it can be successfully grown in both the upper and lower peninsulas, for we have yields above 400 bushels of tubers per acre.

Join the National Artichoke Products Co., a mutual growers association, organized under the laws of Michigan. We are both promoting the growing of Artichokes and developing markets for it.

Membership costs $25.00, easy terms if desired, and seed costs $3.00 per bushel, freight allowed in Michigan. 7 bushels plant an acre. Plant as much as you want to. We take all the Artichokes our members grow. Indications are that the 1929 crop will net our growers as much or more than the 1928 crop, which is $3.00 per bushel.

Get in on the ground floor now, and make some big money, for the whole U. S. will want seed another year. We have only a limited amount of seed. Act quickly.

The Editor of this paper will write up your contract and send it in, or write

THE NATIONAL ARTICHOKE PRODUCTS CO.
1095 Baugh Bldg., Lansing, Mich.

Perhaps the most sudden development in the legislature, so far as finance matters are concerned, was the passage in the house of representatives of the state income tax bill introduced by Rep. Wilbur Snow of Kalamazoo. This measure was rushed through the lower house late last Thursday afternoon, by a vote of 54 to 37, and sent to a mildly puzzled senate, which was all set to receive the Hartman mill tax measure the latter part of last week, as the best and neatest solution of the problem of raising money for institutional buildings.

The Snow income tax measure would provide for a 2 per cent annual tax with the following exemptions: Single persons, $500; heads of families, $1,000 and a $400 exemption for each dependent under 18 years of age. The bill permits deductions for property tax payments.

The revenue to be raised by the Snow tax measure, if it is enacted, has never been estimated. It is believed however that the eight-tenths mill taxation plan, backed by Rep. Gus T. Hartman of Houghton, will be pushed along, ready for favorable consideration as the backbone of resource for the state institutional building program in the end. Gov. Fred W. Green recommended a state income tax of .5 per cent in his address to the legislature, Jan. 2.

Among the other notable achievements of Michigan's 132 lawmakers during the past week was the reporting out, in the senate, Friday morning, of the administration appropriation measure, released by the finance committee of the two houses after many week of joint meetings to consider the provisions of the measure. The appropriation bill is designed to spread a property tax of $20,000,000 annually, for the next two years, unless some of this burden is relieved by some special taxation plan, such as, for instance, the Snow income tax measure. In addition to the tax clause appropriations there are non-tax clause appropriations totaling about $14,000,000. Non-tax clause appropriations are those which are taken care of if and when there is any cash surplus in the general fund.

Early in the week Governor Green signed and put into effect the Watson bill, which carries amendments to the criminal code, so framed as to exempt fourth offense violators of some 120 felonies from the life imprisonment provisions of this code. Among the violations so excepted are violations of the state's liquor law, which, of course, injected the bitter wet-dry aspect to every consideration of the Watson measure. Fourth offense involving liquor, or any of the other 120 odd lesser felonies will now bring a term of from 7 1-2 to 15 years.

In the meantime, drys were temporarily checkmated by the fate of the Cuthbertson-Miner liquor bill which went to conference following a tangle between the house and senate over its several provisions. The important feature of the measure is that no liquor law violator could get life terms for fourth offense, but there are mandatory penalties for first offenders, even home brewers. The committee representing the house, more moist than dry, will meet with an ultradry senate committee appointed by Lt. Gov. Loren D. Dickinson of Charlotte. The two committees are: from the house—Representatives George C. Watson, Capac, chairman of the house judiciary committee; Gus T. Hartman, Houghton, and Charles H. Reed, Genesee county, while from the senate the conferees are Senators Leon F. Miner, Owosso; George M. Condon, Detroit, chairman of the senate judiciary committee, and Albert J. Engel, Lake City, chairman of the prohibition committee.

The prediction was freely made that these committees could never agree, and that the Cuthbertson bill is now dead.

Michigan broke onto the front pages of the nation's newspapers last Wednesday and Thursday through the instrumentality of Sen. Cass J. Jankowski of Detroit, who introduced a joint resolution in the senate Wednesday afternoon, calling for a state-wide referendum on the prohibition law. The measure was referred to the senate committee on prohibition, headed by Sen. Albert J. Engel. The resolution was regarded in some circles as a mere gesture, but there seemed a possibility, late in the week, that the resolution might be allowed to come out on the floor of the senate for consideration by that body. The voters of the state would ballot on the question, as did Wisconsin voters last Tuesday (with discouraging results for the drys), at the general election of November, 1920.

Rep. Robt. Wardell, Detroit, arch-enemy of the Michigan Anti-Saloon league, was only slightly behind Senator Jankowski in introducing in the house a resolution to submit to the people at the same general election the matter of state control of liquor for home use only.

Sale of the Chelsea cement plant, for $750,000, is provided for in a bill introduced by Sen. Ari H. Woodruff of Wyandotte, whose measure was offered shortly after Governor Green had suggested to the legislature that they devise some means of realizing the state's investment on what has apparently turned out to be a "white elephant." The funds would go to the institutional building fund, thus to lighten the property tax slightly, by the provisions of the Woodruff bill.

The house of representatives also aided in keeping the governor on the alert last week by adopting a resolution placing that body on record as favoring the commutation to terms of from 7 1-2 to 15 years, the life imprisonment sentences now being served by four time liquor law violators.

Charges leveled at the public utilities commission by Sidney E. Doyle, Detroit member of that body, will be investigated Tuesday, April 9, by two legislative committees appointed following adoption of a resolution from Rep. Chas. J. Deland of Detroit. Mr. Doyle alleges that the commission is not functioning in the best interests of the public.

How much power is in your garden?

NATURE can do only so much with any seed. The seed itself must contain the promise and the power. You would feel convinced of the power of Ferry's purebred Seeds if you could see the great Ferry stock seed farm and trial gardens.

Here are acres and acres of specimen plants. Every plant that is mature is big, vigorous, beautiful, and bountiful. Only the best plants are allowed to mature—all else are weeded out. Any plant that doesn't produce true to type gets weeded out. And only seeds from the plants that measure up to the Ferry standards in size, color, flavor, productivity—are the Ferry's Seeds you can buy.

In these seeds is the power to produce flowers of superb beauty, and vegetables of superior flavor and size.

Surely all the work you put into your garden deserves just these seeds. Ferry's Seeds have to be all you expect when you buy them. In addition, they are fresh. No packet of Ferry's Seeds is ever carried over by the dealer for sale the second season. Ferry's Seeds may be had at "the store around the corner." Write at once for the Ferry's Seed Annual—with its good garden advice. Address D. M. Ferry & Co., Dept. H, Detroit, Mich.

Your garden will have its best possible start with Ferry's purebred Seeds.

Are You Planning A Home?

Here is a suggestion . . .

Builders of the most modern homes of today are including in their plans specifications for extension telephones in various rooms. The old time reception hall telephone is being augmented by extension telephones in the library, bedroom and kitchen. They promote convenience and quick answers.

The additional cost is slight, and adequate telephone service is a requisite in the present day home.

The Telephone manager will be glad to tell you more about extension telephones and house wiring plans.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS
By B. C. Mellencamp
Hold Membership Meeting.
The relationship between prices received by the farmer and the production costs, living costs, operating costs and other costs was clearly shown by R. V. Gunn, specialist in farm economics, at the membership meeting held recently by the East Jordan and Boyne City Co-Operative agencies. At the present time the farm prices are lower than production costs, but the margin is very small. On the other hand, taxes and industrial wages are high—in fact higher than during war times.

Mr. Gunn also presented important data concerning price trends and the manner in which the local farmer organizations are endeavoring to solve the problem. He made the significant statement that the retailer sets the price, then after the production costs and marketing costs are subtracted, the farmer gets what is left. Is this a fair share? Such discussions as these are well worth while and assist the membership materially in strengthening their organizations.

Chas E. Atwater, fieldman for the Cadillac Exchange, also spoke on the importance of maintaining quality, efforts of the central organization in finding markets and in giving back to the farmer the highest prices possible.

At both meetings a very enthusiastic audience greeted the speakers and were unanimous in their praise of the worth-while material presented.

Don't Neglect to Treat Your Oats.

Smut in oats causes a very large annual loss in Charlevoix county and can be almost wholly prevented by treating the seed with formaldehyde.

This material is easy to apply, is cheap and effective for controlling both loose and covered smuts. One pint of formaldehyde will treat 50 bushels of oats and may be applied as a spray, sprinkle or dip. Add the pint of formaldehyde to one pint of water for spraying, or to 40 gallons of water for sprinkling or dipping. The seed should be thoroughly cleaned and graded before it is treated and unless it is sown right away, it should be spread out and thoroughly dried after treating. Bags or sacks that have been used before should be soaked or sprayed with a formaldehyde solution before putting treated seed in them. Contaminated drills also should be disinfected. Formaldehyde should be handled with care, as it is irritating to the nose and eyes.

At the present time there are numerous smuts in the market for smut treatment, but formaldehyde is dependable and has given as good control as any other material in field tests, and is still recommended over some of the more or less untried materials that are being so largely advertised.

Bee Meeting of Great Interest.
All farmers in Charlevoix county engaged in agriculture will be interested in attending two meetings to be held on Thursday, April 18, with J. C. Kremer, specialist in apiculture, in charge of the discussion.

The first meeting will be held at the farm of H. C. Newman, about two miles south of the Charlevoix Co-Op Marketing association, on the East Jordan road, on Thursday, April 18, at 10:00 o'clock, fast time, and the second in the basement of the East Jordan public library at 2 o'clock fast time in the afternoon of the same day.

Topics of timely interest will be taken up at this time, such as bee diseases, swarm control, spring management, grading and preparation of honey for market, marketing and others. These are the first bee meetings of the year and it is hoped that a large attendance will meet Mr. Kremer and receive the useful information he has in store for you. Bring any questions or problems you may have, with you and be sure in your own mind that you are following the most profitable practices that can be recommended.

Thursday, April 18, is the day. Select your nearest meeting.

History

Hilda Brady reported on the life of General Grant in the American history class on Monday. She gave several of his nicknames, including United States Grant, Uncle Sam and Sam. Finally she said that his real name was Ulysses. Miss Keller remarked that this was the first time she had ever heard Ulysses S. Grant called Ulysses.

Some very interesting material covering the Civil War has been collected by the American history classes. Helen Mary Campbell contributed an old diary by Harrison Berdan during the Civil War. A part of this diary was read aloud to the classes. He told of being in prison in the South and of the escape that he and his comrades planned. They succeeded in jumping from a moving train and then made their way to West Virginia. Food was scarce and they had to eat whatever they could. She also showed some documents that had been owned by this man, including the honorable discharge and muster roll.

Hilda Brady has a very interesting book containing pictures of the line of march covered by a relative.

General News

The inter-class tournament for the boys' and girls' class teams of the high school will be played this week, April 10th and 11th. It is expected that the games will draw a big crowd. Wednesday afternoon the junior girls play the freshman girls. Wednesday night the senior girls play the sophomore girls. It is expected that this will be an exciting game, as these two teams played in the finals of last year's tournament. The freshman and senior boys play against each other and the sophomore boys play the junior boys. On Thursday, the winning teams of Wednesday's games will compete for the championship of the high school. The silver loving cup which will be given to the winning teams, is on display in the assembly.

Girls' Basketball

Miss Thomas has been putting the girls through some strenuous basketball practice lately, as the class tournament is due this week. Every effort is being made to have the games swift and entertaining, but this warm weather has somewhat decreased their pep.

May Flowers

Early spring May flowers have been found in the woods already, while leeks are seen springing up in shady spots. Butterflies are seen flying around and most of our summer birds are here. The frogs have given voice to their melodious songs in the twilight.

"April showers bring May flowers." We have been visited already by some typical April showers.

C. H. S. biology students flock to the woods in search of specimens.

Biology Notes

The biology class of Charlevoix high school are going to vote on a state bird April 15. Many guesses are being made as to which of the birds will be chosen. The Chickadee is a promising candidate, for it amuses us the year around, while the other songsters all desert us for the southern climate. However, there are various opinions whether or not this is the most popular candidate.

Notice

The lunches which have been given at noon by the domestic science class have been discontinued.

English Department

The juniors are studying the lives and works of Lowell and Holmes. In connection with the works of Lowell, "The Present Crisis" was read.

During the past month the students have been preparing original scrap books made in the style of Albert Hubbard. The scrap books are composed of poems, articles, etc., discovered in their outside reading. Also worthwhile quotations given in class.

The second year English students are engaged in a vigorous grammar review. Mrs. McKinley has informed us that we cannot get thru English unless we pass a very strict test in grammar. Although it is a very disagreeable part of the English course, we must take the bitter with the sweet.

Latin News

The Latin students are making maps and posters of different subjects relating to Caesar. The maps contain Italy and the surrounding country, and show the most important Roman roads, rivers, tribes, mountains and cities. The posters show pictures relating to Latin, sometimes being "ads" using Latin names.

Commercial News

The commercial students will be especially busy the next three weeks preparing for the annual shorthand and typewriting contest to be held at East Jordan, April 27. There will be entrants in first and second year typing events, and first and second year shorthand events from Charlevoix, also the transcription event, which is considered the classic of the contest.

A cup will be given to the school winning the most points, and gold, silver or bronze pins to the individual winners.

General Science

The general science classes have finished their maps and have marked off about twelve flooded districts. The maps are going to be voted upon to see which is the best and the owner will not have to take the next examination.

When a Woman Sings

For some strange reason, many people do not enjoy hearing women sing high notes. It may be that their ears are tuned to appreciate the lower tones of music more perfectly. At any rate, if you fail to get any compliments on your singing, just suppose that everyone is naturally honest. Have you ever heard the poem that goes like this?

"When my girl laughs it's like the song of a bird,
When she weeps, it's like the fall of the dew,
But when she starts to sing, I steal away and wait
'Till she gets through."

Declamation Contest

A declamation and oratorical contest was held last Thursday evening in the gymnasium under the direction of Mrs. McKinley. The program was opened by a selection from the girls' sextette, and followed by the declamation contest. Charlevoix was represented by Mary Margaret Orłowski. In the intermission between the declamation and oratorical contest, the audience was treated to a selection of songs between the declamation contests.

In the declamation contest, Boyne City's representative took first place, while Miss Orłowski stood fourth. The oratorical contest was won by the Cheboygan entry.

All of the orations and declamations were well given and enjoyed by the audience, many of whom were outsiders.

Want Ads

The ancient history classes would like to know the value of a shilling.

The modern history class would like to know what European country has a constitution very similar to that of the United States and drawn up at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, after the world war.

The biology class would like to know how many ribs there are in the human body. It is believed there are anywhere from 12 to 36.

Two STURDY-RICH MOTOR OILS

Polarine-Iso-Vis

WHICH do you favor? Both are good motor oils—rich and sturdy. Both meet the new motoring conditions of engines running hotter because of higher compression and faster driving.

Polarine has a record of twenty years of outstanding service. Many thousands of motorists demand it wherever they go. If you want a smooth running motor—use Polarine—drain and refill your crankcase every five hundred miles.

Iso-Vis is newer. No other oil like it. It has a constant viscosity. It will not break down—it will not thin out—it lubricates faithfully and well all frictional surfaces. It wears and wears and wears!

Many Iso-Vis enthusiasts drive for a thousand miles or more without changing oil. Iso-Vis is as efficient on the last mile as on the first.

The Standard Oil Company [Indiana] recommends both. Which do you favor?

Two Bows and One Smile Bring Child Movie Role.

Little Lorraine Rivero, six years old, stepped before a technicolor camera, turned her head first to the right and then to the left, nodded just a little bit, at the suggestion of Victor Schertzinger, Paramount director and then went home.

A few days later her father received a call telling him Lorraine had been cast for a juvenile role in "Red-skin," Richard Dix's new picture, of which two-thirds is presented in color. This natural color special was filmed against the authentic background of the Arizona and New Mexico Indian reservations and, as it will show at the Palace Theatre next Saturday and Sunday, it is one of the outstanding pictures of the year.

Without resort to trickery the identity of the murderer is not revealed till the very end, and the ending when it is flashed on the screen

The production was directed by Manning Haynes. Aside from its accurate picture of a murder trial in London's Old Bailey, it has some beautiful and picturesque rural English scenery. The sheer drama and emotional intensity of the story makes its appeal universal.

DISTRIBUTE PLANTS TO SCHOOL CHILDREN

Arbor Day, the last of April, will be celebrated by many school children of Michigan by planting Boston ivy and barberry on the school and home grounds. Five thousand barberry and one thousand Boston ivy will be distributed this season to schools and citizens.

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "If goodness and spirituality are real, evil and materiality are unreal and cannot be the outcome of an infinite God, good." (p. 277).

FOREST FIRE WARNINGS HAVE SOUNDED

State Preparing for Its Spring Campaign to Save Timber.

The first forest fire warning of the season was made last week by H. J. Andrews, chief of the forest fire division of the state department of conservation.

Andrews specifically asks that extreme care be used during the next month or six weeks in burning right-of-way areas. Green foliage has not sufficiently developed to curtail any fire that may be spread by the spring winds.

District Game Warden Ed. Denell has asked us to remind the public that permits must first be obtained by those desiring to burn brush or set grass fires. He will issue permits upon application and by this precaution conservation officers obtain a knowledge of where to look for fire danger, and can be on the lookout. The law has "teeth" and it would be safer to get a permit first.

POORER SCHOOLS TO RECEIVE HELP

PASSAGE OF TURNER BILL WILL INSURE NEEDED AID.

Bill Now Ready for Signature of the Governor; Passage Ends Long Fought Battle.

Every school district in Michigan having an enrollment above the state average and having a school tax rate of more than ten dollars per thousand dollars of assessed valuation will receive aid from the general treasury of the state, if the Turner bill becomes a law.

This bill, known as Senate Bill No. 225, passed the house by a vote of 86 to 5 and passed the senate as amended by a vote of 20 to 8. It is now awaiting the governor's decision.

The Turner bill is the outgrowth of agitation started in Escanaba, Michigan, about seven years ago. O. A. Baandee, at that time secretary of the chamber of commerce at Escanaba, and now secretary of the chamber of commerce at Flint, proposed what has been known at the Escanaba plan. This method provided that five per cent of the general primary school fund was to be apportioned on the basis of school census enrollment per one hundred thousand dollars of equalized valuation. No district, however, could receive more total aid from the state than the total it paid for teachers' salaries. This plan was incorporated in a bill introduced in the state legislature in 1923. It passed the house but died in the senate committee on education.

Two years later the legislature adopted a bill having the features of the Escanaba plan. The bill was known as the Bohn-Carter-Turner bill. It was introduced by Sen. E. E. Bohn. It was signed by Governor Grosbeck on April 16, 1925, and was known as Act 53 of P. A. 1925. Its constitutionality was challenged, and in 1928 the supreme court ruled that the law was unconstitutional. The court decided the method of distributing the primary school money could not be changed except by an amendment to the constitution.

In the meantime Senator William F. Turner, Morley, at that time a member of the house of representatives, introduced the predecessor to the present Turner bill. The Turner bill of 1927 and the Turner bill of 1929 are essentially the same, except that the latter bill calls for a distribution of two million dollars instead of one million dollars, and also has a tax clause. The Turner bill of 1927 passed the legislature and was signed by Governor Fred W. Green. The bill, however, had not provided for the raising of the funds and so there was no money to distribute.

The present Turner bill, which will become a law if signed by Governor Green, includes a clause stipulating that the two million dollars is to be taken from the general fund of the state.

Those interested in the assistance this would yield to our school districts struggling under a high tax rate, are imploring the governor to sign the bill.

The passing of this bill would mean over $36,000 to the hard-pressed schools of Charlevoix county, $45,000 for Emmet county, $47,000 for Afton county, etc.

Charlevoix county is eligible to a share in the $36,750.56, which is reckoned as the portion for Charlevoix county if the Turner bill becomes a law. Let us hope that Governor Green makes this a reality.

STUDY CLUB SPONSORS BIRD HOUSE CONTEST

Fourth, Fifth and Sixth Graders Are Eligible; Contest Open.

The Shakespeare Study Club will sponsor a bird house contest again this year, according to an announcement made Wednesday morning.

Boys and girls of the fourth, fifth and sixth grades of the public and parochial schools will compete. A first and second prize will be awarded in each grade. The contest opens this week and closes May 3.

A U. S. department of agriculture bulletin, "Homes for Birds," is available at the elementary building and at the public library.

Pythian Sisters will hold a rummage sale in building occupied by Nell's Cafe, first door south of Van Alsbury's, on Friday and Saturday of this week.—Adv. 1611.

SUNDAY SCHOOL PARTY WAS A HAPPY AFFAIR

Members of Each Class Responded With Talks; Fine Program.

The Sunday school supper-party at the Congregational church last Friday evening was a happy affair for those who were eligible to attend.

Each class had its own table, each decorated differently from the other. The Winners' Class used a blue and white color scheme with a large gilded aeroplane suspended from the ceiling over the table. The Giant Killers' class decorated in blue and gold and suspended over the table were the names of the evils the class are trying to subdue. The Willing Workers and King's Daughters occupied the center of the room and produced a very pleasing effect in pink.

After supper Rev. Mattson called on each class for a program number and responses were made as follows: Adult Bible class, H. D. Deane; Honor class, George Bergman; Willing Workers, Virginia Nickerson; Winners, Edwin McCann; King's Daughters, Bernice Lamphair; Giant Killers, Drew Young; Light Bearers, Rosemary Swanson; Pathfinders, Keith Nickerson and Geo. Kellhouse; Comrades, Jimmy Miller.

FRESHMAN BOYS WIN CLASS MEET

SOPHOMORE GIRLS WERE BEST IN THEIR DIVISION.

Upper Classes Bow to Skill of Fresh and Sophs in Inter-Class Tournament.

Upper classmen bowed to the lower freshmen in the inter-class basketball tournament which closed in the high school gymnasium Friday evening. The finals for boys were held over from Thursday until Friday evening on account of so many of the players accompanying the band to Traverse City.

The freshmen five won their way into the finals by taking the seniors into camp in the first round of play by a score of 10 to 6. The game was a nip-and-tuck affair, with the advantage passing first from one team to the other. Anne, freshman center, scored 5 points for his team. V. McSaba was second high man with 4. Swartout of the seniors made 4 points, Arnold 3 and Bleha 2.

In the final encounter Friday evening, the freshmen elders were again carried to victory over the juniors by a one-point margin, 7 to 6. This game was another thriller with the lower classmen emerging victorious after a furious battle. For the freshmen, Arvilla, Anne and McSaba scored 2 points each and Beattie 1. For the juniors, Foster was high point man with 4. Stroud counted 2.

The sophomore girls, led by the scoring of Angie Scott, took the seniors into camp in the opening tilt to win a place in the finals. The score was 27 to 22, with Miss Scott making 25 points. Velora Ripley led the senior attack with 16 points. In the finals, the sophomores again proved their superiority by downing the juniors 16 to 14 in a game that was close all the way. Miss Scott was again high point scorer for the sophomores with 11, while for the juniors, E. Shawrow led with 10.

The senior girls romped off with some old-time dances.

BAND CONCERT AND MINSTREL

AT HIGH SCHOOL GYMNASIUM FRIDAY EVENING.

Home Talent Affair Sponsored to Raise Further Funds for School Band Uniforms.

Billed as the leading attraction of the year is the school band minstrel and concert to be given at the high school gymnasium on Friday evening of this week. It has been some time since Charlevoix saw a home talent minstrel show and this one promises to be the best ever.

High school students and others of Charlevoix's citizenry have tendered their services for the show, the proceeds of which will be turned over to the band uniform fund. It is hoped to have the uniforms paid for by the end of the present school term and, if this affair is a success, as previous entertainments, a tidy sum will be raised. Mr. and Mrs. Merritt Miller are directing the show.

Following is the program:
Opening chorus, entire company.
"Taint So, Honey, Taint So," by Sambo Snowdrop.

"Can't You Hear Me Callin'," Caroling, by Ebenezer Ebenezer.

Southern Song, Cross and Crown, by Jones Bonepart.

Easy Going, by Florian Slappy, Memoria March, Band.

Cornet Solo, "Calvary," Ho Helms, Roll On, Through Dark, Deep Ocean, by Mr. Interceptor.

Specialty, Mussolini and Jocko, by Novotney Brothers.

Ten Little Miles from Town, by Atomic Molecule.

Varsity, Band.

Constantinople, by Potassium Permanganate.

Shadows Creep, by Eddie Joslin.

Specialty, Valse Erica, by Abraham Lincoln Lockjaw.

The school band will play all the numbers which won them the district band tournament at Traverse City.

Listed among the cast of actors are: Faye Bradley, Dean Davenport, Merritt Miller, Dick Marshall, E. C. Sterritt, Bob Foster, Grant Crandall, Edwin Madill, Louis Bourissau, Roy Kelderhouse, Lloyd Swartout, Alfred (Bud) Gill, Barker Kirby, Jr., Stanley Hammond, Bill and Max Novak, George McKenzie.

An afternoon matinee for children will be given at 3:30 o'clock, and the evening performance is at 8:30 o'clock.

ALTAR SOCIETY SPONSORED ENJOYABLE GATHERING

The Altar Society of St. Mary's church held a card party Monday evening. Twenty-nine tables were in play. Franklin McPharland won the door prize. Della Lemieux, first prize at Pedro, and Mrs. Charles Hamilton the first prize at bridge with a score of 2905. Joe Foster awarded the prizes, after which he announced the name of Mrs. Ida Case of Petoskey, as holding the luck number on chances sold on a cake. Many guests were present from Petoskey and East Jordan to meet Rev. Fr. R. E. Fitzpatrick, who has recently been assigned to this parish. Following the card playing, those present enjoyed some old-time dances.

NETS ARE LIFTED FROM SOUTH ARM

MANY GAME FISH TAKEN IN HAUL MADE MONDAY

Harold Hallett, Local Angler, Hooked Nets While Trolling for Mackinaw Trout.

A quarter mile of 2-inch mesh gill net was lifted in South Arm near Holy Island on Monday of this week by Game Warden Henry Fike. Harold Hallett of this city, hooked the net while trolling for mackinaw trout and in turn notified Mr. Fike.

We understand the net contained a large number of fish of several varieties, including rock bass, brook trout, rainbow trout, mackinaw trout, herring, whitefish and perch, also that it was the third net taken from Lake Charlevoix within the past week or two.

Seems too bad conservation officials have to contend with persons so unscrupulous that they would make a wholesale slaughter of game fish with nets in Lake Charlevoix. Warden Fike now has a suspicion who owned the nets and it is our hope the guilty party or parties will be caught and given the limit of the law.

We also hope the time will come when every resident of this county comes to realize the great importance good fishing in Lake Charlevoix means as a tourist attraction.

It will then be possible to get wholehearted cooperation from every section. It certainly is not very encouraging to sportsmen spending their time and efforts to plant fry and otherwise foster conservation measures to have the results of their labors caught out in nets. We hear reports of spearing, dynamiting and other unlawful methods of taking rainbows both on the Boyne and Jordan rivers. Game Warden Fike has found traps and fuses where they had been used on Jordan river, but was unable to catch the guilty ones. It will be hard to get better results along conservation lines as long as one game warden is expected to patrol all waters in the county. It is quite some task and no one man can do it.

When the commercial industry in towns at the eastern end of this county becomes replaced by resorts, the citizens there will then begin to look towards fishing as an asset instead of something to be avoided, and laws as a protection to future prosperity instead of barriers to desire. Until that time, we can look for little cooperation.

BOYNE CITY YOUTH TAKES HIS OWN LIFE

Found Hanging in Shed By His Younger Brother.

Boyne City was shocked last Thursday night to learn of the untimely death of Jiranie Hart, 16 year old son of Mrs. Addie Hart, whose lifeless body was found in a play shack at his home that evening. The lad apparently had hanged himself and although the rope had broken the fall had brought about death, probably instantly. Coroner Boylan was called and found evidence pointing to this fact.

The lad and his mother had been unable to agree during a conversation Thursday morning on plans whereby the lad would go to work on a farm, the mother states, but said that this was nothing serious and that she knows no reason for the act.

The body was found by the youth's younger brother, Lawrence Hart, who finding the door of the shack locked, climbed to the roof, tore off a board and let himself down to the floor. There he discovered the body of his brother. He ran to inform his mother.—Boyne Citizen.

The Charlevoix city council held its annual organization meeting Monday night in the council room in the library building and made ready for the year's activities. Alderman Fowler was appointed a week ago last Monday night by Mayor Bergeon to fill the vacancy caused in the second ward by the resignation of Ernest Howe. The appointment was confirmed and Mr. Fowler qualified last Friday.

CHARLEVOIX BAND WINNER CLASS C

BEST OF ENTRIES AT TRAVERSE CITY MUSIC TEST.

Petoskey Winner in Class B Event—Traverse City and Benzonia Second Place Winners.

Charlevoix high school band carried off class C honors at the Northwestern Michigan district music contest held in the Traverse City auditorium last Thursday. This was Charlevoix's first entry in a music contest and, considering the length of time the band has been organized, the accomplishment is a great credit to the leader, John TerWee, and members of the organization.

Charlevoix was given very close competition by Benzonia, so much so in fact, that the judges spent some time deciding between the two before giving Benzonia second place. Behind Charlevoix and Benzonia were Elk Rapids in third place and Bellaire in fourth. The judges were Miss W. J. Sexton, head of the voice department of Hope college, Glen McChesney of the music faculty of M. S. C., and G. B. Litton, instructor of instrumental music at South high school, Grand Rapids.

Four bands competed in class B of the district music contest at the Traverse City high school Friday morning and when the three judges announced their decision that afternoon, Petoskey was the winner. Traverse City was in second place, East Jordan in third and Cadillac in fourth. It was an entertaining contest and a close one. Many in the audience believed first place would go to East Jordan or Traverse City, but Petoskey's more effective brass section told.

Petoskey and Traverse City were the only schools to enter the ensemble contests, and they divided the honors evenly. Petoskey won the first and Traverse City second in the brass ensemble and Traverse City first and Petoskey second in the woodwind.

Traverse City won in two vocal events, in mixed chorus and boys glee club. Cadillac won the girls glee club contest. Petoskey's orchestra won but will not go to the state contest; neither will Traverse City's which took second place. If the band goes, Traverse City will probably also enter its woodwind and brass ensembles, the woodwinds having won Friday morning and the brasses having placed second to Petoskey.

It is not known definitely whether the Charlevoix band will compete in the state contest, although in view of previous interviews with school officials, it is thought unlikely. The expense of sending the organization to the state meet is too great, when the number of band members and length of stay is considered.

Buy Gas on Its Merits. Blue Sunoco Gas is a pure petroleum product with a gravity test of 64.9, while some other gas tests as low as 58 and sells for the same price. Sunoco Gas is colored to identify it. In other words, the color is a trade mark. It takes less than one-half ounce of harmless coloring material to color 10,000 gallons. Motorists who have given Sunoco Gas and Oil a fair trial are looking for the blue gas stations. They know they will get more miles per dollar, a quicker start and a clean and smooth running motor. KONJOLA CAME AS A BLESSING INTO MY LIFE Grateful Lady Relates How New Medicine Gave First and Only Relief.

MRS. ANNA BUCK

"Konjola, the new medicine, has been called a 'boon,' a 'blessing' and a 'Godsend' by countless men and women to whom it has brought the first and only relief from obstinate, ill of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and from rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness. Konjola conquers when all else fails; it banishes disease at the source; it is not designed to give mere temporary relief. What encouragement there is in the statement of Mrs. Anna Buck, 89 W. Forest street, Detroit, who writes:

"I was sick, worn out, ran down all over, and but a medicine I tried helped me. I was about to give up, when a neighbor urged me to give Konjola a trial. I was extremely nervous, had dizzy spells, sharp pains in my back, my system was filled with poisons and impurities, and my rest was broken at nights. This condition prevailed for three years, but Konjola—just six bottles—put an end to all my misery. Direction is restored, kidneys are normal and all pain is gone. I feel as though I had never had a sick day in my life."

Konjola is sold in Charlevoix at F. J. Fessenden's drug store and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

"KIDS"FLASH THE LEAD DOG

By George Marsh

cross know but one desire—desire for knowledge of how his father died and for vengeance on those responsible for his death. And little as Brock felt the idea of leaving his home in the wilderness of the Yellow-Loz, his loyalty to his friend and his fighting spirit admitted no thought of avoiding what the long snows held for them. Already they had given the strangers good proof of what man hunters might expect in the forests of the south. Two had come out, never to return. And later, on the March crest, when the going was good, the hunted ones would turn hunters. So ran the thoughts of the friends as they made camp on the eve of the hunt on the big barren.

Under stars still bright in a purple sky, Brock and Gaspard looked toward the north. Leaving the wilderness behind, he took a wide road, the partners showed to the back of the barren and waited for dawn. Two days before, Gaspard had counted a hundred caribou, but now, as the blue east grayed, and the frosty stars paled and faded, they wondered whether or ghostly phantoms of the phantom wanderers of the north were off there in the shadows gliding with combed, toothed hoofs for the redoubt moss of the barren.

At last the bitter dawn shined through the ashen east with rose and pearl and under slits of light.

In the uncertain half light, something moved across the snow a slim gray shape, and was gone.

"Fox?" said Gaspard.

Slowly from eastern ridges, groping fingers of light flickered out over the ash gray floor of snow. The shadows died. It was daylight.

"There they are!" said Brock, between his clattering teeth, shagging his right hand from the mitten suspended from his shoulder by a thong. "Three—six—ten of 'em!"

Before them ten caribou, in their frosted breath rising like jets of steam.

"You talk de bull wild heez horn?" Gaspard whispered to his friend. Then the frozen silence was split by the explosion of two rifles. A large bull leaped into the air, plunged forward, stopped, then made a short circle, to plunge into the snow. A cow reared on her hind legs, bent the air with forefeet, and fell dead. The others, mad with fright, leaped and circled aimlessly sniffing the air for the direction of the danger which threatened. Again and again the rifles cracked. Then, from the stricken band, three faint, ruffled survivors fled across the barren, their flexible hoofs clicking sharply on the still air as they ran.

"Seven!" cried Brock, when two wounded deer had been put out of their misery. "That's a good start, Gaspard! We'll build a cache at the little camp and shoot enough more to take us through to the spring break-up."

"Yes, they may not be here in the moon when de Cree starve; we make de heez much for us and de dog."

The remainder of the day the boys spent in cutting up the caribou and handling the meat with the dogs to the platform cache seven feet high which they built in thick timber near the camp. Then trimming the sinews and sketch smooth with their axes, they dried them with inverted fishhooks to battle thieving wolverines who might attempt to climb. At the carcasses of the deer, they set traps, for night would bring every prowler within miles down wind, to the feast on the white barren.

The following morning, putting their copper kettle of deer stew and the tea ball on the fire, Gaspard and Brock hurried to the barren.

"We've got something in those fox traps," said Brock as they approached the carcasses.

"De fox have fine meat last night," Gaspard answered the other.

was networked with fox tracks, and two of the traps were occupied.

"A red and a cross!" announced Brock, with satisfaction.

Two remaining traps Brock found unprung, and he was returning when with an exclamation of surprise he stopped dead in his tracks.

"Hey, Gaspard! Come here!" he called. "Look at that wolf track!"

In the snow trampled by the caribou, near the base of Brock's shoes, was the clearly defined print of the left hind foot of a wolf—minus one toe.

For a space Gaspard knelt and studied the track, then with a nod, raised his head to his friend.

"It is 'Fete-Noir, my father's dog,' he said huskily. 'She has turn wolf. It es the same track I saw in the freezing moon.'

For a space the son of Pierre Le-croix and his friend gazed at the imprint of the mutilated foot in silence, then Brock said: "Well, Gaspard, we'll lay low for the next six weeks and pile up a big catch of fur, then we'll strike north and do a little ambushing on our own hook. We'll get one of these Cree on his trap-line and make him talk."

Gaspard nodded. "I neevre strike back for Starving Wolve before I find out how my father die."

"I'm with you, partner!"

With the meal safely cached and the dogs wired to separate trees, where they gazed to their hearts content on caribou ribs, the partners followed the barren into the west. It was a clear day when the frozen plain shimmered like a sea of fire—a day when the caribou bays, bay-bay-bay, like to be in the sun in open spaces, on lake and barren, when the wind is dead.

The hunters had not traveled an hour in the south on the rim of the barren when they saw many deer sunning themselves not two hundred yards from the cover of the scrub. Working back out of sight Brock and Gaspard stole silently through the small spruce and tamarack, then crept out to the lip of the barren.

The two rifles cracked. Two deer leaped, started to circle up wind and fell. The others roared back to their bunnies in surprise, then wheeled in terror and fled toward the south, their snowshoe-like hoofs clicking in the still air.

Again two rifles exploded again and again.

In mad panic, for a space the maddened deer fled aimlessly, leaping high from the snow, then, with white tails up, fled out across the barren led by a cow.

"Good shot, Gaspard!" cried Brock as the lead deer leaped, and firing the last shell in his gun, brought down a galloping caribou at three hundred yards. "Well, we won't starve until April. If the wolverines don't get this meat," continued the excited Brock, counting the deer on the snow. "Might we get every one? That's better than big than any red Cree in this country could show."

So with enough meat on their platform cache to tide them over the lean days of the spring break-up, when the melting snow hails hard between the toes of the tortured dogs, compelling the use of moonshoes; and travel by fox tracks and man, the boys turned back to inspect their traps and move the main camp to a place of greater safety.

CHAPTER XThe Stalk of the Dead

The day following, as the vanished sun rimmed ridges with red and gold, tinting the white reaches of lake and meadow with rose, the dogs were stopped a mile back of the main camp.

"We talk no chance, dese day. Dese people not ambush us our Gaspard Le-croix can help. I go and have a look."

"Right enough! But in going, too."

The hunters wired the team to trees, then, separated by a hundred yards to look a possible surprise from hidden enemies, started a complete circle of the camp to cut any approaching trails. They had nearly completed their circuit and were close to the decoy trail, made weeks before by Gaspard, when the halfbreed who was ahead, watched swiftly forward and stopped, bent over the snow, then raised his hand and beckoned to Brock.

"One passed here and did not return," muttered Le-croix. "He wait for us."

First, the two, again widely separated, cautiously completed the circuit. No strange trail led from the camp. He was there, hidden in some thicket of young spruce, near the tent, lay a Cree with a loaded rifle, waiting.

The forest was purple with dusk as the two friends agreed on a line of action and started their stalk. He had hidden himself—this unknown enemy—to shoot them in cold blood. Muffled as if by watching a rabbit run, he was waiting for their return from their trap-lines. They would show him equal mercy.

"Why not get Yellow-eye and Flash? They'll smell him out," Brock suggested.

"No!" had been Gaspard's decisive answer. "Ten de dark, de dog would yell and warn him, and he get away. Let dey jump from de night shoot or cut one wid de knife. I hunt dat Cree."

So they started, a hundred yards apart, to follow the trap-line in to the camp, for the one in ambush would wait, now, to shoot by the light of the fire of the returned hunters and would be close in.

Fifty yards from the camp the moving shadows faded into black patches of scrub. An hour passed and the forest floor beneath the spruce was empty.

Again, the haunting call of the winged assassin of the night broke the tense silence. Shortly, the answering voice of its mate drifted over the frozen spear heads of the black spruce. For a space, the frosted stars glittered above a soundless forest, then, again, the muffled threat to the little people of the snows waked the bitter night.

Shortly, like a ghost, a blur of black crossed the snow of an open space, blue in the starlight, to dissolve in the blackness of a thicket.

"See anything?"

"No," came the whisper. "I hunt every place near de camp. We get de dog. Dey weel fin' him."

"You bet they will! He's still here."

Steeling back to where the impatient dogs clamped and whined at their trees at being thus deserted without food, Gaspard and Brock, each taking two on leash, returned to the camp.

With repeated pats and whispered commands, "Go get 'em, Flash! Get 'em, Kenta!" Brock released the straining huskies, who sensed that some thing was wrong—some animal near the camp they should hunt down in the darkness.

Cora Bhow was born May 27, 1869, in Clinton county, New York, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Bhow. She came to Michigan with her parents in 1880 and was united in marriage to Henry Jennett in 1886. Mr. Jennett died in 1920. Ten children were born to this union.

Mrs. Jennett moved to Cadillac in 1921 and was there married to Antoine Holecheck, and two years ago the couple came to the Holecheck farm near Norwood.

BROWN REPRESENTATIVES ATTEND MEET

School in Tire Servicing Attended By Local Men.

New methods of tire servicing and the proper equipment for enabling Goodyear dealers to help their customers get the most mileage out of tires was the theme of the dealer meeting held at the Park Hotel in Traverse City, Wednesday evening, April 10, at which district dealers were the guests at dinner of The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co.

Floyd Webster, Dick O'Neill and Frank Courier of the Benj. Brown garage, local Goodyear service station attended.

"Better ways of merchandising tires, better methods of servicing tires so the customer will get all the mileage that is built into them and up-to-date methods of operating a service station were some of the more important features of the program," said Mr. Brown.

A six-reel motion picture entitled "Going Ahead with Goodyear" showed up-to-date methods of tire merchandising and of servicing tires, which gave everyone a lot of good ideas, according to Mr. Brown.

Some of the ideas received by these men were to be included in his service and sales departments as quickly as possible.

CHARLES DICKENS CLUB HELD ANNUAL BANQUET

Mrs. A. L. Livingston Was Hostess Last Wednesday Evening.

The members of the Charles Dickens Club held their annual banquet in honor of their husbands Wednesday evening, April 10, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Livingston, with thirty-two present. The guests were seated at small tables which were beautifully decorated with the club colors, Chinese blue and yellow. At each place was an individual bouquet again emphasizing the color scheme.

The retiring club president, Mrs. Henry Partridge, greeted the guests with a few very appropriate remarks. Following the banquet, Dr. F. H. Wilkinson sang two solos, being accompanied by Mrs. Clara Webster, which were well received.

A one-act play entitled "Changing Places," was then put on by Messrs. James Webster, Craig, Ochs and Cooper, and was cleverly acted. A tired business man decides that housekeeping is play, while the busy wife is equally sure that selling houses is a pleasant and less arduous task. After a try-out, each returns contentedly to the old job, with a more sympathetic appreciation of the duties and responsibilities of the other's work.

The guests departed at a late hour, much appreciating the Livingston's usual hospitality.

KEEPING THE MIND FIT

Doubtless the world is quite right in a million ways; but you have to be kicked about a little to convince you of the fact. And in the meanwhile, you must do something, believe something. It is not possible to keep the mind in a state of accurate balance and blank; and even if you could do so, you would be very apt to remain in a state of balance and blank to perpetuity.—R. L. FAIR MAGAZINE PED- LERS PAY A VISIT Girls Directed by Male Engineer Who Was Silent Partner.

A group of a dozen and a half of rowdy looking chickens flocked into the city one day last week and in a tion to magazines by the wholesale to the easy marks that fell for the girls "persuasive" ways.

The girls were guided in their work by a male engineer who remained at the hotel to collect his tithes as the girls reported sales, and then when evening came the whole kahoodle jumped into two touring cars waiting for them and presumably hid for Potoskey where they were to work the villagers the next day.

This is one of the most unscrupulous games worked throughout the country and the public seems to fall hard for it every time the hazy chickens representing themselves as girls working their way through college steps across the threshold.—Cheboygan Observer.

Yes they hit Charlevoix a few days after leaving Cheboygan. Pulled the same stunts, grabbed off the easy money, and left town in a hurry. There are just as many suckers here Brother Editor, as there are in Cheboygan.

Shall We Vote?

The journalism class has been reading exchanges from other schools and noticed that several high schools are holding elections or contests of some kind. Several high school students have suggested that we vote for and elect the prettiest girl, the most popular girl, the school chick, such a flapper and others.

Would you like to try that in Charlevoix? If you would, tell your class sponsor.

The persons elected will be responsible for an assembly program to be given during the month of May.

Charlevoix Band Wins Tourney

Thursday of last week marked an exciting day for Charlevoix high school band. The final decision of the judges at the tournament at Traverse City was in favor of the boys in red and white suits, giving them first place in class C. Benzonia was second and Elk Rapids and Bellmore next in order.

The students of the high school heard their band play a concert in the gym Wednesday morning and it was delightfully entertaining. The students are proud of their band and hope that they may continue with their success.

Latin Department

Anyone who visits the language room at this time may see along the walls an attractive display of maps, posters and booklets. Most of the posters are made up of different advertisements which are either derived from the Latin language or use Latin forms altogether. It has been both interesting and instructive to work on them and the results have been very satisfactory.

Journalists Respond to "Call of the Wild"

The journalism class, chaperoned by Miss Keller, started the picnic ball rolling last Tuesday night.

After school the fifteen members of the class hopped into their cars bound for Pine Point, where the fun of hunting wild flowers and the hilarity of the picnic fire awaited them.

Some early spring flowers were found and possibly more might have been found had not the party yielded to the stronger urge of "weenies" and buns.

The boys, having wasted their scanty supply of matches in an effort to burn up the waterfront, finally decided to build the fire on drier ground. Bill Novak converted himself into a human bellows and coaxed the last ember into a flame.

After a bountiful supply of "weenies," huns and marshmallows, Miss Keller distinguished herself as a fortune-teller. By means of palmistry and her ready "sixth sense," she was able to pull back the curtain of the future and reveal the students as poets, musicians, statesmen or travelers.

This first early spring picnic left us with such happy memories that we hope that it will not be long before we may again hit the long trail for the woods.

English Department

Book reports are due this week in the second year English classes. We have been asked to report on both a book of short stories and a biography.

Mrs. McKinley told us last week of the magnificent "Singing Tower" which was erected last February by Bok in memory of his grandparents, at Mountain Lake, Florida. Ex-President Coolidge and President Hoover presided at the dedication. The beautiful music of the bells may be heard from a long distance, and this "Singing Tower" will probably attract tourists from all the four corners of the globe.

Veterans Tell Story

An interesting report on the Civil War was given by Stanley Hammond in the American history class last Thursday morning.

Mr. Hammond visited Mr. Shores and Mr. Wallace, both of these men having served in the war. They told him many exciting experiences in which they were connected and he, in turn, gave a thrilling account of their adventures.

Mr. Shores served in the navy, which was a very important factor of the Union forces. He related how a man committed suicide because he was afraid to enter a dangerous battle. He also told of a man who died of homesickness. His spirit was so lost that he died at home, that he pined away seemingly for no other reason than his homesickness. Mr. Shores was at Memphis at the time of Lincoln's assassination, and the entire army felt a deep personal loss at his death.

Mr. Wallace served in the land forces with McClellan. He entered the army in 1861. He related one circumstance in which his army marched from Washington into Virginia under cover of darkness. They encamped in a corn field and when they awoke they found themselves covered with four inches of snow. He was taken sick with typhoid fever and removed to a hospital in New York. After he recovered, he entered the cavalry stationed in Louisiana.

The class enjoyed this report immensely and greatly appreciate the efforts of Mr. Hammond in getting his material.

High School Student Sprains Ankle
Miss Lila McMillan, freshman in Charlevoix high, slipped and fell as she was going down stairs. Miss McMillan states that she caught her heel on the step, and stepped to a sitting position with her feet under her, rather than fall face downward. As a result, she strained her ankle quite badly.

Owing to the fact that the class tournament was in progress, it was a very trying position for the freshmen, as she plays center. However, the doctor gave her permission to play the second game on condition that she play only one half.

Boys' Class Tournament

The yearlings (freshmen) turned the tables on our confident juniors and won the class tournament by a small margin of 8 to 7. The other games were equally as close and every contestant played to the best of his ability.

Girls' Class Tournament

The sophomore girls won a hard-fought game from the juniors by a score of 16 to 14. All the other games between the girls' teams were equally as exciting as the final game.

History

The bulletin board in the history room is now covered with clever cartoons of the Civil War and the Irish question.

One of exceptional interest was of the Battle of Bull Run, expressed by a brief animal bawling a southern gentleman back to the south.

Two cartoons drawn by George LaPlante have caused much comment in the school. They are representing the Irish question and each picture portrays a typical Irishman.

EVERYBODY CAN HELP

Never lose an opportunity to boost Michigan as a great summer resort state to your out-of-state friends. The more summer tourists who visit the state the more money it means to nearly every person living in the state.

The tourist cannot help leaving a trail of currency in his wake. When he receives full value he gladly leaves it in the stores, at garages, at resorts, at farms. In time this money, is circulated to every line of endeavor through the natural course of business.

Tourist trade means summer prosperity. Let's have more of both in Michigan.

A little foresight will mean a finer garden

THERE is a surprise when you first taste the melting sweetness of Ferry's sweet corn. It is not ordinary sweet corn by any means. Nor is a plump, red, smooth-skinned Ferry tomato like an ordinary tomato. Nor are the Ferry's Seeds that grow these like ordinary seeds.

Remember that when you buy

Ferry's purebred Seeds, you buy inherited quality. Quality is bred into the seeds. A careful up-breeding of vegetables and flowers has been going on in the Ferry trial gardens for 51 years. This means that the Ferry's Seeds you can plant today came from parent plants and grandparent plants that were themselves purebred. Sixty thousand seeds are annually in the Ferry gardens for germination. Thousands of other trials are made for size, form, color, resistance to disease. So far as is humanly possible, we determine that every crop will meet the Ferry standards.

Ferry's Seeds are easy for amateurs to make grow well, and are naturally the choice of professional gardeners. They are fresh for planting now, at the "store around the corner." No packet of Ferry's Seeds is ever carried over by the dealer for sale the second season. Send for the Ferry's Seed Annual. It is more than a catalog. Address D. M. Ferry & Co., Dept. H, Detroit, Michigan.

Your garden will have its best possible start with Ferry's purebred Seeds.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

By B. C. Mellencamp

Are You Interested in Flowers?

Care and management of the houseplants, soils and fertilizers or flowering plants, care of lawns, annuals, perennials, insects and diseases. bulbs and propagation are some of the subjects that will be discussed at a series of flower meetings to be conducted in the cities of Charlevoix, East Jordan and Boyne City on Thursday, April 25th.

These meetings will be of particular interest to the city ladies as well as rural folks who are interested in making their homes attractive by the use of flowers, bulbs and shrubs and in learning the proper sprays, culture and soil conditions necessary for growth and development.

We are fortunate in having with us at this time Kenneth Post, extension specialist in floriculture of the Michigan State College, who will lead the discussion and answer any questions or problems arising. This is the first time that a floriculture specialist has been engaged by our State college and Mr. Post comes to us very highly recommended, so it is hoped a large attendance will be present for is there anyone who isn't interested in flowers?

The following are the meetings: Charlevoix Court house, Thursday, April 25, at 10:00 o'clock a. m., standard time.

East Jordan library, Thursday, April 25 at 2:00 o'clock p. m., standard time.

Boyne City library, Thursday, April 25, at 8:00 o'clock p. m., standard time.

A cordial invitation is extended to any group of women, who are studying flowers within their organization, and to all contestants in any home garden project or city beautification project, that are being sponsored by different communities in the county.

Lamb Improvement Contest. At the recent sheep meetings held with V. A. Freeman, sheep specialist, present, plans were made for a county lamb improvement contest in which the co-operation of all sheep owners is very necessary.

Our score in the contest depends first on the number of farmers who docket and castrated their lambs this year who didn't last year, and secondly, on the percentage of lambs docketed and castrated as compared with the total sheep population of the county.

Mr. Freeman made the significant statement that lambs bring from 50c to $2.50 per hundred less on the Detroit markets if they are not castrated, and lack of docking also brings the price down materially. With these facts why shouldn't this work be carried out?

With the sheep industry gaining in numbers and quality every year, the importance attached to this contest cannot be overestimated and it should merit the assistance of every sheep owner in the county. In addition, a first prize of $50.00 has been offered to the county making the best showing.

Further details of this lamb improvement contest will appear in next week's paper.

Ask the Salesman this Question:

EVERY prospective motor car purchaser should ask every salesman he talks to, this question: "What is the price of this car, delivered to me, fully equipped with all the equipment?"

You should also ask what the difference is between the factory (f. o. b.) price and the delivered price—and then ask what that difference buys.

Heretofore it has been customary for factory prices to cover only the bare car. This permits the dealer to sell you your humpers and the other accessories, at retail prices.

Nash, in introducing the new "400"

Series, pioneered a new practice, by installing this extra equipment at the factory, at no extra cost to you.

When you ask the suggested question you'll find most salesmen (not Nash salesmen) reluctant to answer. They would rather not say how much more there is to pay, or what the extra money buys.

And you'll also find that by reason of the Nash policy, Nash "400" delivered, fully-equipped prices are much lower than those of many other cars with the same factory (f. o. b.) prices, and lower than some cars with even lower factory (f. o. b.) prices.

MAN 79 FREED FROM PAINS BY NEW KONJOLA

Had Abandoned Hope, After Years of Suffering, But Modern Remedy Came to Rescue.

MR. JOHN MORRIS.

"What a glorious thing it would be if all who suffer could know of the wonderful achievements of Konjola, the new and different medicine. This super-compound of 32 ingredients, 22 of them the juices of roots and herbs, wins because it goes at once to the very causes of disease. Konjola's mission is not to give mere temporary relief, but lasting results. After all, the experiences of others is the best guide to those who would be well again. Read, then, what Mr. John Morris, 79, 316 East Ann St., Ann Arbor, says of this marvelous medicine:

"At the age of 79 I abandoned hope of ever escaping from rheumatism and kidney trouble. I could hardly get around; the pains were so intense I thought I could not bear them a moment longer. I had to get up many times at night. But what a change Konjola wrought! Two bottles gave such splendid results that I knew at last recovery was in sight. Day by day I grew better, and now I am sleeping fine and practically all my rheumatic trouble has gone. I eagerly praise Konjola to everyone."

COURIER, CHARLEVOIX, MICH., WEDNESDAY, APRIL 24, 1929

PRICE $2.00 PER YEAR

MAY FIRST TO BE A BIG DAY

ROUTITIS' PREVALENT DISEASE AMONG ANGLERS.

Local Streams in Fine Condition for Opening and Many Will Hit the Trail to Try Luck.

After an enforced vacation of eight months' duration, anglers are eagerly awaiting the arrival of May 1st and the opening of the trout season.

Long before the sun peeps its head over the eastern hills next Tuesday morning, the pack will be on the road to their favorite stream—and when we say "pack"—we don't mean anything else. Never knew there were so many fish "bugs" in this region as we have heard talking about and planning their trip for the opening day. Yet Ed is not immune, either, for he has had his tackle overhauled for some time. "Doc" Miller said he might announce a dentist's holiday next Wednesday. He said his office would be closed and that "Doc" Wilkinson also had the fever and, with "Doc" Winder confined with illness, those with gums would go begging that day.

In connection with the opening of trout season, it is well to remember that resident male anglers 21 years of age are required by law to acquire a trout license, the fee for which is one dollar. For non-residents over 18 years of age the license fee is five dollars.

A button of similar size to the hunting license button in use last fall, will be issued with each angler's license and must be worn when fishing. Few changes have been made in the streams open to trout fishing this year. The 1929 fishing law digest will be in the hands of license agents within a few days. The Charlevoix Hardware Company sells licenses for this city, and it might be well to get a book of laws and learn what streams are open and what are closed.

Anglers of this region will miss the Boyne Falls pond this year. The state highway department is building a new bridge across the north end and the pond has been drained. Streams at the present time are in fine condition in spite of the high water of several days ago. Continued bright, dry weather has brought them down nearly to normal and things certainly look good for the opening day.

PERMIT FROM WARDEN. MUST FIRST BE SECURED BEFORE STARTING FIRES

This is the time of year when farmers and woodsmen who desire to clear up lands are inclined to burn over certain pieces of land. In most cases it can be done safely and wisely but in many cases the operation is extremely dangerous.

The state department of conservation has provided a way in which this be done without violation of our laws. A permit to burn may be obtained from fire wardens. If warranted, applications will be granted. However the permittee is still liable for any damages that may result from any such fire. A portion of the information printed on the application blank reads as follows:

Applicant shall not be permitted to burn until 48 hours after he has mailed the pink copy of the permit to the district fire warden.

No fire shall be set out after the expiration of this permit, and no fire shall be set at a time when a high wind is blowing. An adequate fire line shall be made around the area to be burned and a force of men sufficient to control the fire, shall be on hand at the time of burning. Permittee shall be liable for all damage to property which may result from burning done under his permit.

FRANK HAMLIN DIED AT HOME HERE TUESDAY

Death Followed Illness Covering a Period of Several Months.

Frank Hamlin was born February 27, 1880, in Hayes township and died at his home on Antrim street Monday, April 22nd, after a lingering illness.

His marriage to Bessie Koteskey of Horton Bay occurred August 17, 1910, in Petoskey. To this union two daughters, Blanche and Edith, were born, who with his widow and mother, Mrs. Celestia Hamlin, survive him.

Deceased had lived in this county practically all his life, having received his education in Hayes township. He has many friends and relatives who will regret his passing.

Funeral services will be held on Thursday of this week at 2:00 p. m. from the family home on Antrim street. Rev. Rauch of the Baptist church officiating. Interment in Brookside cemetery.

SENATE CLEARS UP FISH BILL

ELIMINATES ZONE SEASON AND ROD LICENSE.

Change Brings General Rejoicing From Upper Michigan Where Tourist Season Was Hit.

The conservation department's plan to divide the state into three temperature zones with different inland fishing seasons was stricken from provisions of a general fishing bill by the senate fish and fisheries committee. A section also was eliminated which would have established a general rod license and changed opening season on all fish except trout from June 16 to June 25.

The present non-resident license law was changed from a fee of $5.00 for men and $2.50 for women to a flat charge of $3.00 for both. A clause was added which would permit use of diphtheria to catch suckers in non-trout streams from April 4 to May 31.

Changes made by the senate in the fish bill brought general satisfaction in all Upper Michigan. A stiff fight had been made by the upper counties against changes asked by the conservation department, particularly that of placing the state in three zones, with a later opening date. Upper Michigan contended that the resort business would be dealt a severe blow by the late opening. The resort section has been staging a long fight to lengthen the tourist season instead of shortening it.

COUPLE OBSERVE GOLDEN WEDDING

MR. AND MRS. WM. HEISE HAVE BEEN WED 50 YEARS.

Their Children Executed Successful Surprise Party in Honor of Event Last Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Heise, pioneer residents of Charlevoix and Norwood township, passed the half century mark of wedded life last Saturday, April 20. The occasion was made an exceptionally enjoyable one when the children of the aged couple gave a successfully executed surprise party at the Heise home on State street that evening in honor of the event.

Twenty-six were seated at the anniversary dinner. From out-of-town were Mr. and Mrs. George Gleason and Mrs. George Cornwell of St. Joseph, Michigan. Others were their five sons, Paul, Edward, William Jr., Charles and Clarence of this city, together with their families. A daughter, Mrs. George Moe of Chicago, was unable to be present and two other children are deceased.

Mr. Heise is 74 years of age and Mrs. Heise is 75. They were born at Leitersfeld, Aberswald, Germany, and were married there on June 29, 1879. They came to America June 10, 1881, settling at St. Joseph, Michigan. Two years later the couple moved to Charlevoix and after residing in this city a short time, moved onto a farm in Norwood township. Ten years ago Mr. Heise retired from the firm and the couple have since resided on State street. They are both enjoying the best of health, going about their daily tasks with the energy of people many years younger.

Many beautiful gifts of flowers and articles in gold, significant of the golden wedding, served as pleasant reminders of the occasion. Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Heise extended their congratulations to the couple, and the Courier takes this opportunity of adding theirs.

CHARLEVOIX PICNIC WAS APRIL 14

FORMER RESIDENTS IN WEST GATHER AT LOS ANGELES.

Seventy-five Were Present and Plans Made for Next Gathering On November 3rd.

The first Charlevoix Picnic and Reunion was held Sunday, April 14, at Sycamore Grove, Los Angeles.

The picnic tables were in a sunken garden surrounded by giant sycamores and shrubbery. People began coming at 11 o'clock and as each new crowd arrived there was a round of hand-shaking and greetings. Many had not seen each other for years. In fact, Walter Ball was heard to remark: "I've just met two men I haven't seen for 45 years."

Everyone brought their baskets of "cents" and friends got together at the long tables and had a merry dinner while talking over old times.

A group picture was taken of everyone sitting at the tables and the proof was ready in thirty minutes, and it was splendid. There were about 75 people, and among them were: Dr. and Mrs. A. M. Wilkinson and family, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Erickson, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Boone, Mrs. H. A. Studebaker and family and brother, Ivan Newman, Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Schweitzer and daughters, Alice Overstreet and Martha Bellmo, Mrs. Robert Bell, Walter Ball, Mr. and Mrs. Archie Miller, Francis Pearl, Mrs. Almira Pearl, Frank Hines, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bellinger, Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Blair, J. M. Saunders, Oscar Upright, Mrs. Charlotte Mayne, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Savage, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Campbell, Mrs. J. A. Mills, Mrs. F. N. Chapel, Mrs. J. A. Mills, Marion Thorpe Scott, Mrs. L. D. Bartholomew, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Carr, Mrs. D. E. Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Hudkins, Eva Greenwood Deane, Gale Hudkins, Mrs. Anna McLean, Dr. C. DeMarsa and family, H. H. Brown, Charles Chaloupka, Davis, Frank Chaloupka, Bertha Geyer, Joe Edwards and Mrs. Sarah Hopkins.

A short meeting was called to order by Fred Bellinger for the purpose of organizing a semi-annual picnic and electing officers.

It was voted to have the next picnic on Sunday, November 3rd. It is expected to have 150 members present at the November picnic.

FOREST WEEK AND ARBOR DAY ARE SET

Gov. Green Issues Usual Proclamation Fixing Michigan Dates.

A gubernatorial proclamation issued by Gov. Fred W. Green set the week of May 5-11 as forest week and May 10 as Arbor day in Michigan.

"While American Forest week has been discontinued this year, forests and forestry are so important to Michigan that this state cannot afford to let the spring go by without observance of a special week of thought and action in behalf of trees and the restoration of our forest wealth and attractiveness," the proclamation said.

"All citizens are called upon to help in the observance of these occasions, and are urged to resolve both to promote the forest interests of Michigan and to use diligence in preservation and protection of our wooded areas."

STATE CHERRY MEN ORGANIZE

WILL SELL THEIR ORCHARD OUTPUT CO-OPERATIVELY

New York State to Be Added to List Soon—Officers Named for Michigan Group.

Stabilization of the cherry industry is foreseen in the Michigan cherry growers, a non-profit corporation being launched by leading growers, on the pattern of the Road County Fruit Growers' Union of Sturgeon Bay, in which more than 80 per cent of the Wisconsin producers market their cherries co-operatively.

Increased acreage indicates that cherry production in the United States will be nearly doubled in five years. Growers believe that unless they organize to protect themselves from a surplus, the price may be cut in two when this time arrives.

Essentially their plan is to buy the surplus from the canners in any year of overproduction and dispose of it away from competitive markets. The organization will market its crop to the existing canning company, and does not plan to set up its own canneries, as the Wisconsin growers have. The officers said in announcing their project. Officers will be maintained in Traverse City.

It is assumed that when both the Michigan and Wisconsin growers are organized they will add a similar organization in New York, the only other sour cherry producing region.

Officers are: A. J. Rogers, Benzonia, president; A. B. Graham, Ellert, vice president; David B. Murray, Traverse City, secretary; Francis Paches, Traverse City, treasurer.

W. R. C. OBSERVE 40TH ANNIVERSARY

ENJOYABLE MEETING AT BUG-BEE HOME THURSDAY

Membership Badges Were Presented to Five—Social Afternoon and Evening Was Enjoyed.

What will go down on the records as the most enjoyable gathering ever held by Baxter Relief Corps No. 73, was a meeting last Thursday afternoon and evening at the home of Mrs. May Burbee on State street, in honor of the 40th anniversary of the Corps. It was 40 years ago that the organization was founded and the celebration was a very fitting one.

The afternoon was spent in thing quilts and enjoying a social time. At six o'clock the husbands of members dropped in unexpectedly for dinner, which was served in the dining room of the Bugbee home amid tasteful decorations in red, white and blue colors.

Twenty-two took their places at the dinner. After each was seated, the members were asked to pledge anew their allegiance to the flag, following which the corps president, Mrs. Olive Christensen, made the presentation of membership badges. To Mrs. Catherine Himebaugh, the only living charter member of the corps, a badge with three bars was presented, signifying her 30 years' membership. Mrs. May Burbee, who has been identified with the order 34 years, was given a badge with one bar. Mrs. Adeline Bellinger, Mrs. John Miller and Mrs. Mary Blissett, members for 25 years, received badges signifying that number of years. Mrs. Himebaugh was unable to be present at the meeting and her badge was presented at her home by Mrs. Christensen.

The evening was enjoyably spent at cards, music and other entertainment, and those present were unanimous in their opinion that the anniversary gathering was one of the most successful ever held.

Baxter Relief Corps No. 73 has a membership of 30 in good standing. The Corps has been very active during the winter and have held meetings regularly. Baxter Post No. 119 G. A. R. was disbanded several years ago.

MICHIGAN TRANSIT LINE OPENS MAY 18

Plan Special Rates to Encourage Early Season Travel.

The Michigan Transit company announced last week that it would open the season with its boat runs from Chicago to Charlevoix and the resorts of the upper Lake Michigan region on May 18th. The first ship will leave Chicago that day, making stops from Lindington on north to the Straits of Mackinac.

B. J. Kennedy, passenger traffic manager, announces that his line is making a strong bid for early season travel and has cut its round trip rates to one and one-quarter times the regular one-way fare, effective June 22. Advance bookings indicate another very good season.

STALEY BROTHERS WILL CONDUCT BIGGEST TROUT CONTEST OPENING DAY

Who will win the prize offered by Staley Brothers' Hardware store for the largest average catch of trout and best average catch of brook trout on the opening day of the trout season, May first? Whoever he is—and it may be you who is reading this—will want to get in on this contest.

The contest will be open to every trout fisherman in this region under the age of 110, and prizes will be awarded at the store Saturday evening May 1st, at 8:00 o'clock. The only restrictions are that the trout must be caught with hook and line on the opening day and then brought to the store so they may be placed in the display window for one day.

In addition to the prizes offered for brook trout on the opening day, Staley Brothers are also offering other prizes for the largest large and small mouth black bass, mackinaw and steelhead or rainbow trout. This division of the contest does not end until September 1. For details and list of prizes, see their advertisement elsewhere in this issue.

City Improvement Days

The City Council has designated Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, April 29, 30 and May 1st as City Clean-Up Days. On these days, and until the work is completed, the street department will call for and remove all rubbish, exclusive of leaves, ashes and brush, that is properly deposited in barrels or boxes on the margins of streets or alleys.

All the people are requested to join in this annual clean-up to our boasted reputation as "Charlevoix the Beautiful." ARTHUR BERGEON, Mayor.

STATE FERRIES ARE NOW IN OPERATION

One Ship Makes Trip While Others Are Under Repair.

The state auto ferry City of Mackinaw started on its run between Mackinaw City and St. Ignace last Monday. One of the boats, the St. Ignace, is at Detroit, where it has been undergoing some repairs and changes.

The new boat, the Straits of Mackinac, will not be ready to go into service for some time as the Lunds are erecting an additional deck on the boat, which will increase its carrying capacity by about 20 cars per trip. The cars will be run to this extra deck which covers the fore part of the boat, by elevator.

The Lunds of Cheboygan are supposed to have the repairs and changes completed by June 15, but it may require longer, as they were delayed in getting started because of changes in the plans after they were given the work to do.

The change will make a better looking boat of the new ship.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SOCIETY

Sunday service, 10:45 a. m.
Subject, "Probation After Death."
Wednesday evening service, 7:45 p. m., first Wednesday in the month only.

"Doctrine of Atonement," was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Christian Science churches on Sunday, April 21.

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "Now then we are ambassadors for Christ, as though God did beseech you by us; we pray you in Christ's stead, be ye reconciled to God" (II Cor. 5:20).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "The illuminations of Science give us a sense of the nothingness of error, and they show the spiritual inspiration of Love and Truth to be the only fit preparation for admission to the presence and power of the Most High" (p. 596).

PLAN REGATTA EVENT ON TORCH LAKE SOON

The challenge trophy cups of the Torch Lake Yacht and Country Club are on display in the window of the Bellaire State bank. These fine cups have been donated by the merchants of Bellaire and will be put up as prizes at the sailboat races on Torch Lake, sponsored by the Torch Lake Yacht and Country Club. There are two large cups, one for class C sailboats and one for class E sailboats, and in order to become the owner of either it will be necessary to carry off the highest percentage of the races for three seasons. They will remain with the club until such a time. The two smaller cups will be put up as individual prizes for the season of 1929.—Elk Rapids Progress.

SUSAN CREEK IS ONLY STREAM OPEN TO SPEAR

Unlawful to Spear Suckers in Other Streams of This County.

County Game Warden Henry Fike has asked us to call attention of Charlevoix county citizens to the fact that Susan Creek is the one and only creek open to sucker spearing this spring.

It was only after considerable persuasion by Wardens Denell and Fike that conservation officials at Lansing were induced to lift the ban on this stream. The privilege is being abused at the present time and unless stopped arrests will be made. Other streams in the county are closed as trout streams and spearing is forbidden.

AT THE MOVIES

"The White Sister," the greatest triumph of Lillian Gish's career, will return to the Palace Theatre on Saturday and Sunday next.

"The White Sister," an Inspiration production for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, has been acclaimed one of the most significant films ever made. The story was taken from the famous novel by E. Marion Crawford and screened entirely in Italy and northern Africa.

Rome, Naples, Sorrento, Tivoli, and even Mt. Vesuvius were some of the "locations" used, and the result, according to critics, is the most beautiful production yet made.

Karl Dane and George K. Arthur had to buck up against real opposition when they appeared in the thrilling football scenes for "Brotherly Love," which is coming next Wednesday and Thursday to the Palace Theatre as a new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer comedy feature.

For in the filming of the gridiron sequence, the plucky squads from the University of Southern California made up the rival teams and furnished plenty of action and pep. Playing with these teams of formidable huskies, Dane and Arthur had to keep right on their toes to keep from being flattened out on the field.

In the squads of Trojan players who participated in the filming were such well known players as Captain Jesse Hibbs, Don Williams, Russell Saunders, Tony Stepanovich, Lowry McCaslan, Johnny Ward, Francis Tappan, Bert Heiser, Frank Anthony, John Porter and Leslie Coyle.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

B. G. Mallison, Pastor.

At the morning service at 10:30 o'clock special guests of the church will be the Round Lake Lodge No. 293, of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, together with the Rebekah Lodge, in observance of the one hundred eleventh anniversary of the founding of the Odd Fellows fraternal order. All local or visiting members are cordially invited to be present. A section of the auditorium will be reserved for their use. The musical part of the service, Mrs. A. J. Stelter, director, will be in recognition of national music week, which is widely observed at this time.

6:00 p. m., Endeavor meeting.

2:30 p. m., services at the Ironton church.

EPISCOPAL CHURCH

Services will be held in Christ Episcopal church, corner State and Clinton streets, on the second and fourth Sundays of each month at 7:30 p. m. Rev. Edward S. Doan of Petoskey, will be in charge.

Buy Gas on Its Merits.

Blue Sunoco Gas is a pure petroleum product with a gravity test of 64.2, while some other gas tests as low as 58 and sells for the same price. Sunoco Gas is colored to identify it. In other words, the color is a trade mark. It takes less than one-half ounce of harmless coloring material to color 10,000 gallons. Motorists who have given Sunoco Gas and Oil a fair trial are looking for the blue gas stations. They know they will get more miles per dollar, a quicker start and a clean and smooth running motor. Try Sunoco Gas and Oil and get the most out of your car. Sunoco Oil Station, southwest city limits, on U. S. 31, A. C. Hansen, proprietor.—Adv. 16tf.

DISGUSTING

Good taste dictates that this newspaper refrain from expressing in print its reaction to a recent full page tooth paste advertisement which pictured an attractive young girl smoking a cigarette and which carried copy centering more around the theme of smoking by women than around the good points of this particular dentifrice.

And yet the sponsors assert that a test demonstrated that this type of advertising increased sales of the toothpaste. No statistics given on the jump in cigarette sales to high school girls and in the future mothers of America.

Such advertising disgusts thousands who read it and destroys confidence in advertising generally.

choose a certain vocation when one is very young and then stick to it no matter if the person's inclinations and fitness are entirely different. Youth must choose vocations themselves. Parents should have respect for the child's wishes.

"When choosing a vocation, ask yourself these questions: Is this vocation respected in my community? Is there sufficient financial remuneration? Does this vocation allow room for growth? The last question is: Will this vocation be of benefit to the world."

These are worthwhile questions for every young person to consider.

A teacher driving in city traffic fails to heed a policeman's upraised hand. "Oh, I thought you only wanted to ask me a question," she said when the policeman accosted her.

Annual Social Event Coming Soon

As is usually the case at this time of the year, there is a feeling of eager anticipation over the annual Junior Hop. Each year more and more people gather for the enjoyable evening and a still larger crowd is expected this year.

The custom of the Juniors giving the seniors a dance near the close of the school year has been in practice for many years, but recently the "J" Hop has become the leading social event for the entire community, and guests from other cities have been present in large numbers. HARDWARE—COMPLETE ELECTRIC SERVICE

UNDER THE DOME AT THE STATE CAPITOL.

The senate taxation committee has been "sitting" on the Snow income tax measure since its passage through the house. This and other taxation measures are designed to reduce the amount necessary to be raised by the general property tax of the state.

By a vote of 19 to 12, the upper house killed off Sen. Peter B. Lennon's proposal tax on cigarettes which would have yielded almost $1,000,000 annually to the general fund for the consequent reduction of the property tax.

It thus appeared late in the week that the legislature would be unable to agree on any one special form of taxation which might be calculated to reduce the property tax. Every time anyone moves to tax any commodity or source, objections of sufficient intensity to reduce such intentions are raised with the result that no progress toward a lightening of the property tax burden seems probable.

Inasmuch as the Hartman mill tax is merely an additional burden to the general taxes to be raised from the apparently only source of taxation, general property, the prospect has arisen that the governor might veto this measure, with the dropping of the fondly conceived institutional building program, rather than increase the property tax.

While Senator Lennon lost in his battle for a cigarette tax, he won an important legislative contest when the senate passed his electric chair bill, providing death for those convicted of first degree murder. The measure carries a referendum, by which voters of the state would be asked to decide the matter finally, at the general election of November 1930. The measure was sent to the house.

The bill by which exemptions from forced sale would be raised, introduced by Senator Miner, was passed in the house, slightly amended, after which the senate agreed to accept the changes. Household goods would be exempted to the value of $350 and not $500 as the senate passed the measure. The house left untouched the increase from $250 to $500 valuation exemption for technical or professional tools and instruments.

This week has seen passage in the senate of the administration budget bill for the coming two years. The annual needs of running the state, as indicated by the measure, are about $28,000,000. To this sum, however, must be added the annual mill tax provisions for the University of Michigan and Michigan State College, which total some $6,600,000, bringing up the total state running expenses to more than $34,000,000. As the state annually receives about $13,000,000 from fees and privilege taxes, as the corporations tax, this leaves a total of about $21,000,000 to be raised by direct tax on the general property of the state.

Sen. Albert J. Engel, Lake City, cast the only dissenting vote against the passage of this measure in the senate.

Last week, the eight-tenths of a mill tax bill, proposed by Rep. Gus T. Hartman of Houghton, which would raise the $28,000,000 in four years, struck a snag in the senate finance and appropriations committee after having passed in the house. The measure was amended in committee so as to read "not to exceed eight-tenths of a mill" so that the governor might veto certain of the provisions of the measure without killing the entire bill. Technical objections were raised and the committee voted to suspend consideration of the measure temporarily.

Sportsmen and the general public were attracted by the passage in the house of the 15-round boxing measure from the desk of Rep. William P. Jahnke of Saginaw. The measure, now before the senate for approval, would sanction such bouts when national or international titles are at stake. Championship bouts in Michigan are contemplated by the measure.

Passage in the senate of the election code, as sponsored by Sen. C. H. Stevens of Highland Park, was marked by the care with which the upper house guarded the present method of selecting delegates to county conventions. The measure, which, because of senate committee amendments, would have provided for the election of delegates to these conventions, was amended on the floor so as to retain the caucus system of selection. The committee amendment providing that each ward and township in a county would have at least one delegate, was also cast out by the senate. The most important change, so far as the general public is concerned, is the abandonment of the poll book system of registration, in all cities and townships of 5,000 population or more. A card index plan would be substituted. The house has yet to approve the measure.

Representative Barnley was successful in preventing passage of a measure which would have repealed the present 5-day marriage license law.

Elimination of the resident and license of $1 is contemplated by amendments which were written into the inland fishing bill, the latter half of the week. The measure was extensively amended in the senate committee on fish and game to which the measure had been referred.

Sen. Norman B. Horton's concurrent resolution, which would have petitioned congress to abolish the tariff on Canadian lumber, was tabled in the senate shortly after its introduction, because of the strong opposition of other administration forces, headed by Senator Rushton from Escanaba.

Sen. Calvin A. Campbell's bill providing for the collection of a 3 cent a gallon gasoline tax on all such fuel used in commercial airplanes in this state, was passed in the senate Thursday, as one of the first steps toward the creation of a state-wide string of airports which would be partly financed by the proceeds from this tax. Counties would share in the revenues thus raised, with a limit of $15,000 to any one county.

Investigation of the suspicion that bean jobbers of the state have manipulated the bean market in such fashion as to cause a decline of about $2 in the price of beans, per hundred weight, during the last 60 days, will be started by a legislative committee of three representatives and two senators, as the result of the adoption of the resolution offered in the house by Rep. H. Earl McNitt of Cadillac. The resolution was introduced by Herbert Powell, commissioner of agriculture.

Give these energetic seeds a chance in your garden

ENERGETIC seeds take no more digging, or raking, or caring for in a garden, than seeds that are not so full of the spirit to live. But think of the difference at harvest time! The energetic seeds withstand disease better — grow better and stronger — produce more vigorously and more abundantly.

The Ferry's Seeds that you can buy today at the "store around the corner" are surprisingly energetic. What is more, they are fresh. What is most important, they are purebred! These Ferry's Seeds came from plants that measured up to the Ferry standard in size, color, have handed their inheritance on.

They are pedigreed seeds!—in the strict sense you mean when you say a race-horse is pedigreed. Their parents, grandparents, great grandparents — all were of fine true stock, without an inferior strain.

Doesn't this mean something to your garden? Send for the Ferry's Seed Annual to plan what you want. Remember that Ferry makes thousands of tests a year to determine the truthfulness of every seed you now can spill into your hand from a bright Ferry packet. Garden facts in the Annual make it far more than a catalog. Address D. M. Ferry & Co., Dept. H, Detroit, Michigan.

Give your garden its best possible start with Ferry's purebred Seeds.

LEGION PLANS FIGHT PROGRAM

SERIES GOOD MATCHES HERE DURING SUMMER SEASON.

Match-Maker B. B. Stout Announces Light-Heavyweight Show for Opener Late in June.

According to plans announced early this week, the Charlevoix American Legion post is planning a series of good boxing shows for Northern Michigan fight fans during the summer.

B. B. Stout, of Mt. Pleasant, who did the match-making for the organization last summer, was in Charlevoix several days this week looking over the situation and making advance preparations. He stated the first show, to be held the latter part of June during the state banker's convention, will be a match (Clifton "Tiger" Moore, Saginaw, and Charlie Pointer, Lansing, for the state colored light-heavyweight championship. Another bout has been arranged for Johnnie Bonart, state welter weight champion, in July. His opponent has not been chosen as yet, although "Butch" Otto and Walter Majeske are favored candidates. Other good bills are in preparation.

The local Legion post is desirous in getting in touch with amateur talent in Northern Michigan. The preliminary bouts at all shows will be cauliflower artists from this region. At the shows held last summer the home talent boys got a big hand and were very popular with fans. Fighters from Potoskey, East Jordan, Boyne City, Traverse City, in fact the entire Northern Michigan region, are invited. Clarence McGinnis, adjutant of the local Legion post, would be glad to receive applications at any time. Write your qualifications in care of the Charlevoix Co-operation association, stating age, weight, experience, etc.

PRESENT "ALL OF A SUDDEN PEGGY" AT GYMNASIUM.

Dorothy Withers and Stanley Hammond Play Leading Roles—Play Has Good Plot.

"All-of-a-Sudden Peggy," the annual junior class play, will be staged at the gymnasium the evening of Tuesday, May 7th.

Dorothy Withers plays the leading role of Peggy, the attractive but impulsive Irish girl, while Stanley Hammond takes the role of Jimmy Crackenthorpe, a young man home from Ceylon.

The supporting cast is as follows: Anthony, Lord, Crackenthorpe—Roy Keiderhose.

Jack Menzies—Rex Supernaw.

Parker—Bill Foster.

Lucas—Floyd King.

Lady Crackenthorpe—Doris Solomon.

Millicent Koppel—Eleanor Tumbath.

Mrs. Colquhoun—Bonita Higgins.

Mrs. O'Mara—Dorothy Boardley.

The play is a light three-act comedy and is based on the plot of a girl who does everything "all of a sudden" and finds herself in many compromising and humorous situations. Peggy's motto is "Never full of love with a man before he hath fallen in love with you."

Peggy and her mother, Mrs. O'Mara, are the guests of Lord Crackenthorpe at the Crackenthorpe mansion, much against the wishes of his stern and haughty mother, Lady Crackenthorpe. Lady Crackenthorpe, fearing for the safety of her home and her son among those supposedly designing Irish women, decided to "draw a red herring across the path" in the form of Jimmie, Lord Crackenthorpe's handsome younger brother. In Jimmie's efforts to save his brother, he falls in love with Miss O'Mara himself, which brings about many amusing incidents. We must not forget the doting old bachelor uncle, who likes the girls and is always looking for an extra favor from the family for his services.

The juniors are now working hard in preparation for the play, which has promise of being one of the best home talent productions of the season.

At a special session of court Saturday, Judge Parm C. Gilbert of Traverse City, sentenced Arthur Moe, 60-year-old East Jordan man, to serve from one to five years at Jackson prison for breaking and entering.

Wesley Sexton and Franklin Decker, East Jordan youths, were sentenced to serve from one to five years at Ionia state reformatory on a similar charge. The court recommended 18 months in both cases.

Sexton and Decker figured in an attempted jail break early last week, but were captured by Deputy Charles Marshall before they got outside the city limits.

DODGE SHIPMENTS SHOW AN INCREASE

Height of Buying Season Reflected by Heavy Sales.

The heavy new car buying season, reaching its peak in April, is reflected by the March shipments of passenger cars and trucks of Dodge Brothers, which show an increase over February of 7,755 units or more than 48 per cent. The figures include shipments from all plants in the United States and Canada, and represent substantial gains for the Senior Six, the New Dodge Brothers Six and Dodge Brothers truck and commercial lines over February.

Gains in shipments registered by the Senior Six line for March over the previous month totaled 141 per cent, the New Six made a gain of 40 per cent, while the Dodge trucks and commercial cars reported a gain of 78 per cent.

"Reports reaching us from dealers over the country indicate a record breaking spring buying season," said Charles W. Matheson, general sales manager. "The introduction of the New Dodge Brothers Six models, at prices within the reach of millions of families, has met with unusual public reception, and April shipments are going forward to domestic and foreign markets on a scale that indicates a continual prosperous buying era."

STRAITS BRIDGE SCHEME OFFERED

SUGGEST SURVEY VIA CHEBOYGAN AND ISLAND ROUTE

First Span to Bois Blanc, Next to Round, Then to Mackinac and on to St. Ignace.

Connection of the upper and lower peninsulas of Michigan by a bridge from a point northeast of Cheboygan to St. Ignace via Bois Blanc and Mackinac Island was proposed in the senate last Tuesday night in a bill by Senator Seymour Person of Lansing.

The measure carries no appropriation, but authorizes the state highway department to make a survey for and complete the project.

Under provisions of the bridge span would be about 10 miles long, from a small peninsula in Cheboygan county to Bois Blanc Island to Round Island; thence a bridge to Mackinac Island and another to St. Ignace.

The department would be authorized to utilize convict labor on the project.

Governor Green has on a number of occasions advocated bridging the straits from Mackinaw city to a point south of St. Ignace. State highway engineers have surveyed the route and reported back that not only would the cost be high, but that the ice and water pressure would be almost too much to overcome.

Michigan tourists and travelers pay thousands of dollars annually for the transportation of their cars and themselves across the straits. Up to last season they also experienced considerable delay at times waiting for the car ferries.

Mackinaw City has long been considered the proper southern point for the highway crossing the straits and there is considerable speculation as to whether the traveling public would prefer such a bridge as proposed by Senator Person.

Pleasant to attend the Central State Teachers' College Annual County Normal Day.

LEGION PLANS FIGHT PROGRAM

SERIES GOOD MATCHES HERE DURING SUMMER SEASON.

Match-Maker B. B. Stout Announces Light-Heavyweight Show for Opener Late in June.

According to plans announced early this week, the Charlevoix American Legion post is planning a series of good boxing shows for Northern Michigan fans during the summer.

B. B. Stout of Mt. Pleasant, who did the match-making for the organization last summer, was in Charlevoix several days this week looking over the situation and making advance preparations. He stated the first show, to be held the latter part of June during the state bankers' convention, will be a match Clifton "Tiger" Moore, Saginaw, and Charlie Pointer, Lansing, for the state colored light-heavyweight championship. Another bout has been arranged for Johnnie Bangert, state welter weight champion, in July. His opponent has not been chosen as yet, although "Butch" Otto and Walter Majeske are favored candidates. Other good bills are in preparation.

The local Legion post is desirous of getting in touch with amateur talent in Northern Michigan. The preliminary bouts at all shows will be cauliflower artists from this region. At the shows held last summer the honor talent boys got a big hand and were very popular with fans. Fighters from Petoskey, East Jordan, Boyne City, Traverse City, in fact the entire Northern Michigan region, are invited. Clarence Meggison, adjutant of the local Legion post, would be glad to receive applications at any time. Write your qualifications in care of the Charlevoix Co-operation association, stating age, weight, experience, etc.

PRESENT "ALL OF A SUDDEN PEGGY" AT GYMNASIUM.

Dorothy Withers and Stanley Hammond Play Leading Roles. Play Has Good Plot.

"All-of-a-Sudden Peggy," the annual junior class play, will be staged at the gymnasium the evening of Tuesday, May 7th.

Dorothy Withers plays the leading role of Peggy, the attractive but impulsive Irish girl, while Stanley Hammond takes the role of Jimmy Crackenthorpe, a young man home from Ceylon.

The supporting cast is as follows: Anthony, Lord Crackenthorpe — Roy Keldhouse; Jack Menzies — Rex Supernaw; Parker — Bill Foster; Lucas — Lloyd King; Lady Crackenthorpe — Dora Solomon.

Millicent Kengel — Eleanor Tunnath.

Mrs. Colquhoun — Bonita Higgins.

Mrs. O'Mara — Dorothy Beardsley.

The play is a light three-act comedy and is based on the plot of a girl who does everything "all of a sudden" and finds herself in many compromising and humorous situations. Peggy's motto is, "Never fall in love with a man before he hath fallen in love with you."

Peggy and her mother, Mrs. O'Mara, are the guests of Lord Crackenthorpe at the Crackenthorpe mansion, much against the wishes of his stern and haughty mother, Lady Crackenthorpe. Lady Crackenthorpe, fearing for the safety of her home and her son among these supposedly designing Irish women, decided to "draw a red herring across the path" in the form of Jimmie, Lord Crackenthorpe's handsome younger brother. In Jimmie's efforts to save his brother, he falls in love with Miss O'Mara herself, which brings about many amusing incidents. We must not forget the doting old bachelor uncle, who likes the girls and is always looking for an extra favor from the family for his service.

The juniors are now working hard in preparation for the play, which has proved to be one of the best home talent productions of the season.

EAST JORDAN VIOLATORS GIVEN SENTENCE

Terms at Jackson and Ionia on Breaking and Entering Charge.

At a special session of court Saturday, Judge Farn C. Gilbert of Traverse City, sentenced Arthur Moe, 60-year-old East Jordan man, to serve from one to five years at Jackson prison for breaking and entering.

Wesley Sexton and Franklin Decker, East Jordan youths, were sentenced to serve from one to five years at Ionia state reformatory on a similar charge. The court recommended 18 months in both cases.

Sexton and Decker figured in an attempted jail break early last week, but were captured by Deputy Charles Marshall before they got outside the city limits.

DODGE SHIPMENTS SHOW AN INCREASE

Height of Buying Season Reflected by Heavy Sales.

The heavy new car buying season, reaching its peak in April, is reflected by the March shipments of Dodge Brothers cars and trucks of Dodge Brothers, which show an increase over February of 7,755 units or more than 48 per cent. The figures include shipments from all plants in the United States and Canada, and represent substantial gains for the Senior Six, the New Dodge Brothers Six and Dodge Brothers truck and commercial lines over February.

Gains in shipments registered by the Senior Six line for March over the previous month totaled 141 per cent, the New Six made a gain of 10 per cent, while the Dodge truck and commercial cars reported a gain of 78 per cent.

"Reports reaching us from dealers over the country indicate a record breaking spring buying season," said Charles W. Matheson, general sales manager. "The introduction of the New Dodge Brothers Six models, at prices within the reach of millions of families, has met with unusual public reception, and April shipments are going forward to domestic and foreign markets on a scale that indicates a continual prosperous buying era."

STRAITS BRIDGE SCHEME OFFERED

SUGGEST SURVEY VIA CHEBOYGAN AND ISLAND ROUTE

First Span to St. Ignace, Next to Round, Plan to Mackinac and on to St. Ignace.

Connection of the upper and lower peninsulas of Michigan by a bridge from a point northeast of Cheboygan to St. Ignace via St. Ignace and Mackinac Island was proposed in the senate last Tuesday night in a bill by Senator Seymour Peterson of Lansing.

The idea was carried no appropriation, but authorizes the state highway department to make a survey for and complete the project.

Under provisions of the bill a span would be built from a small peninsula in Cheboygan county to Bois Blanc Island, to Round Island, thence a bridge to Mackinac Island and another to St. Ignace.

The department would be authorized to utilize convict labor on the project.

Governor Green has on a number of occasions advocated bridging the straits from Mackinac City to a point south of St. Ignace. State highway engineers have surveyed the route and reported back that not only would the cost be high, but that the ice and water pressure would be almost too much to overcome.

Michigan tourists and travelers pay thousands of dollars annually for the transportation of their cars and themselves across the straits. Up to last season they also experienced considerable delay at times waiting for the car ferries.

Mackinaw City has long been considered the proper southern point for the highway crossing the straits and there is considerable speculation as to whether the traveling public would prefer such a bridge as transportation method.

SCHOOL BAND TO STATE CONTESTS

LEFT THIS MORNING BY MOTOR FOR LANSING.

School Patrons and Board of Education Made Possible Local School's Participation.

Charlevoix's school band, winners in class C at the Traverse City band tournament April 11th, will compete at the state tournament at Lansing this week, according to an announcement made Wednesday by Supt. M. Otterlin of the public schools.

The members left this morning (Thursday) at 8:15 by motor and expect to return Saturday. Patrons of the school were solicited to furnish automobiles to take the band to Lansing, and arrangements were made to meet partial expenses of the doings. The school board voted funds to make up any other deficit, providing the band members stood the expense of their meals. A number of school patrons are chaperoning the girl members of the band.

Altogether twelve car loads are making the trip, eight with the band and four with students of the Charlevoix county normal, who go to Mt. Pleasant to attend the Central State Teachers' College Annual County Normal Day.

At this time a report of the band uniform fund would be of great interest to Charlevoix citizens who have so generously patronized benefit affairs to raise funds. The following report shows the total raised and the financial status of the fund at the present time:

SOUSA'S FAMOUS BAND GIVES RADIO PROGRAM

Appearance May 6 Sponsored By Chevrolet Motor Company.

John Phillip Sousa and his world famous band will be heard over the radio for the first time on Monday evening, May 6, in an hour broadcast, sponsored by Chevrolet Motor company to signalize the achievement of placing on the road over a half million new six cylinder cars in four months time.

The radio debut of the famous "March King" will come through the National Broadcasting company coast to coast chain during the regular General Motors "Family Hour," starting at 8:30 p. m.

According to W. L. Zirbes, local Chevrolet dealer, Chevrolet was particularly fortunate in seeking an attraction to emphasize its latest record to secure the first performance of this famous director-composer who has been an American institution for the past two decades.

"Naturally, we Chevrolet dealers are proud that our company has been instrumental in introducing Sousa and his band to the microphone," Mr. Zirbes said. "We are equally proud, however, of the occasion marked by Sousa's first broadcast. By putting on the road over 500,000 new Chevrolet sales since January 1, we have established a record never before duplicated by any dealer organization distributing six cylinder automobiles. In fact, no other dealer organization in the history of six cylinder manufacture has ever equaled this record in the course of a full year."

QUAKER OATS

UNDER THE DOME AT THE STATE CAPITOL.

Prospects of adjournment of Michigan's 55th legislature on March 4, went glimmering as the legislature entered its 18th week of life, with serious troubles developing over the most important measures which any session has ever to consider—finance. Adjournment by May 10 was considered more probable in view of delays which manifested themselves last week.

While the state tax on property is the smallest tax that is paid by most landowners, most political attention is directed toward this tax rate, both by the taxpayers of the state, and by each administration. Gov. Fred W. Green is going to make some heroic efforts to keep the 1929 and 1930 general property tax rate at least as low as that of 1928, despite his ambitious program of rehabilitation for long neglected state institutions.

The biggest tax, in many parts of this state, is the school tax. This is not levied by the state, of course, but by the local governments, but the state lawmakers are sure to extend aid toward the reduction of this burdensome local tax by the enactment of two bills, one to authorize the spending of state money, the other of which will provide the money to be thus spent. Thus, those who may look critically at the state property tax, should bear in mind that the state, this year, is putting its shoulder to the wheel of the heaviest local tax, the school tax.

The state budget, which would impose a general property tax of about $23,000,000 annually for the next two years, was passed in the house Thursday afternoon, and sent back to the senate for approval, for the house had changed the provisions of the measure from the form in which it had passed the upper house. The senate had approved the measure calling for a tax levy of $21,000,000 annually.

The added $2,000,000 annually, which the house put into the measure, was at the insistence of the administration. A statement from the governor accompanied his request to the lower house. Part of the explanation for the need of the additional money was the fact that the senate had lopped off $1,000,000 annually, which had been originally included in the budget as a contingent fund for the state administrative board for emergency payments. The measure will be one of the points of conflict and comment in the senate when approval of house amendments is sought. Sen. Albert J. Engel, Lake City, is expected to furnish dynamite for the party, but ultimate approval is anticipated.

In the meantime, the measure introduced by Rep. Gus T. Hartman, Houghton, providing for the raising of $28,000,000 during the next four years to be spent during the next ten years on Governor Green's institutional building program, was locked in the senate committee on finance and appropriations, where lack of agreement was evident. This measure has been amended so that the mill tax levy to produce the desired sum would be "not greater than eight-tenths of a mill" on the dollar. This will allow the governor to veto certain of the building appropriations carried in the measure, without periling the whole measure. The governor, can, of course, veto parts of the state budget or general appropriation bill.

Plans whereby the state will aid the so-called poorer school districts were perfected with the co-operation of the governor Thursday afternoon, when it was made certain that the Turner school fund bill and the Lennon cigarette tax bill would both be signed by the governor if placed on his desk at about the same time.

The connection between the Turner measure and the Lennon measure is this: The school tax measure, introduced by Sen. William F. Turner of Morley, is the bill which calls for an appropriation of $2,000,000 annually, to be disbursed to those school districts where the school tax is in excess of 10 mills. The cigarette tax measure, sponsored by Sen. P. B. Lennon, Genesee county, would impose a tax of $1 per 1000 on cigarettes sold in this state. This tax would raise about $3,800,000 annually, it is estimated. This would mean that after the Turner school tax relief money is used, and after expenses of collecting the cigarette tax were paid, that there would still be a surplus, which would be devoted to institutional buildings, according to the plans of Senator Lennon.

If the Lennon bill were not passed, and the Turner bill became law, this would mean that an extra $2,000,000 would be imposed on the general property tax of the state. Governor Green stated, formally, Thursday, that he would sign the Turner bill if some "revenue producing measure" were placed on his desk also. The Turner bill, already passed both houses, was recalled Thursday, for an amendment by which the school tax could not be reduced to lower than 10 mills in any district, by the action of the Turner measure. This would make possible the application of this money to many more school districts of the state than at first contemplated. There are more than 6,000 school districts in Michigan. The Lennon bill, already passed in the senate, was in order for consideration in the house, Friday.

A demand for the equalization of the tax burden between farm and urban property, was placed before the house of representatives last Wednesday by Rep. George Watson of Capne, house leader. This res-scene of the crime could be blocked at once.

Attention of the senate was directed to agricultural matters Thursday, when that body refused to concur with the house on certain amendments to Sen. Norman B. Horton's "Pure milk" bill. The measure, passed in the senate, carried virtual codification of all existing laws bearing on the matter of handling of milk by any individual or agency. The senate provided that any method of pasteurization which is approved by the commissioner of agriculture, would be satisfactory under the law. The house, however, removed that amendment and specified one certain method of pasteurization. Senator Horton asked that the senate not concur, and the matter will have to be ironed out in conference.

EDITORIALS

THE NEW CRIMINAL CODE

Michigan now has a revised criminal code. It will soon replace on the statute books the original code adopted two years ago. It is the belief of its framers that it will more nearly represent the will of the people in combating crime.

Under the new code life terms for four misdemeanors will not be possible. That will remove many objections to the original code, because of its absurdity in dealing with certain of our criminal classes. It took us two years to find out that only the driftwood was being caught and sent to prison. Ridicule will be replaced with respect.

We don't need life sentence for four violations of the prohibition law. The wardens of our penal institutions will tell you that this class of offenders is falling off. Since Fred Green became governor only two bootleggers have been released before the end of their minimum sentence, and in each case the judge that passed sentence joined in the appeal for executive clemency.

If we make bootleggers serve out each individual sentence, by the time they reach the end of their fourth sentence justice will certainly be appeased. Keeping them in prison will solve this problem, securing better enforcement cooperation on the part of the general public. When we deal with any question in a sensible manner we make it easier of solution.

HANDY, TRIGGER FINGERS

A rum runner killed a prohibition officer near Port Huron a few days ago. Within 48 hours he had been captured, confessed, and was on his way to serve a life sentence at Marquette.

Such prompt application of the law is bound to win the respect of every decent citizen. It will also act as a healthful deterrent to those who are altogether too handy with their trigger finger when apprehended red-handed in the commission of a crime. When they learn that detection is certain, punishment swift and severe, they will be more hesitant about shooting their way out of a jam.

Zealots hurt any cause. If you would have respect for the law, the law must be administered with respect to the rights of others. On the other side of the picture we find many enforcement officers who do not hesitate to invade human rights.

They enter private homes without search warrants, shoot to kill on the slightest provocation, and in other ways drag law enforcement into disrepute. The murder of an innocent woman in Illinois was a glaring example. Nor has Michigan been free from this kind of law application. Two years ago an innocent mail carrier was killed near Monroe, and a on the highways in some county by a deputy sheriff, despite the repeated warning of his chief not to shoot. And there has been many other instances of this nature.

In dealing with crime we seem to be running around in circles. But one thing is certain, we cannot hope to have the right kind of enforcement if we do not have the active support of the average citizen. We can gain and retain their support only when we apply the law vigorously, sanely, without fear or favor, and insist on getting criminals in prison once they keep them there. In the meantime we must not forget that we injure the cause of society when law is applied sans judgment, or the sacred precincts of citizenship is invaded without due process.

a view into the white north, Brock gasped in surprise: "By the great horned owl, there she is! This must be the divide!"

Gaspard turned with a nod. "Ca-cou water, for sure. D's ees de divide," he said. "Let we follow de out-let down stream, we walk into de camp of M'sieu! Roulleard eh?"

Taking his glasses from the pack, Brock searched the glittering shell of the big lake which, molded by recent wind, rippled from the north in endless drifts, like a white sea.

"I can't make out any signs of a trail down there," he said and headed the hounds to Gaspard.

For a space the halfbreed studied the shores of the lake, then Brock saw the faint muscles of the mouth of his friend relax in a gesture of surprise.

"What is it?"

"Here ees a trail down de east shore 'bout tree mile. Let ees long thin line—a sled trail!"

Then Brock looked through the glasses. "Yes, you're right! I see it now, by that long point of black spruce," he agreed. "I'll bet they've got a line of fox traps along that shore. What shall we do?"

"We work down dat shore back een de bush."

Both boys drew their rifles, slung on their packs, from the skin cases which protected them from the snow, and carried them in their fattened hands. They had left no man's land and reached the enemy's country. Any one crossing their trail would follow them up. Their lives now might hang on the slightest mistake.

So, on reaching the black timber of the eastern shore of the lake, they separated and traveled abroad, a hundred yards apart; near enough to support each other, immediately, in case of trouble, but too far apart to be caught in the same mishap. The warning which should mean danger or a discovery of importance, was to let the "cuckoo" of the spruce.

mark of the horned owl. So, with cocked rifles in the hollow of the left arm, ready for swift movement, they roved in a circle, the two stoically through the cover of the spruce down the lake shore, stopping agreement, every quarter mile, to den.

Where the point they had seen from ridge began to make out into the e. Brock, a little in the rear, owing the thickness of the scrub spruce, rd a faint "cuckoo!"

"He sees something!" muttered the red boy, turning and making his noiselessly toward the lake shore, ere, waiting in a clump of small trees, he found Gaspard.

"Wh!" said the halfbreed, by feet away, a well-beaten trail, which a sled and dogs had re-passed, as evidenced by the snow of the last light fall of snow, the lake.

"You hunting east of here for what'll we do?" whispered on hard, today."

not wait here, and pick him up. Brock, with eyes of Gaspard twinkled, he pass here dis morning."

"I pointed to a young spruce pointing over the sled path. "See dat twig! Let ees pushed and broke toward de lak! Let he pass east, de lak! tan, he push de older way."

"By golly, you're right!" muttered the white boy, convinced by his partner's woodcraft. "He had to go that way, and it had to be this morning, for it snowed on both here last night, and the sled's picked down the snow."

So, through the morning, the scouts worked down the lake. At noon, through an opening in the timber, Gaspard looked long at the north, then said with a nod of his head, "Snow—soon!"

In an hour the northwesterly was the color of lead, but there was no wind. Suddenly from the lake shore Brock heard the low squeal of the horned owl.

Banner!

Swiftly on noiseless shoes he moved out of the shadows to the rim of the timber, eyes and ears strained, right mitten swinging from his neck by its thong, right hand thrusting the trigger of his cocked rifle.

A low "cuckoo!" drifted to his ears from a clump of scrub. "Ah, he's not in trouble," thought the boy. In the scrub he joined Gaspard.

"Look!"

Following the pointing mitten, Brock saw, miles away, a dark spot on the lake trail.

"Dog-team!" said Gaspard.

From the cover of the shadowy spruce, the two watched the spot far down the white-surfaced lake.

"He's coming this way, Gaspard!" said Brock, holding his glasses. "He's passed that point?"

"Yes, he travel uplak! We wait, he veel turn into de timber, soon."

Two miles away, the dog-team moved at a walk toward the watchers in the spruce. Then, like a curtain, the snow swept up the lake, wiping the approaching team from sight as water swallows a land stone.

"By gull! Den men ees crazee!"

he get out on up from de lak! been dere! We lose been eet we don't."

In the pitch-like gloom which now blanketed the lake, the dog team might pass them in silence. It was the only way. So, walking out over this packed surface until they found the trail by the feel of their shoes, they cautiously started down the lake in the muck, separated by a hundred feet, the trail between them.

For a half hour, the moving ambush stole through the softly falling snow, for there was no wind. Then, meeting, held a council of war.

"He's gone ashore or we'd have struck him," whispered Brock to the blurred shape of Gaspard, whom he could touch, but see only because of his sheathing of snow.

"Yes, he went ashore when de snow come. We keep on and find hees trail."

Slowly, in single file, the hunters continued on the shore side of the lake trail. They, after a short space, Brock stumbled into the crunched figure of his partner.

"Let ees here," said Gaspard.

With his mittens Brock felt the goings of the swing toboggan sled in the wind pecked snow, where it turned shoreward.

"We'll see his fire before the dogs smell us; then we'd better rush him before he has a chance to get at his gun."

"No!" came the sharp objection. "Een dis snow de huskie not smell us until we are ver' close. We have a look, first, upwind."

They were passing through some young fir when Gaspard suddenly seized Brock's arm.

"De fire! By gull! Good thing we miss den! Here are four Cree at dat fire—maybe more."

"Four Indians? By the great horned owl!" gasped Brock, craning his head for a clear view of the distant camp.

"Ah-hah!" muttered the disgruntled Gaspard. "Dat ees why he travel so late on de lak! He head for dat camp."

For a space Gaspard was silent; then he thrust his face close to the crusted hood of his friend.

"We go close to den; we can shoot all but one and his' men will us," he said, late in his tones. "Some day—day shoot us."

The mighty grip of Brock's steel fingers' shut on Gaspard's arm. "I'll sneak up with you and have a look—but I won't stand shooting them. I can't do it—even if they're hunting us."

"But dey head my father, lak dis—at hees fire!" protested the other, desperately.

"Partner, we're crazy to do it, with those dogs there, but I'll go in, closer with you," replied Brock. "I'm with you, heart and soul—but no shooting unless they catch us!"

"All right!" And a sigh of bitterness escaped Gaspard as, with rifle crooked in his left arm, and his knife loose in its sheath, he started to approach the campfire.

Nodding, the boys worked their way into what slight movement of air there was, to avoid betraying the sleeping dogs. And they knew as well, that the falling snow would greatly dilute their scent.

At last, side by side, they crouched in the thick timber, with a good view of the fire. The brush windbreak, roofed with snow, faced them. One man was cooking the supper while the others occasionally rose from where they sat on the bed of spruce boughs to put their drying foot-boards and double socks, hung on sticks near the fire.

The keen face of Gaspard relaxed in a smile; his eyes glittered as he whispered into Brock's ear: "Eef de dog smell us now, onlee de cook can travel—de others dry dere footgear."

"Eef de dog smell us now, onlee de Cook Can Travel—de Dders Dry Dere Footgear."

But, notwithstanding, two dog-eyes were lined through the muck on the figures in the yellow glow. Two boys, muscles tense, nerves strung like bow-strings, as they watched, listened with alert ears for the challenge of a suspicious husky awakened from his sleep by the warning from his nostrils of a strange scent in the air.

From somewhere outside the radius of the bright a low growl, followed by the warning challenge of an awakened husky, split the gloom of the spruce.

"Don't shoot—wait!" came the guttural command beside Brock's ear.

Swiftly, the awakened dogs of the team, filled the forest with their voices.

the fire, yowled no double dash of exploding rifles.

"Eef de dog come alone," muttered Gaspard to the tense muscled Brock, crouched, with elbow on knee, to steady his aim. "we talk den yid de kuffe. At de fire de Cree are blind."

Reaching behind him, Brock moved the sheath of his knife nearer his right side, his heart pounding under the strain of inaction. He could hear the dogs thrashing around in the brush near the fire, snarling at the unknown enemy, yelping their fears, but not getting the direction of the scent.

Still the Indians went on with the drying of their clothes, occasionally calling to the dogs to keep quiet.

"De dog are sure to leave de fire—for wulf, onlee de one smell us. He ees aware to come."

"We'd better get out," whispered Brock. "I won't fire into that camp unless I have to."

An Indian rose and stood between the fire and those who watched, his figure silhouetted as it cut from black paper. He called to the dogs:

"Go on, you! Catch de wulf!"

Encouraged, the huskies beat about the camp, plunging through the deep snow into the wall of blackness, shortly to return.

"They must suspect we stay. We got' commended Gaspard, his rifle thud on the black slate at the fire, his nervous forefinger playing with the trigger. Notless as the muffled thud of the snowy owl was the retreat of the shadlers to the lake shore.

"The dog no good—some of wolf," grunted Gaspard with contempt. "Flash and Yellow Eye hunt us out quick!"

"Gee, but that was a tough wait!" exploded Brock. "All I could do not to fire when that husky snuffed us—but I didn't want to shoot, it's too cold blooded."

"We had him for sure!" grunted the halfbreed. "We could get him all before they left the light."

There was no wind, but a few inches of snow, and the night had cold, so the boys kept on up the lake. Watching the trail which they followed by the foot of their feet, they continued until it swung in to the shore where they had first seen it. Slipping into the shoes they carried on their backs, they continued for a mile, then went ashore into the thick timber where, with the greatest difficulty, in the gloom, they gathered and eloped enough wood for a small fire, ate raw meat, and slept.

CHAPTER XI

The Spruce Speaks

"Wake up, don't you sleep all day?" From the one limited and chilly patches of growing boy buried in the rabbit skin robes by the fire in the snow hole, came groans of protest.

"Go on! You're sleeping—wake up!" grunted the boy on the spruce bench by the fire, which in the dim light of the morning, the stars shined before the hole of the cave.

As on the dark shape, spruce, the boy on the small fire on which he had a small fire, changed the fire to a heap with spluttering carbon sticks on his right hand while, with his left, he reached back and pulled at the robe of the one who protested.

"We got to leave here, Brock! The snow is too deep, the fire is too small, and our food is nearly gone. We got to go with it, and a few more snow, and we're dead!"

"Chuckle! You're right, as now!" With a snarl, he pulled at the robe, rolled from his warm robe, "So you're awake, eh? By the way, they'll be a-come us—unless they're too scared to what they see. Kind of sorry 'em to hear they were watched last night, eh?"

"Come and get it," announced the cook.

"We sure got two good reasons for traveling today," said Brock, stretching. "Gee, but that was hair-raising last night! But why we didn't rush that camp, eh?"

Washing his hands in snow, he hurriedly attached a ribbon snail, which he washed down with great jets of hot tea.

"I think they are too scared to follow—today, but we travel hard just the same," said Gaspard.

"You bet, we've got to, to hit camp day after tomorrow. I hate to think of starving on rabbit the last day out!" mumbled Brock through a mouthful of meat. "We heard about southwest to hit the outlet—don't we? This lake must be full forty miles north of the Big Yellow-Leg."

"Not so far, but we see plenty of signs today, I think."

"Well, we played in luck last night. Suppose we'd been on that lake and brock. "Great glory, Gaspard, that'll run 'em out of the country!"

"When they see dat, dey head for de coast, eh?" laughed the crafty halfbreed. "I gave dem good scare when dey hear Black Jack res on dere trail wid five-dog team."

"That's a great idea! Unless the wind rises they'll know that some body's walked the lake trail, last night, in that snow. Now, instead of following us up today, they'll likely pull trapping and carry the news to that white man I got my hooks into, and the big boss at their main camp. You're a genius, old pard. Put 'er there!"

The grinning friends shook each others' inflated hands. Gaspard's stratagem was a flash of genius, for five sled teams meant at least ten men on the trail of the free-traders' Cree servants. The news that five sled teams of provincial police were in the country should cause a speedy stampede north if they didn't smell a rat in this bold message left on a traveled trap-line trail.

"Of course," said Brock. "They may spot this for just what it is—a bluff." Gaspard nodded in agreement. "They think we're ver' strange for sure, but dey won't have worry just de same, I know dem Cree."

Gaspard's Indian blood enabled him to read only too well the mercurial and superstitious mental make-up of his mother's people to know their weaknesses and value their sturdier qualities.

"Well, let's go, we've got a long day ahead," said Brock. "I'll take a last squint at the lake trail to see if they've started this way." Returning from the shore, he said, as he slipped his foot into the thong of his shoes and followed Gaspard into the southeast. "No sign of 'em yet, they're a day crew."

Through quiet February days the two snowshoed through forest and scrub, over ridges and around ponds, sometimes, for miles, following the convenient thoroughfares of deer-tracks and streams, but they avoided crossing all lakes and bays. These they skirted, for on open lake or muskeg they could be seen for great distances. But, to their surprise, they crossed no country crissed by their enemies. Evidently the mysterious disappearance of the trappers of "Red Beard" a whole season ahead of the Yellow-Leg Lake watershed. Nevertheless, not for an instant did the cunning Gaspard relax his vigilance as the two traveled northeast in the direction of the outlet of the Big Lake. Frequently through the day, while Brock kept on the halfbreed hurried him off in a camp on spruce or fir to watch the lake trail. If there was a boat and showed enough that in the camp they had seen at the lake, the boys would be followed. Gaspard took no chances.

But late in the afternoon, far south of the lake between Canby and Yellow-Leg water, when the two weary snowshoers were beginning to look for a good campsite, and their clamoring, as always, they occupied their thoughts, a muffled yell to Brock's left, and they stopped with raised arms. Hurrying to his friend, Brock's eyes swept the snow in front of them for the cause of the alarm.

"Look!"

At Gaspard's foot on a south trail filled with snow, how low plainly displayed a human foot.

"They just use us in some day—since de last snow."

"You mean the one before last night's fall?"

"All I can see," grunted Gaspard. "We follow a piece."

"They had traveled a mile, single file, when the hunter who was ahead stopped and pointed."

His yards away was a snow-covered, rough, heavily-trampled campsite, a few feet from Brock and Brock built at the far end of their own trip-lines. As the boys reached and cautiously examined the abandoned camp covered with a foot of new snow, with an exclamation Gaspard suddenly yelled up the trail and stood looking at a blood spruce.

"Listen to dis!" he called to Brock who was scraping away the snow from the fire-hole of the camp. Brock quickly joined his friend, who read:

"Antoine met some back, I wait ten sleeps. I go to Bog's canyon."

Keeltle Jacques.

"Ah-hah!" grunted the halfbreed with a shake of the head. "I see 'em go."

And blundered into that camp full of Cree, eh? Well, they're hunting to gether that way, eh?"

Gaspard's eyes, dark features lit with a smile. "Well, I think dey have fear of 'Black Jack' Desautels and Effienne Leveillé. You scared dem hard when you tell dem dat story. We goved dem more to talk about 'em dis morn'."

"What if you do?"

"Hurry up, I show you."

As the eastern horizon lit with pearl and amber and rose, from a thicket of willows where the lake trail cut the shore, Brock watched. Behind him in the forest Gaspard stood beside a spruce from which the lower branches had been lopped, working with a pointed, charred stick at a white blaze slashed with his trapping ax. At his side in the snow crunched a little fire of dry spruce.

Shortly, Gaspard called, and Brock, who, from his position, commanded a view of the lake trail for miles, joined his partner.

"Let me see, now, if I can read it," said Brock, as he puzzled over the syllabic character writing of the Cree, burned black into the white tablet of the peeled spruce.

"Cree camp—four men—below here—Black Jack—five sleds—at little pond. Effienne," slowly translated legs and feet of an imprisoned "snowy" which a plundering wolverine had calmly torn to pieces. For ten days this ransacking baffled the ingenuity of Gaspard and Brock. Time and again, with an uncanny shrewdness, he avoided the traps buried in the snow beside baited fisher cabins and lynx sets; but in the end he fell victim to his own cunning. For, one night, in the act of setting down the rear of a fisher cabin, to avoid passing the trap set in front of the bait, he stepped into the circle of traps buried in the snow by the boys in an indication of this very maneuver.

It was a veritable demon of fury and savage desperation that Brock and Flash found waiting them, one quiet morning. As he watched their approach, the evil, red eyes of the trapped caribou glared with hate. Crouched in the snow, his rust-brown hair stiff on neck and back, his powerful forelegs, armed with claw-like claws, which would rip a wolf's pelt into ribbons, ready to strike, the Injun devil lifted his hairy fist from the most feared teeth in the forest in a warning snarl.

With a roar, Flash started to the battle with the strange foe who challenged him, but with a quick movement, Brock had him by the collar.

"No, you don't, old boy!" cried Brock, holding his enraged husky, harnessed to the sled, as the crouched wolverine, anchored to the caught elg of the trap, snarled his defiance. His thick forelegs tensed for the double slash of knife-like claws which awaited Flash's lungs. "We need you whole and sound, for March, old partner! You're not going to get sliced up, getting that fellow. You might kill him in the end—break his neck; but he'd hurt you for sure, before he died."

So, taming the maddened puppy, but for battle, to a spruce, Brock advanced cautiously, with his ax, the head reversed.

Both somewhat on the lines of a small bear, but more rarely, the wolverine, pointed for point, is a side strong, at least in the north. To this he adds a lightning fury which commands the respect of all, beasts or humans, who meet him. The killing qualities of the great insect, and the savage strength of the Injun, might overcome the flying blades of the caribou's foot, but Brock had no intention of seeing the state-ear name of his puppy smeared with slashes which, if they did not kill, would cripple him for weeks. In most hunter fashion he would stun and kill the wolverine with the ax.

Cautiously, with ax poised for a quick blow, he moved in on his shoes, measuring with his eyes the length of the chain on the snow when stretched by the loop of the trapped beast. But the caribou did not spring and thus open him up to the blow from the waiting ax. Instead, his snout, rising in eyes followed the sliding blow, he ready springing to face his enemy.

Again and again Brock tried to lure the head of the wolverine to the end of the chain, but the force of the pull, with the wolverine's instinctive wolverine, refused to spring.

Finally, in a failure, Brock swung his ax, a foot from the sled and, with a crash, of injuring the sled, stood back, when he had an idea.

"By golly! I'll pose him into it with a stick!" he cried, with a doubtful look at the pole of a flash springing to free himself from the rawhide which was, from a neighboring tree, so, cutting and trimming a sapling, Brock again approached the fifty pounds of living dynamite. But watched him, and lowered, lips curled in a red snarl.

With a cough of rage the caribou crossed the extended pole in his jaws, and with a twist of his head tore away a foot of the spruce stick.

"Mud, eh?" teased Brock, thrilled with the excitement of baiting the most savage denizen of the forest. "I'll make you jump yet!" And the boy fiercely prodded the hairy body.

With a scream the infuriated beast stiffened and spring into the air. Dropping his pole, Brock leaped back he yond the radius of the chain. As he did, the tail chain jerked the wolverine to the sled. Stepping in, Brock swung the lifted ax, but again the beast left the sled, and ax and hairy body met in mid air with a thud.

As the ax struck again, the caribou weel not come back—ma f'ren. Antoine put down that de bear-trap."

"By the horned owl, Gaspard!" exploded Brock. "They must have made this camp to hunt us from. He didn't stop to hunt for his partner—this little Jacques—but made tracks. Not much like a partridge I've got." And Brock slapped the why Gaspard affectionately on the back.

Two days later they were back in their camp south of Big Yellow-Leg. Through February, or Mikiswipidim, the Cree Moon of the Eagle, there was little rest for the two trappers, who were daily adding to their "fur-puck" in the timber the snow had settled and in the barrens, the wind had hammered and packed it, greatly improving the sledding. Every two days now, Brock made the circuit of his lines with Flash. The fur was not so prime as in the early winter, but, under the winds and blizzards of January, foxes and lynx were traveling more, fisher and martens extending their ranges, and the otter seeking new fishing water which he entered at the broken ice of falls and rapids.

Often they found their traps sprung and bait eaten by thieving squirrel and whiskey-jack. Sometimes the tails of the horned or snowy owl marked the snow around a plied trap; and once a lynx trap held the

Narrow Roads Dangerous

"Traveling along a narrow road, even in broad daylight, is a dangerous proposition in some cases. It amounts to a nuisance," an official of the Automobile club of Maryland asserts.

"Motorists are permitted legally to drive at a speed of 35 miles an hour in the open country. Sometimes it is necessary to slow down considerably, and even stop, when another motorist has parked on one of the narrower concrete highways."

Traffic Congestion

Congestion of traffic is not prevalent on the rural highways. Most frequently it occurs at the gateways leading into the cities. The arterial highways leading into large cities frequently pass through neighboring satellite centers. The traffic is more than local, yet local control remains. There is a gap here which must be bridged. Arterial highways in these metropolitan areas must be built, but this can be accomplished only through united action of the authorities.

KONJOLA BLAZES ON MAMMOTH SIGN ON BOARDWALK OF ATLANTIC CITY!

The Mosby Medicine Company, Cincinnati, Ohio, producers of Konjola proprietaries which are advertised in more than 200 daily papers in the United States, has just completed, in Atlantic City, the largest Neon tube and electric bulb sign in the world, at a cost of $117,000. This huge sign, which is estimated that 20,000,000 visitors to the world-famous boardwalk will see each season, is 31 feet high and 84 feet long.

This striking sign, mounted on the Central pier, is visible for blocks down the walk and beach. It contains over five miles of wire, 675 feet of luminous tubing and 3,319 light sockets, and is regarded as a masterpiece both for its beauty and its attraction value.

"This splendid sign," says G. H. Mosby, president of the Mosby Medicine Company, "is, after all, a tribute to the power of newspaper advertising. Without the amazing results secured by liberal use of the daily press, as an advertising medium, such an investment in a sign would be totally out of the question. This sign, it is figured, will tie up the newspaper advertising in a thousand cities and towns. The tourist or vacationist from Florida, Iowa, New York, and a score of other states visiting Atlantic City, will feel like he is meeting an old friend when he sees 'KONJOLA' flash before his eyes, for Konjola is rapidly becoming a household word throughout the land."

NINE YEARS OF SUFFERING ENDED BY NEW KONJOLA

Grateful Man Had Been a Victim of Rheumatism and Stomach Trouble Until New Medicine Relieved Him.

MR. JOE BOCHINSKI

"Konjola surely is a wonderful medicine," said Mr. Joe Bochinski, 130 Monroe street, Saginaw. "For nine years I suffered vainly for relief from stomach trouble and rheumatism. My food did not digest, gas formed and my stomach bloated. Suffering followed every meal. Rheumatism settled in my legs, hips, arms and shoulders. My poor condition worried me."

"What a pleasant surprise Konjola gave me. My stomach was corrected, food digested perfectly, and gas and bloating have vanished. Rheumatism has been relieved wonderfully, and I feel immeasurably better all over. I certainly owe a debt of gratitude to Konjola."

Konjola is sold in Charlevoix at F. J. Fessenden's drug store, and by the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section. was forced to withdraw from school for a year, this making it necessary for her to carry six subjects at the present time. Although Zoe will not be able to graduate this year, she will keep on with her work next year, and at the end of that time, no doubt, she will receive her long worked for and looked for diploma.

English News.

The second year English classes are studying Emerson's "Friendship." Although there is nothing humorous about Emerson's works, they are true to life. He had a deep understanding of human nature and his works grow in interest as you read more of them. Nearly every sentence might be used as a quotation to apply to nature.

Latin News.

The second year Latin class has finished the second book of Caesar's campaign against the Belgians. We have now started in the fourth book, which has to do with his campaign in Britain.

County Normal News.

The County Normal class will leave Thursday for Mr. Pleasant where they will be the guests of the Central State Teachers' College. Thursday afternoon will be devoted to visiting college classes, rural training schools and the Indian school. Thursday evening a program will be given by the Physical Education department. On Friday morning all guests will be given the privilege of hearing a lecture by Dr. Hosie.

At 5:30 p. m. all the county normal classes present will be entertained at a banquet given by the college. This is the first time for a number Normal will be represented at Central State Teachers' College Annual County Normal Day. A good time is anticipated, since this will be a gathering of about 650 county normal students from various counties of the state.

KEEPING HIS PROMISE

The eastern newspapers and politicians who profess to be surprised by President Hoover's assertion that his long-awaited prohibition investigation would be limited to ways and means of making enforcement more right, instead of suggesting modifications in the dry law, are doing Mr. Hoover scant justice.

Through the campaign Mr. Hoover made his position just about as clear as words could make it. He said that the whole situation needed study, but that the law itself was a good law and that he supported it.

To suppose now, as some of these people seem to be supposing, that Mr. Hoover planned to suggest modifications in the law once he was elected—that he was not quite as dry as he was, in fact—is to accuse him of double dealing.

His announcement that the law will be preserved and enforced is absolutely in keeping with his campaign declarations.

PLANS ARE MADE FOR FOREST WEEK

LOCAL SCHOOL PLAN APPROPRIATE OBSERVANCE.

Department of Public Instruction, Conservation Department and State Behind Project.

Plans for a state wide observance of Forest week and Arbor day are being made by the Michigan Forest Week Committee working in cooperation with the state department of public instruction and the state conservation department. Governor Green has named Arthur W. Stace of Ann Arbor as chairman of the committee and Shirl W. Allen, extension director of the School of Conservation and Forestry of the University of Michigan, as secretary.

Suggested program for the observance of Forest week and Arbor day in the schools of Michigan will be sent out at once by the state department of public instruction to superintendents, principals and county school commissioners. Luncheon clubs, women's clubs, sportsmen's organizations and other public spirited bodies are urged to list reforestation and conservation talks on their programs during the week. The committee will assist in securing speakers for such occasions.

The committee points out that Michigan has a vital and immediate interest in reforestation. More than one-third of the state is cut-over land which is suitable only for the growing of trees, the development of wild life, and use for recreational purposes. Much of this area will reforest itself if protected from fire and other injury. Some of it will have to be planted if tree growth is to be restored. Fire swept and bare areas are unsightly handicaps to recreational development. But areas green with a new growth of trees lend beauty and attractiveness to the landscape, furnish cover for wild life, and grow daily in value as recreational assets.

The recreational attractions of Michigan not only make life more pleasant for Michigan residents but are the basis of a rapidly advancing industry that is already outstripping agriculture as a source of wealth for the people of the state. This recreational industry has gone far ahead of the old lumber industry in monetary value to the commonwealth.

The Forest week committee urges that special attention be paid during the period from May 5 to 11 to the planting of trees by local organizations for the beautification of the highways, to the establishment of community and county forests, and to consideration of the development of state and national forests in Michigan.

Charlevoix public schools will observe Forest Week in class-room exercises throughout the period from May 5 to 10. Exceptional interest is being shown by the student body generally in this worthy observance, which now, more than at any other time, is of great importance to Michigan.

OFFICERS TAKE MARTIN FISHTUG

STATE POLICE AND CONSERVATION OFFICIALS TURN TRICK.

Martin Case Famous in Local and State Courts; Officers Meet Resistance at Island.

Difficulties between the state conservation department and James "Shing" Martin, Beaver Island fisherman, reached a partial climax Tuesday with the seizure of Martin's tug, the Evelyn M. It was the third attempt to take the boat and was successful only after a free-for-all struggle between officers and member of the Martin family, Nellie Martin, wife and reputed leader of the group, included.

In June, 1926, Martin was arrested for illegal netting of lake trout in Lake Michigan. He was found guilty in justice court at Charlevoix, but appealed the case to circuit court. The higher court upheld the first decision and Martin was sentenced and paid a fine of $75 and costs of $300. Soon afterwards the state conservation department brought suit against Martin for the value of the fish, which he had already sold. On March 30, 1926, Judge Leland W. Carr of the Ingham county circuit court gave a judgment against Martin in favor of the conservation department in the sum of $1,001 fine and costs of $131.30.

Martin failed to pay the fine and in November, 1928, an execution was issued out of the circuit court of Ingham county to Sheriff Dave Vaughan, instructing him to seize Martin's boat. Accompanied by Deputy Chas. Marshall, Vaughan went to the island, but lacking experience as a sailor, returned without the tug. Another attempt was made on December 23rd. Sheriff Vaughan was this time accompanied by conservation officers and a member of the state police. Papers were served on Martin, but in the meantime he had transferred the deed of the tug to his wife, and when officers attempted to board the boat, it is said she drove them off with an axe and that someone opened the sea cock and flooded the engine room. Whether such charges are true or not, the attempt failed. Later Mrs. Martin sent an affidavit to the United States court at Detroit, complaining that officers had committed piracy in the high seas. The charge was referred to the department at Grand Haven and after an investigation the officers were exonerated.

Mixing strategy with bold defiance, Tuesday's efforts to take the boat were successful. Sergeant George Aldrick and Cornelius VanBlanchen, state police officer, Conservation officer Carl Weber and Capt. Chas. Allers, commander of Michigan patrol boat No. 4, all of Cheboygan, pulled the trick. Monday night they pulled to Martin's dock at the island, boarded the tug and removed it to a nearby dock. Early Tuesday morning they served papers on Martin and the scenes of the previous battle were re-enacted. Mrs. Martin, armed with a shotgun, attempted to board the boat. The men said to have joined the battle and not until they were completely manhandled did they withdraw.

Officers brought the tug to Charlevoix Tuesday afternoon and posted it for sale. Martin has 12 days to pay or the boat will be sold.

True to their promise to clean-up the Martin "gang" on Beaver Island, conservation officers and state police who figured in the seizure of Martin's boat Tuesday completed their coup by arresting four members of the family, Mrs. Nellie Martin and three sons, Charles, John and Wilbur on a warrant charging them with obstructing officers in the performance of duty. At 2:00 o'clock Wednesday morning the officers slipped out of this harbor on Michigan Patrol Boat No. 1, commanded by Capt. Charles Allers, and went to Beaver Island. Waiting until shortly before sailing time of the mail boat Sandusky (Continued on page 8.)

CHARLEVOIX WAS SIXTH AT BAND TOURNAMENT

Considering Experience Their Performance Was Remarkable.

Charlevoix school band placed sixth in competition with 12 other Michigan class C school bands at the state tournament held in Lansing last Friday. Traverse City, runners-up to Petoskey at the district tournament in April, carried off class B honors at Lansing, being the only Northern Michigan school to place.

While Charlevoix did not place among the prize winners, local school officials have every reason to be proud of the performance of the local organization. For the time the band has been established they did remarkably well and the trip to Lansing will add greatly to their stock of knowledge. The trip was an experience to them and a just reward for the tireless effort they have put into their work.

Entertained With Bridge.

Mrs. Alonzo Powers delightfully entertained a number of friends at her home on Belvedere avenue Friday evening with a bridge party. Five tables were in play, with Mrs. Carl Kuhler winning the honors. Following cards the hostess served refreshments.

FARMER HELD ON SERIOUS CHARGE

STEVE CZERKIS, BOYNE FALLS, JAILED FOR MANSLAUGHTER.

Joseph Salais, Neighbor, Dead Following Drinking Affair at Czerkis Place Sunday.

Joseph Salais, well-to-do Boyne Valley township farmer, died Sunday night following an all-day drinking affair at the home of Steve Czerkis, a neighbor. Coroner S. B. Stackhouse of Boyne City, who was called Monday, found death caused from acute alcoholism.

Salais left his home early Sunday morning to inspect a piece of land lying between his place and Czerkis' farm. When he did not return late that afternoon, his wife started a search and found him in a drunken condition at the Czerkis home. When he refused to leave she enlisted the aid of other neighbors, who helped carry him to an automobile and to their home, where he was put to bed in a drunken stupor, from which he never rallied. The exact time of his death is not known.

Sheriff Dave Vaughan and Prosecuting Attorney Rollie L. Lewis of this city, were called Monday morning. A coroner's inquest was held and jurors shown where Salais was dragged from Czerkis place to the car and from the car into the neighboring house. The evidence was complete and jurors took little time in reaching a verdict.

Following the inquest, officers searched Czerkis' place and after some difficulty found a still, mash and other equipment in a nearby swamp. He was placed under arrest and brought to the county jail here to await trial on two charges, that of manslaughter and violation of the prohibition laws.

Czerkis is a bachelor, living alone on his place in Boyne Valley township. Salais owned a farm of 160 acres or more, and was apparently

BAIT PLUNKERS HAVE THEIR DAY

TROUT REFUSE FLIES BUT FALL FOR "BARNYARD HACKLE."

Several Nice Catches Brought In During Week: Percy Edwards Gets Staley Prize.

Charlevoix trout anglers did not all return home empty handed from their opening day invasion of the streams last Wednesday. It is admitted that fingers numbed by the cold took some of the joy out of fishing, but several fine catches were the reward. The fly fishingman was entirely out of the picture, leaving the bait plunker to "bring home the bacon."

Percy Edwards won the prize of a telescope rod offered by Staley Brothers' hardware for the best average catch. He had nine beauties. Milo Todd brought in 10 nice ones, but a 12 1/2-inch fish in Edwards' collection swung the judges to his favor. Gerald Richardson, Harley Ochs and A. J. Fisher awarded the prize as judges. Staley Brothers' contest continues throughout the summer, with prizes posted for the largest rainbow or steelhead, mackinaw trout and large or small mouth black bass.

Sunday proved a large day for trout anglers. This writer covered considerable territory, but managed to find someone from Charlevoix on every stream visited. Clarence Withers took high honors for the day with a rainbow taken from Monroe creek weighing better than five pounds. The fish was displayed at Wood Brothers Monday and drew considerable attention, as did also a nice catch of brook trout brought in by Kenneth Usher. Other parties had good luck also, but it is safe to say that out of the total who went out to try their luck, the majority returned empty-handed. The weather is still too cold and the trout long. They don't "hit" like they mean it.

There also are in the field. They have linked up with the Shakespeare company in a national competition as a district unit. An artificial bait will be awarded each angler making an entry at the store, and he gets the bait, win or lose. His entry is also eligible in the national contest.

CEMENT PLANT WORK STARTED

NEWAYGO INTERESTS TO BEGIN BUILDING AT ONCE.

J. B. Johns Completed Details With City Council Here Tuesday; City Leases Property.

With the statement Tuesday by J. B. Johns, official of the Newaygo Portland Cement company, that 250 men would be at work on the new Charlevoix cement plant by August 1, the hope of local residents of a year-around industry here is rewarded. The proposition has been under way for some time, but this announcement was the first definite word in several months.

Mr. Johns met with the city council and local business men Monday afternoon at the council rooms. Details were worked out at that time whereby the city of Charlevoix gave the Newaygo interest a long term lease with privilege to buy several parcels of land held by the city. One, of 4 1/2 acres, surrounded by cement company property and used for a city dump, formerly the old city stone quarry. Another important transfer was a 50-foot railroad right of way running parallel to the spur running to the old Rock Product company. At the time the Rock Product company was established, the city purchased a 100-foot right of way, gave the company 50 feet and held the balance. The new cement concern will use larger locomotives and needed the additional land to straighten out sharp curves.

The city-owned frontage on Lake Charlevoix was also included in the deal. This parcel will afford a location for docks on Lake Charlevoix and will be connected with the plant by railroad. In lieu of the property, the Newaygo interests agreed to expend $2,500,000 within a period of two years. In default the property reverts back to the city.

Preliminary work at the plant will be started at once, in fact, is underway. Location of the plant was staked out Tuesday on the Lake Michigan shore. A contract has been let for three bridges on the railroad between the plant and Pere Marquette main line. Work on the spur will be started as soon as equipment can be placed on the ground.

Other construction will go ahead as rapidly as preliminary work is completed and by mid-summer a large force of men will be employed.

KIT KARSON AWARD- ED ROAD CONTRACT

The contract for grading 11,640 feet on the Boyne Falls East road and installing drainage equipment was awarded Monday afternoon by the Charlevoix County road commission to Kit Karson, East Jordan contractor, whose bid was lowest of several received. The work is to be started within the near future.

Four bids received for placing class A gravel 12 feet wide on 13,160 feet of the fronton-south road in Eveline township were rejected by the commission. The project will not be re-opened to bids. The job will be taken over by the county and completed under the supervision of R. T. Davis, superintendent. The work will get under way as soon as day afternoon.

Charlevoix Guernsey Breeder's Association Meets.

The first meeting in the new year of the membership of the Guernsey Breeder's association was held in the library at East Jordan on May 1st with an attendance of 29 dairymen.

An interesting discussion on the securing, handling, and keeping of better bulls was directed by W. D. Harrington, East Lansing, who represents the American Guernsey Cattle club in Michigan. He cited many examples of how good bulls have greatly benefited different communities.

Long to purchase one.

The election of officers resulted in the election of Chas. Murphy, president; Carl Stevens, vice-president; and Clyde Clute, secretary-treasurer; with Kay Loomis, Carl Gruttsch, Archie Murphy, Orvie Gimsolus, Oakley Saunders and Bert Lumley as Board of Directors for the ensuing year.

Discussion was also brought up pertaining to the 2nd Annual Summer Show and Picnic to be held in East Jordan in July, calf club work, and cow-testing work.

The Guernseys are still gaining in favor and the members reported more dairy cows and better quality and type. Another meeting will be held later to make definite plans for summer activities.

April Report of Charlevoix Co. Cow Testing Association.

Authorities predict for the Future what DODGE BROTHERS OFFER TODAY

"The all-metal seamless body is the auto body of the future," George J. Mercer, consulting body engineer and chairman of the body division of the Society of Automotive Engineers, predicted at a meeting of the Cleveland Section of the S. A. E.—Automotive Daily News, February 12, 1929.

In the exclusive Mono-piece Body of the new Dodge Brothers Six, you find the identical type of design and construction to which leading automotive engineers point as "the body of the future."

Literally one-piece, the Mono-piece Body is positive proof against squeaks and rattles.

Even after thousands of miles of hardest usage it remains as tight, as firm and as noiseless as when new.

Providing an abundance of room with a new degree of grace, the Mono-piece Body is stylishly trim. Doors and windows are wide.

In fact, the Mono-piece Body, in every way, stamps the new Dodge Brothers Six as the herald of a new era of greater beauty, greater comfort and even greater dependability in motor car design and construction.

THE PEDDLER.

Every small city, and many of the big ones, are infested with a species of salesman that prey off the public. From time to time there is a report that a salesman collects from his gullible customer part of the total cost of the merchandise, the balance to be paid to the postman when the goods arrive—then when the goods fail to arrive many report the case to officials who do their best to apprehend the culprit at a big cost to the county and the state.

More often the victims swallow their pride and pay nothing rather than face the ridicule of their friends. Thousands of dollars are mislaid yearly from the trusting public who momentarily forget that the smooth salesman does not pay a cent of taxes to their city, to their schools, to their improvements, or to anything that helps build a city.

There are salesmen who have an established place in the community. These men are good citizens and deal fairly. They are not to be classed with the fly-by-night gentry who are here today and gone with your money tomorrow.

The merchant who lives in your town can and will do better by you than any of these slickers who skip from town to town, sometimes just one skip ahead of the sheriff. Your merchant, nine times out of ten, sells you a better grade of merchandise for the same amount of money and many a time waits on you thirty or sixty days for his money just to be accommodating.

Next time one of these salesmen approaches you just stop and think and ask him what he has ever done for this community and what amount of his profit will be left here. Compare him to the merchant who has helped to build your schools, your churches, your homes, your business and your improvements. Then and then only, comes the realization that "THE DOLLAR SPENT AT HOME OFTEN COMES BACK TO YOU."

STATE-WIDE CAR TEST MAY 10 TO JUNE 30

Thorough Inspection of Brakes, Lights and Steering Gear.

A statewide car test, sponsored by Michigan Safety Council, will take place during the 51 days from May 10 to June 30. This test will include all automotive vehicles in Michigan, which will be inspected for safety equipment including brakes, lights, steering and sound signals.

In conducting this second great safety campaign within a period of one year it is the purpose of the safety council to encourage civilian interest and influence in promoting the test in connection with traffic departments and officials in every community in the state.

A campaign of education on safe driving will be a part of the safety council's plans, stressing the tremendous cost in human life and financial destruction of automotive equipment through carelessness in operating automobiles upon the streets and highways of Michigan.

Last year's test revealed that approximately every fourth car on the road was defective. During that campaign, which admittedly was pioneering and experimental, a total of 78.3 of inspectable cars were inspected. By lengthening the duration of the test this year it is hoped that every bit of automotive equipment in the state may be brought under inspection.

Information is desired to establish a claim for pension of Evan Thomas' second wife, Sarah. They have information that Merle Kindall is deceased in order to satisfy the Pension Bureau with the death certificate desired, as Mr. Thomas was killed in an automobile accident in August, 1928, leaving his wife, and three children in hard circumstances. Any information we can receive along those lines will be greatly appreciated. Thomas also served as private in 21st Battery, F. A., regular army, during Philippine insurrection.

STATE SENDS OUT MANY SEEDLINGS FROM STOCK

At this season the Forest Nursery station operated by the conservation department at Higgins lake is busy filling private orders for nursery stock; to date 282,000 trees have been shipped to those wishing to make plantings on their lands. The majority of such plantations are for the purpose of improving land.

Some lands, while others are for windbreaks. Large orders for stock have been placed by the state highway department and the Consumers Power company. The highway department plantings are for improving roadsides and to serve as snow breaks, while the Consumers Power company will use these trees for bettering the protection of the watersheds under their control.

AL. ROLLINS GETS POST IN ENGLAND

Goes As Special Advertising Contact Man for Largest Agency in World.

Al Rollins, who, until three and a half years ago was employed in the Herald Times plant, Gaylord, as a printer, and two years ago a member of the Courier of W. Hayes for England May 12 to represent the largest advertising agency in the world, the Campbell-Ewald Co., of Detroit, to study advertising conditions there. He will remain two years, according to present plans of the company.

We like to draw a moral from Al's progress. When he left here he went to Ferris Institute for two terms to study business. Following that he completed the Pace-Davis course in advertising and then started work for the Iron County News. Since that time he has held several positions, as he stated, to get the different angles of advertising.

He has been employed on the Grand Rapids Press, the Northwest Weekly of Grand Rapids, then branched out in specialized work, taking an executive position with the J. L. Hudson Co., of Detroit, where he had charge of the home furnishings department. From there he went to Chase's Department Store at Pontiac, and while on this job, he in touch with Campbell-Ewald Co.

Al is one of six men sent out to foreign countries by the company. Some are going to Japan, China, France, and other places.

In talking with him about his work, Al said, "Believe me, it wasn't all easy. I haven't had time to chase around much. When there was time, I went to night school at every opportunity. There has been scarcely a night for three years that I haven't been doing research work and studying at home or in school. I don't know if it is, but I think I am now in a position where I can appreciate and assimilate new ideas and thoughts."

Everyone here knew Al. He is just an ordinary fellow, full of all the pleasures that other fellows had, but he had a vision of something better and went after it. He has been enjoying himself, but has not wasted all his spare time. Of course he has been fortunate in getting where he is in so short a time, but that simply goes to show that it pays to be ready for the bigger job—Gaylord Times.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SOCIETY

Sunday service, 10:45 a. m. Subject: "Adapt and Fillen Man." Wednesday evening service, 7:45 p. m., first Wednesday in the month only.

"Everlasting Punishment" was the subject of the lesson-lesson of all Christian Science churches on Sunday, May 5. Among the citations which comprised the lesson-lesson was the following from the Bible: "Afterward Jesus blushed him in the temple, and said unto him, behold, thou art made whole: sin no more, lest a worse thing come unto thee." (John 8:11).

The lesson-lesson also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Divine Science adjusts the balance as Jesus adjusted it. Science removes the penalty only by first removing the sin which incurs the penalty. This is my sense of divine pardon, which I understand to mean God's method of destroying sin." (p. 101).

BAPTIST CHURCH

"Honor thy father and thy mother." Sunday is Mother's Day; there is no better way to honor mother than to attend the house of worship. We invite all who are without a church home to worship with us.

Mother's Day song by the Sabbath class, story for the children, sermon by pastor, "Meditations for Mother's Day."

Sunday school 11:30, Mrs. Kirby, superintendent. B. Y. P. U., 6:30. Evening worship 7:30, sermon by the pastor.

Ladies' Aid will meet Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Alcock, corner of Bridge and Huron streets. Thursday evening at 7:30 all members interested in the Sunday school and church work will meet at the church for prayer.

Charlevoix Public School Notes

Elementary News:

A grade opera, "On a Midsummer's Day," will be presented in the school auditorium Friday night of this week, at 8:00 o'clock.

This program is free to the public, and we hope to have a large audience.

Instead of the regular matinee performance, there will be a grade assembly Friday morning at 8:45 o'clock for the children of the elementary and junior high schools. All friends of the school who find it quite impossible to attend the evening presentation, are cordially invited to the assembly.

County Normal Notes.

The County Normal as a whole wishes to thank very sincerely Mr. Palmer, Mr. Ottoboni, Miss Bice and Miss Griffin for furnishing cars for the trip to Mt. Pleasant.

Mrs. McGarry taught in the Training Room during the absence of Mrs. Dick, the training teacher, and the student teachers, who went to Mt. Pleasant.

The teachers in charge of house-keeping in the Normal room, Miss Straw, Miss Ellis and Miss Bogart, are planning a very appropriate Mother's Day program for this week.

The student teachers are all very interested in the "Township Days," now being held in the county. Each teacher gets one chance to go to some township to help judge the exhibits.

To all former Charlevoix County Normal graduates:

Remember the Alumni Banquet, June 1st.

Don't forget to send in your dollar before May 14, the 1st!

A large attendance is desired.

To the Freshmen.

In place of the regular quotation for the week the editor has substituted a few lines in memory of the Freshman class of this year.

There is a place in Charlevoix. A place of grief, a place of joy. Where plans are laid and men are made.

And superstitions melt and fade.

Let every freshman

Revere this place in Charlevoix

Where Red and White will top the fight

And point the wanderer aright.

Can You Tell Your Future?

The Ancient History students are studying astrology, or human destiny told by the stars. By searching through almanacs and other books they have been able to find their future and they plan to make booklets containing this material. It is of interest to trace the origin of the slightest early science to the Egyptians, Babylonians, Chaldeans, Greeks and Romans. The subject of astrology was practically the only known science taught in medieval universities. Astrology is still popular with many people and we look upon this type of science as the foolish sister of astronomy.

Can You Feature the Freshmen?

Stan Heise worrying over graduation?

Marion Smith as a ballet dancer?

Norman Anee as Rudolph Valentino the second?

Baby Supernaw as the screen vamp?

Franklin Curtis as a heavyweight wrestler?

Margaret Smith as the "first lady of the land?"

Joe Arvilla as a sentimental poet?

Kathleen McCall dieting?

Clarence Smith bashful?

Mary Margaret Orlowski expressionless?

Lila McMillan a journalist?

Typical of a Freshman.

The teacher asked several of her freshmen pupils to bring some article to class to illustrate songs. One pupil brought an apple, which was to signify "In the Shade of the Old Apple Tree;" another brought a banana, which immediately brought to mind, "We Have No Bananas Today;" and the third boy brought a whip to show, "Thanks For the Buggy Ride."—The Michigan Farmer.

Ancient History.

The classes in Ancient History are engaged in making rose windows and Miss Keller has received some very handsome ones. Marion Smith, Geo. McKinzie, Dan Genett and Lula Vandusen handed in exceptionally good ones, although all of them showed originality and touches of beauty.

General News.

The Junior play, "All-of-a-Sudden Peggy," which is to be given in the high school auditorium is expected to be a great success. The cast have been working very hard and faithfully under the direction of Miss Bond and Mrs. McKinley. A big crowd is hoped for.

The band boys returned from Lansing last Saturday after attending the State Band Tournament and the state band tournament and winning sixth place.

Graduation is near at hand and the Seniors are scurrying around to get everything in order for the big event. It only happens once in a life time.

A Senior's Viewpoint of the Freshman Class.

Viewing the freshman class of this year and then reflecting on the freshman class of three years ago it is beyond the shadow of the slightest doubt that the class of 1932 will come through with flying colors just as the class of 1929 is doing. Among the freshmen there are several members of the high school band, members of the city band, promising basketball and football material, and real students.

The Freshman party which was held in the gymnasium Thursday evening, April 25, proved to be great success.

The party progressed according to the program which had been planned by the committee, and the evening started with a game which supplied the people with partners for the Grand March.

Supper was then served, being all that one could ask for, having some old favorites which everyone enjoyed to the utmost. After supper an attempt was made to square dance, also round dancing, and games were played. A specialty was put on by the entertainment committee which consisted of a farce comedy entitled, "The Supreme Sacrifice." Chief Mud-in-the-Face, and Chief Hole-in-the-Breeches, receiving honorable mention. A pleasant ten minutes was spent while the play progressed.

Mary Orlowski also favored us with a specialty, being a clever little song, this was followed by another song by Stan, Cartier and Joseph Arvilla entitled, "The Gay Cavalero."

The party came to a close and everyone could truthfully declare that it was one of the best times they ever had had.

AT THE MOVIES

Actress Must Shriek in This Silent Picture.

What, no shrieks? Eddie Sutherland, film director, was confounded.

Gwen Lee, youthful featured player, couldn't even give vent to a healthy e-e-e-ek!

Cast in the part of a hysterical wife—in "The Baby Cyclone," Miss Lee was supposed to yell her way in and out of screaming situations.

"But I can't scream!" she protested.

Low Cady and Aileen Pringle, co-stars in the Merton-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, went through an ear-splitting routine of howls, shouts and yells but still Miss Lee couldn't muster up any vocal spasms of terror.

"The Baby Cyclone," made from George M. Cohan's great stage hit, opens Wednesday at the Palace theatre.

Filming "Wings" Proved "Anything Can Be Done."

Someone said "it couldn't be done." Mr. Someone Else disagreed. The result was "WINGS," Paramount's great spectacle of the air, which opens at the Palace Theatre next Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

But it wasn't easy. It was a new field and here are a few of the things Mr. Someone Else had to go through in order to win his point:

The first essential was a story. It came from the pen of John Monk Saunders, one of the better-known authors of the day and an instructor of aviation during the war.

Secondly, the problem of overcoming the slowness so typical of air productions of the past.

Then weeks of preparation, the selection of localities and the consideration of candidates for the cast. Nearly 500 pilots were interviewed.

Thirty of the younger leading men in Hollywood took tests.

Produce and Art.

The hen remarked to the muley cow As she nickered her daily lay (That is the hen nickered). It's funny how

I'm good for an egg a day.

I'm a fool to do it, for what do I get?

My food and my lodging—why

The poodle gets that; he's the household pet

and has never had a single egg yet—

No even when eggs are high.

But the muley cow remarked to the hen

As she nickered her end

(That is the cow did.) Well, what then?

You quit and your name is mud.

I'm good for eight gallons of milk a day

And I'm given my stable and grub

The parrot gets that much, anyway

All she can gobble and what does she pay?

Not a dribble of milk, the dub!

But the hired man remarked to the pair

"You get all that's coming to you;

The poodle does tricks and the parrot kin swear

And that's better nor you kin do.

You're necessary but what's the use

Of bewailing your daily part?

You're burlesque; workin' your only excuse

You can't do nothin' but just produce;

What them fellers does is art!"

NASH "400"

Leads the World in Motor Car Value

$1422.00

Delivered,
Fully Equipped;
Nothing More
to Buy!

Compare delivered, fully-equipped prices! See why Nash is lower!

ON the basis of quality, the Nash "400" should cost more than other cars in its competitive field. It actually costs less!

Nash engineers—one of the industry's outstanding engineering organizations—have created a finer motor car. They have developed the high-compression, 7-bearing motor to its highest point of perfection and power. The exclusive Nash outboard mounting of hydraulic shock absorbers doubles their effectiveness and creates supreme riding ease. And here is the "world's easiest driving control," in this new and finer motor car.

These are but a few of many "400" features of superiority.

Why then, is the Nash "400" lower priced?

Here is the explanation. Every Nash "400" is now factory-equipped with the accessories, purchased at factory savings and included in the factory price of the car. Bumpers, shock absorbers, spare tire lock and tire cover come with the car and are not added later as "extras," at retail prices.

You will find some dealers (not Nash dealers) charging as much as $50 or $60 extra for bumpers alone.

Compare the delivered, fully equipped price of any Nash "400" with the delivered, fully equipped prices of competitive cars. You'll see the saving!

ARTHUR CLEMENT TAKEN BY DEATH

DIED APRIL 27 AT HOME IN JOLIET, ILLINOIS.

Had Been Summer Resident of
Charlevoix Many Years and
Active on Belvedere Resort.

The following obituary of Arthur C. Clement, well known summer resorter who died at his home in Joliet, Illinois, on Saturday, April 27, was taken from the Joliet Sunday Herald, issue of April 28, brought to the Courier by Roy Ranger, a long-time close acquaintance of the Clement family, who returned last Thursday from attending the funeral:

Arthur C. Clement, 77 years old, retired attorney, died 11 o'clock last night in his home at Campbell and Clement streets, after a month's illness.

Mr. Clement had spent the winter in Florida and a week ago returned to Joliet in ill health.

Born in Joliet.

He was born in Joliet, January 16, 1852, in the first frame house built in this city, the son of Charles Clement, an early settler. The elder Clement, with Allen and Wilcox, in 1839 began the publication of the Joliet Courier in Merchants Row on North Bluff street.

The Courier became the Signal, True Democrat, Republican, Record, Sun, News, Herald and finally the Herald-News, an unbroken line of publication since 1839.

The first issue of the Courier was long a cherished possession of Arthur C. Clement.

Mr. Clement was taken by his parents to Chester, New Hampshire, on their removal from Joliet in the fifties and prior to his tenth year was a student in the public schools there. Later he returned to Joliet and resumed his studies in the schools here. His collegiate work was done in Cornell university, in which he matriculated in 1868, being graduated in 1872 with a bachelor of science degree.

As a student in the office of Olin and Phelps, Joliet attorneys, he began preparation for the practice of law and afterward spent a year in the Chicago College of Law, being admitted to the bar at Mt. Vernon, Ill., in 1875.

Locating in Joliet, Mr. Clement was a member of the law firm of Phelps and Clement until 1878, when, at his father's death, he became administrator of the estate and continued the loan business which his father organized. In 1885 the firm of Clement and Oliver was organized, having an existence until 1891, after which Mr. Clement continued in business alone for some years.

In 1897 Mr. Clement formed a partnership with his brother-in-law, Samuel D. Chaney, which continued until 1903. Since that time he has been engaged in the management of his own affairs.

Mr. Clement contributed in substantial measure to the improvement and progress of Joliet through the erection of buildings, including the Clement block, now the site of the Will County National Bank.

Mr. Clement was also one of the sponsors of Silver Cross hospital, serving as president at the time of the erection of its building.

He was married in Auburn, N. Y., to Miss Georgia Smith, a daughter of Alfred Smith, a prominent resident of that city. Mrs. Clement died some years ago. He later married Miss Mae Eaton of Joliet, Ill., who died April 25, 1924.

Surviving Mr. Clement are a son, Charles A. Clement, and one daughter, Mrs. August Belzner, also three grandchildren.

The funeral will be held from the home at 2:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. Burial in Elmhurst. The family has requested friends to omit flowers.

The following stops will be made: Detroit, Monroe, Ypsilanti, Ann Arbor, Lansing, Jackson, Sturgis, Niles, Benton Harbor, Kalamazoo, Battle Creek, Grand Rapids, Grand Haven, Muskegon, Ludington, Manistee, Cadillac, Traverse City, Petoskey, Harbor Springs, Mackinaw City, Alpena, Camp Skeel, Bay City, Saginaw, Flint, Port Huron and Mt. HAYES TOWNSHIP TO HAVE NEW TOWN HALL

Proposition to Change Location
Carried at Special Election.

With a large representation of voters at the polls of a special election in Hayes township Tuesday, the proposition to change the location of the present town hall and raise $1,000 for the construction of a new town hall carried by a majority of 48 votes.

The proposition lost April 1 when a spring blizzard kept many voters away from the polls. It was an east side and west side proposition, and those living near the old hall went to the polls when those from the west side could not get there and voted the proposition down. The new location is at Burgess and we understand work of building will be started at once.

Ferd for Charlevoix, they served the warrant, placed the four under arrest and brought them to the county jail here, arriving shortly before noon.

The quartette are now awaiting hearing, which will be held Thursday morning. Several other warrants are also out for members of the family and will be served. Two charge James Martin, the father, with illegal netting on Gull Island Reef last fall and fishing without bays. The boys are also implicated. Other warrants are out for a variety of offenses and it is intimated the affair will be brought to a climax now "while the iron is hot." State Troopers Robt. McGuire and C. P. VanBlankensteyn, who returned with the prisoners Wednesday, stated their orders were to teach the Martins respect for the law now that they have the "ball rolling."

The family have been a source of trouble to both county and state conservation officers for many years. Other residents on Beaver Island are not in the least in sympathy with the group and are taking no little satisfaction in seeing the trouble-makers brought to justice.

HILTON SCHOOL.

The sixth grade are making a geography booklet.

Joseph Pavlik was absent from school Monday, to help do the spring work.

We have some new borders for our boards representing the spring months.

Charles Pesek, our third grader, started reciting from his new reader this week.

We are all working hard preparing for examinations and getting ready for township day.

The seventh grade have finished their geography notebooks ready to take examinations.

We all enjoy our clean curtains very much, they surely add much to the appearance of our room.

Several from Hilton attended the program at Barnard last Friday evening and had the usual good time.

Miss Webster brought us a variety of magazines for our reading table last week. We find them very interesting.

We have eight new plants this spring to help decorate our room, contributed by the Rumisek girls: Lula Savna, Elizabeth Pavlik and Mrs. Henry Hilton.

Don't forget the Closing Day program at Hilton school, Wednesday evening, May 22, beginning at 8:00 o'clock standard time. Everybody welcome. Come and see us act. This will be the last you will hear from us until next fall.

We all enjoyed our Achievement Day and Patron's meeting last Wednesday very much. The club work was judged in the morning by Miss Wixson, the state club leader. Elsie Rumisek was placed first. We all congratulated her. The seventh and eighth grade gave a pageant consisting of three scenes, the home, the school, and the community, of modern rural life. After this lunch was served, and then Mr. Palmer gave us an interesting talk on "The Value of Club Work in the Rural School."

OFFICERS TAKE MARTIN FISHTUG

STATE POLICE AND CONSERVATION OFFICIALS TURN TRICK.

Martin Case Famous in Local and State Court; Officers Meet Resistance at Island.

Difficulties between the state conservation department and James "Shing" Martin, Beaver Island fisherman, reached a partial climax Tuesday with the seizure of Martin's tug, the Evelyn M. It was the third attempt to take the boat and was successful only after a free-for-all struggle between officers and member of the Martin family, Nellie Martin, wife and reputed leader of the group, included.

In June, 1926, Martin was arrested for illegal netting of lake trout in Lake Michigan. He was found guilty in justice court at Charlevoix, but appealed the case to circuit court. The higher court upheld the first decision and Martin was sentenced and paid a fine of $75 and costs of $300. Soon afterwards the state conservation department brought suit against Martin for the value of the fish, which he had already sold. On March 30, 1926, Judge Leland W. Carr of the Ingham county circuit court gave a judgment against Martin in favor of the conservation department in the sum of $1,001 fine and costs of $131.30.

Martin failed to pay the fine and in November, 1928, an execution was issued out of the circuit court of Ingham county to Sheriff Dave Vaughan, instructing him to seize Martin's boat. Accompanied by Deputy Chas. Marshall, Vaughan went to the island, but lacking experience as a sailor, returned without the tug. Another attempt was made on December 23rd. Sheriff Vaughan was this time accompanied by conservation officers and a member of the state police. Papers were served on Martin, but in the meantime he had transferred the deed of the tug to his wife, and when officers attempted to board the boat, it is said she drove them off with an axe and that someone opened the sea cock and flooded the engine room. Whether such charges are true or not, the attempt failed. Later Mrs. Martin sent an affidavit to the United States court at Detroit, complaining that officers had committed piracy in the high seas. The charge was referred to the department at Grand Haven and after an investigation the officers were exonerated.

Mixing strategy with bold defiance, Tuesday's efforts to take the boat were successful. Sergeant George Aldrick and Cornelius VanBlanchens, of the state police, conservation officer Carl Weber and Capt. Chas. Allers, commander of Michigan patrol boat No. 4, all of Cheboygan, pulled the trick. Monday night they pulled to Martin's dock at the island, boarded the tug and removed it to a nearby dock. Early Tuesday morning they served papers on Martin and the scenes of the previous battle were re-enacted. Mrs. Martin, armed with a shotgun, attempted to board the boat. The sons are said to have joined the battle and not until they were completely manhandled did they withdraw.

Officers brought the tug to Charlevoix Tuesday afternoon and posted it for sale. Martin has 12 days to pay up or lose his boat. In the meantime, two armed state troopers are on guard in case an attempt is made to steal the boat.

True to their promise to clean-up the Martin "gang" on Beaver Island, conservation officers and state police who figured in the seizure of Martin's boat Tuesday completed their coup by arresting four members of the family. Mrs. Nellie Martin and three sons, Charles, John and Wilbur on a warrant charging them with obstructing officers in the performance of duty. At 2:00 o'clock Wednesday morning the officers slipped out of this harbor on Michigan Patrol Boat No. 4, commanded by Capt. Charles Allers, and went to Beaver Island. Waiting until shortly before sailing time of the mail boat San-

CHARLEVOIX WAS SIXTH AT BAND TOURNAMENT

Considering Experience Their Performance Was Remarkable.

Charlevoix school band placed sixth in competition with 12 other Michigan class C school bands at the state tournament held in Lansing last Friday. Traverse City, runners-up to Petoskey at the district tournament in April, carried off class B honors at Lansing, being the only Northern Michigan school to place.

While Charlevoix did not place among the prize winners, local school officials have every reason to be proud of the performance of the local organization. For the time the band has been established they did remarkably well and the trip to Lansing will add greatly to their stock of knowledge. The trip was an experience to them and a just reward for the tireless effort they have put into their work.

FARMER HELD ON SERIOUS CHARGE

STEVE CZERKIS, BOYNE FALLS, JAILED FOR MANSLAUGHTER.

Joseph Salaisz, Neighbor, Dead Following Drinking Affair at Czerkis Place Sunday.

Joseph Salaisz, well-to-do Boyne Valley township farmer, died Sunday night following an all-day drinking affair at the home of Steve Czerkis, a neighbor. Coroner S. B. Staekus of Boyne City, who was called Monday, found death caused from acute alcoholism.

Salaisz left his home early Sunday morning to inspect a piece of land lying between his place and Czerkis' farm. When he did not return late that afternoon, his wife started a search and found him in a drunken stupor, from which he never rallied. The exact time of his death is not known.

Sheriff Dave Vaughan and Prosecuting Attorney Rollie L. Lewis of this city, were called Monday morning. A coroner's inquest was held and jurors shown where Salaisz was dragged from Czerkis place to the car and from the car into the neighboring house. The evidence was complete and jurors took little time in reaching a verdict.

Following the inquest, officers searched Czerkis' place and after some difficulty found a still, mash and other equipment in a nearby swamp. He was placed under arrest and brought to the county jail here to await trial on two charges, that of manslaughter and violation of the prohibition laws.

Czerkis is a bachelor, living alone on his place in Boyne Valley township. Salaisz owned a farm of 160 acres or more, and was apparently fairly well-to-do. Besides his wife, he leaves six children.

BAIT PLUNKERS HAVE THEIR DAY

TROUT REFUSE FLIES BUT FALL FOR "BARNYARD HACKLE."

Several Nice Catches Brought In During Week: Percy Edwards Gets Staley Prize.

Charlevoix trout anglers did not all return home empty handed from their opening day invasion of the streams last Wednesday. It is admitted that lingers numbed by the cold took some of the joy out of fishing, but to several, fine catches were the reward. The fly fishingman was entirely out of the picture, leaving the bait plunker to "bring home the bacon."

Percy Edwards won the prize of a telescope and offered by Staley Brothers' hardware for the best average catch. He had nine beauties, Milo Todd brought in 10 nice ones, but a 12 1/2-inch fish in Edwards' collection swung the judges to his favor. Gerald Richardson, Harley Ochs and A. J. Usher awarded the prize as judges. Staley Brothers' contest continues throughout the summer, with prizes posted for the largest rainbow or steelhead, mackinaw trout and large or small mouth black bass.

Sunday proved a large day for trout anglers. This writer covered considerable territory, but managed to find someone from Charlevoix on every stream visited. Clarence Withers took high honors for the day with a rainbow taken from Moore creek weighing better than five pounds. The fish was displayed at Wood Brothers Monday and drew considerable attention, as did also a nice catch of brook trout brought in by Kenneth Usher. Other parties had good luck also, but it is safe to say that out of the total who went out to try their luck, the majority returned empty-handed. The weather is still too cold and the trout loggy. They don't "bit" like they mean it, nor won't until conditions are better.

Speaking of contests, Wood Brothers also are in the field. They have linked up with the Shakespeare company in a national competition as a district unit. An artificial bait will be awarded each angler making an entry at the store, and he gets the bait, win or lose. His entry is also eligible in the national contest.

CEMENT PLANT WORK STARTED

NEWAYGO INTERESTS TO BEGIN BUILDING AT ONCE.

J. B. Johns Completed Details With City Council Here Tuesday; City Leases Property.

With the statement Tuesday by J. B. Johns, official of the Newaygo Portland Cement company, that 250 men would be at work on the new Charlevoix cement plant by August 1, the hope of local residents of a year-around industry here is rewarded. The proposition has been under way for some time, but this announcement was the first definite word in several months.

Mr. Johns met with the city council and local business men Monday afternoon at the council rooms. Details were worked out at that time whereby the city of Charlevoix gave the Newaygo interests a long term lease with privilege to buy several parcels of land held by the city. One, of 4 1/2 acres, surrounded by cement company property and used for a city dump, formerly the old city stone quarry. Another important transfer was a 50-foot railroad right of way running parallel to the spur running to the old Rock Product company. At the time the Rock Product company was established, the city purchased a 100-foot right of way, gave the company 50 feet and held the balance. The new cement concern will use larger locomotives and needed the additional land to straighten out sharp curves.

The city-owned frontage on Lake Charlevoix was also included in the deal. This parcel will afford a location for docks on Lake Charlevoix and will be connected with the plant by railroad. In lieu of the property, the Newaygo interests agreed to expend $250,000 within a period of two years. In default the property reverts back to the city.

Preliminary work at the plant will be started at once, in fact, is under way. Location of the plant was staked out Tuesday on the Lake Michigan shore. A contract has been let for three bridges on the railroad between the plant and Pere Marquette main line. Work on the spur will be started as soon as equipment can be placed on the ground.

Other construction will go ahead as rapidly as preliminary work is completed and by mid-summer a large force of men will be employed.

The work is to be started within the near future.

Four bids received for placing class A gravel 12 feet wide on 13-160 feet of the Iron-ton-South road in Eveline township were rejected by the commission. The project will not be re-opened to bids. The job will be taken over by the county and completed under the supervision of R. T. Davis, superintendent. The work will get under way as soon as possible, Mr. Davis announced Monday afternoon.

Charlevoix Guernsey Breeder's Association Meets.

The first meeting in the new year of the membership of the Guernsey Breeder's association was held in the Library at East Jordan on May 1st with an attendance of 29 dairymen.

An interesting discussion on the securing, handling, and keeping of better bulls was directed by W. D. Burrington, East Lansing, who represents the American Guernsey Cattle club in Michigan. He cited many examples of how good bulls have greatly benefited different communities and kindly offered to assist anyone wishing to purchase one.

The election of officers resulted in the election of Chas. Murphy, president; Carl Stevens, vice-president; and Clyde Clute, secretary-treasurer; with Ray Loomis, Carl Grutsch, Archie Murphy, Orvie Guasolus, Oakley Saunders and Bert Lumley as Board of Directors for the ensuing year.

Discussion was also brought up pertaining to the 2nd Annual Summer Show and Picnic to be held in East Jordan in July, club work, and cow-testing work.

The Guernseys are still gaining in favor and the members reported more dairy cows and better quality and type. Another meeting will be held later to make definite plans for summer activities.

April Report of Charlevoix Co. Cow Testing Association.

Mature cows, 5 years and over—1st, Oakley Saunders, "Cherry", 1,291 pounds of milk, 64.0 pounds of butterfat; 2nd, Hiram Potter, "Holstein", 1,250 pounds of milk, 59.3 pounds of butterfat; 3rd, Fred Larson, "Marzi", 1,266 pounds of milk, 54.4 pounds of butterfat.

Cows will soon go on pasture and will require different grain mixtures than on dry feed. Less grain is needed per pound of milk. Barley and oats with a small amount of cottonseed meal is a good ration for spring and early summer.

Any one wanting milk sheets to keep daily records of milk may get them from the tester as long as they last.

Authorities predict for the Future what DODGE BROTHERS OFFER TODAY

The all-metal seamless body is the auto body of the future," George J. Mercer, consulting body engineer and chairman of the body division of the Society of Automotive Engineers, predicted at a meeting of the Cleveland Section of the S. A. E.—Automotive Daily News, February 12, 1929.

In the exclusive Mono-piece Body of the new Dodge Brothers Six, you find the identical type of design and construction to which leading automotive engineers point as "the body of the future."

Literally one-piece, the Mono-piece Body is positive proof against squeaks and rattles.

Even after thousands of miles of hardest usage it remains as tight, as firm and as noiseless as when new.

Providing an abundance of room with a new degree of grace, the Mono-piece Body is stylishly trim. Doors and windows are wide.

In fact, the Mono-piece Body, in every way, stamps the new Dodge Brothers Six as the herald of a new era of greater beauty, greater comfort and even greater dependability in motor car design and construction.

FLASH THE LEAD DOG

By
George Marsh

The shoulder and back of the skin capote were slashed like cloth, as the long skinning knife of the boy plunged deep into the ribs of the raging beast. Again Brock thrust desperately under his upraised arm at the demon whose teeth gripped the back of the skin capote while razor-like claws ripped the hide to ribbons. Then, a great body catapulted into battling encounter and boy, hurling them to the snow.

Struggling to his knees, free of his enemy, with snarled knife blade aimed for a thrust, Brock stared at the battle in the snow beside him. In a blinding noise of slate-gray and brown, snarling their hate as they fought to the death, thrashed the husky and the wounded carcajou. Hampered by the snarled traces of far and hilly land of the harness though he was, the charging dog had found his mark as he leaped to the air of his master. Struck in their goal the great canines of Flash had driven through the thick neck muscles of the wolverine. Desperately the beast, weakened from the knife thrusts, writhed and twisted to reach the husky with the flying blade of his claws. But the husky of Flash, seeking the spine behind the skull, never lost their conquering grip as they killed their way to their goal.

Neck clamped from the rear in the vise of the husky's jaws, his cruel paws snapping helplessly on air as he caught his hate, the wolverine fought to reach his enemy with his feet, but as he squirmed to slice the great body, always with a wrench, Flash threw him and kept to the beast's back, thus avoiding the slash of the claws.

Then, as the excited Brock hung over the battle in the snow with poised knife, the first brown body suddenly ceased to writhe; the second slavered jaws gaped widely in a red grimace, the great forefeet, with their knives of claws reached out in a last quivering slash at the air.

The long fangs of the Carcajou gnawed through to their mark. The spine of the carcajou was broken. "Give it to him, Flash!" gasped Brock, suspicious, doubtful of what he saw, "give it to him, boy."

Lifting the head of the brute, his teeth still bared, Flash shook him with great wrenches of his iron neck. Satisfied with a low growl, he merely nuzzled his stiffening enemy. Then with the dead brute he wove his forelegs, Flash promptly lifted his slant eyes to the master.

"You killed him, boy!" cried Brock, proudly. "You broke his neck—a carcajou's neck—and not a hair slash on you! By the great horned owl, you're a wonder!"

Then, in the custom of his kind, the conquering dog raised his head in victory over the body of his foe, in long drawn howls that waked the silent forest.

Throwing off his tattered coat, Brock examined his ripped duffle shirt and the scratches on arms and back.

"Flash!" he cried. "We're two lucky birds! That deer skin was so tough, I'm hardly more than scratched. I got him with that first stab—close to the heart—took the fire out of him, I guess." Brock leaped over and examined the thrusts in the body of the dead carcajou.

"Yes," he added. "And one blind foot was ruined by the trap. If he had had a fair chance to get a purchase with his teeth in my shoulder, he would have slashed my old hide to pieces, boy."

Luckily for Brock the wolverine had hung on his shoulder and side barely an instant—the first snap of his jaws, owing to the thick skin coat, only breaking the skin, and his punishing claws hardly getting into action when the knife thrusts into his lungs and the charge of Flash shook him off. And it was fortunate for Flash he had not met an unwounded carcajou. The neck hold he had got in his leap, had saved him from a ripped pelt.

Finding that neither he nor his dog were hurt beyond painful scratches, Brock donned his torn capote, and hurried back to the main camp to treat the slight wounds on shoulder and left arm, and get his duffle coat.

And so, through February, unmolested by their enemies north of the big lake, while they adied to the already rich catch of fur which might never see hungry house.

On a bank-glass, the Moon of the Crust on the Snow, was ten days old. Higher and higher, each day, swung the sun over the white wilderness of the Yellow-Leg headwaters. With fur and surplus muffs securely hidden in the cache in the swamp, Gaspard and Brock waited for the usual break in the weather, when, for a time, the March sun would daily soften the snow surface and the following frosts, at night, form a crust which would bear the weight of men and dogs, making sledging a delight. With provisions for three weeks, cooking outfit and blankets, loaded in the tarpaulin wrapper on the big sled, the first hard crust would find them headed north. Deep into the country the Crees were trapping for the red, bearded free-trader, wintering on the lower Carcajou, they were going in search of news of the death of Pierre Leerdix. Tied there might be no return south over the March crust; that the Peterboro, since from spruce, on whose, in October, to avoid the perils, might not, in May, run the roaring Yellow-Leg, bound home for Hinters' House, the boys fully realized.

Often, in the past weeks, they had gone over it together—this long chance they were taking. Time after time Gaspard urged Brock to wait with Flash while he went south with the other dogs on his quest, wait through April, and, if he did not then return, take the Peterboro and ride the snow water behind the break-up of the ice in the Yellow-Leg to the bay and home. But characteristically Brock had heatedly refused to "play safe" while his partner flirted with death in the No-Man's land to the north. So, while the surface of lake and muskeg hardened, and the forest floor, which the sun could reach, set into crust, the boys waited. Then one day, when the weather had changed and the spruce snapped with frost, Yellow-Leg led the dogs into the north. On they went through the day, dogs and sled needing no trail breaker as in the months past when the snow was young and soft. Now as the dogs raced down slippery slopes, the boys were compelled to slip off their shoes and dig their heels into the crust while they leaned back on the tall lines left dragging for this purpose. Otherwise the heavy sled, gathering momentum, would overturn the team and ensnare.

The morning of the second day, Gaspard and Brock stood on the ridge, overlooking the big lake of the Carcajou headwaters. Carefully Brock examined through his glasses the open country to the north and the glittering surface of the lake.

"The old sled-trail, down the lake, looks snowed over and abandoned, to me," he said, handling the binoculars to his friend.

For a long space the halfbreed studied the lake below them.

"Ah-hah!" he announced, finally, "they keep off all ice after day see de message on de spruce, eh?"

"Looks as if our blight worked," agreed Brock.

"What, we don't walk de lake just de same?"

"Lord, no! With the dogs here and the sled we've got to keep out of sight until we spot one of them and get some information."

So the boys followed the timber down to the lake and behind the acre of shore spruce proceeded north. Ahead of the dogs walked Brock, his knife loose in its sheath, for speed in cutting the traces and putting the dogs into the light, if un-bushed; his uncase gun in his left hand. As a flank patrol, traveled the halfbreed, a hundred yards away, eyes roving, ears tense, nerves taut. For they were in the land of a ruthless enemy, who had suffered at their hands, and whose revenge would be sudden, swift as the plummet-like plunge of a hawk, if the boys were caught off their guard.

They found the old trail where Gaspard had burned the fletitious message on the blazed spruce, filled with old drift and abandoned. On down the lake they continued, traveling slowly through the thick timber of the shore, There's No Excuse for Failure!

THE mails must go. That is why the Universal Aviation Corporation, operating fleets of passenger and mail planes between Chicago, Kansas City, St. Louis, Omaha, Indianapolis, Cleveland and Louisville, choose Stanolind Aviation products to protect their great Wasp and Hornet engines against friction.

The determining factors resulting in this choice were: Quality of Oil and Specialized Lubricating Service.

You may not be interested in airplanes but you gain the advantages to be derived from the work of these lubrication specialists when you use

POLARINE -ISO-VIS

They are exceptional motor oils that hold up under the most trying conditions. They are both sturdy and rich. They maintain protecting cushions of oil on all bearing surfaces. They make the engine run smoothly and keep it from wearing out.

Polarine is effective and economical. The Standard Oil Company has kept it abreast of developments and recommends it to you to give maximum lubrication at minimum cost. Use Polarine and drain the crankcase every 500 miles.

Iso=Vis is the most advanced of motor oils because it will not thin out and because it wears and wears—frequent draining of crankcase is not necessary. Motorists drive 1,000 to 2,000 miles without changing Iso=Vis and every bearing is lubricated correctly on the way.

Use either Polarine or Iso=Vis. You'll save yourself worry and trouble. You'll save your money. You'll save your car. The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) recommends both Polarine and Iso=Vis. Buy the grade for your car.

THE PEDDLER.

Every small city, and many of the big ones, are infested with a species of salesman that prey on the public. From time to time there is a report that a salesman collects from his gullible customer part of the total cost of the merchandise, the balance to be paid to the postman when the goods arrive—then when the goods fail to arrive many report the case to officials who do their best to apprehend the culprits at a big cost to the county and the state.

More often the victims swallow their pride and say nothing rather than face the ridicule of their friends. Thousands of dollars are mislaid yearly from the trusting public who momentarily forget that the smooth salesman does not pay a cent of taxes to their city, to their schools, to their improvements, or to anything that helps build a city.

There are salesmen who have an established place in the community. These men are good citizens and deal fairly. They are not to be classed with the fly-by-night gentry who are here today and gone with your money tomorrow.

The merchant who lives in your town can and will do better by you than any of these slickers who skip from town to town, sometimes just one skip ahead of the sheriff. Your merchant, nine times out of ten, sells you a better grade of merchandise for the same amount of money and many-a-time waits on you thirty or sixty days for his money just to be accommodating.

Next time one of these salesmen approaches you just stop and think and ask him what he has ever done for this community and what amount of his profit will be left here. Compare him to the merchant who has helped to build your schools, your churches, your homes, your business and your improvements. Then and then only, comes the realization that "THE DOLLAR SPENT AT HOME OFTEN COMES BACK TO YOU."

STATE-WIDE CAR TEST MAY 10 TO JUNE 30

Thorough Inspection of Brakes, Lights and Steering Gear.

A statewide car test, sponsored by Michigan Safety Council, will take place during the 51 days from May 10 to June 30. This test will include all automotive vehicles in Michigan, which will be inspected for safety equipment including brakes, lights, steering and sound signals.

In conducting this second great safety campaign within a period of one year it is the purpose of the safety council to encourage civilian interest and influence in promoting the test in connection with traffic departments and officials in every community in the state.

A campaign of education on safe driving will be a part of the safety council's plans, stressing the tremendous cost in human life and financial destruction of automotive equipment through carelessness in operating automobiles upon the streets and highways of Michigan.

Last year's test revealed that approximately every fourth car on the road was defective. During that campaign, which admittedly was pioneering and experimental, a total of 78.9 of inspectable cars were inspected. By lengthening the duration of the test this year it is hoped that every bit of automotive equipment in the state may be brought under inspection.

AL ROLLINS GETS POST IN ENGLAND

Goes As Special Advertising Contact Man for Largest Agency in World.

Al Rollins, who, until three and a half years ago was employed in the Herald Times plant, Gaylord, as a printer, and two years ago a member of the Courier crew, leave for England May 12 to represent the largest advertising agency in the world, the Campbell-Ewald Co., of Detroit, to study advertising conditions there. He will remain two years, according to present plans of the company.

We like to draw a moral from Al's progress. When he left here he went to Ferris Institute for two terms to study business. Following that he completed the Pace-Davis course in advertising and then started work for the Iron County News. Since that time he has held several positions, as he stated, to get the different angles of advertising.

He has been employed on the Grand Rapids Press, the Northwestern Weekly of Grand Rapids, then branched out in specialized work, taking an advertising position with the J. L. Hudson Co., of Detroit, where he had charge of the home furnishings department. From there he went to Chase's Department store at Pontiac, and while on this job, got in touch with Campbell-Ewald Co.

Al is one of six men sent out to foreign countries by the company. Some are going to Japan, China, France, and other places.

In talking with him about his work, Al said, "Believe me, it wasn't all easy. I haven't had time to chase around much. When there was time, I went to night school at every opportunity. There has been scarcely a night for three years that I have not been doing research work, and studying at home or in school. I don't know it all, but I think I am now in a position where I can appreciate and assimilate new ideas and thoughts."

Everyone here knows Al. He is just an ordinary fellow, but of all the pleasures that other fellows had, but he had a vision of something better and went after it. He has been enjoying himself, but has not wasted all his spare time. Of course he has been fortunate in getting where he is in so short a time, but that simply goes to show that it pays to be ready for the higher job—Gaylord Times.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SOCIETY

Sunday service, 10:45 a. m.
Subject: "Adam and Fallen Man."
Wednesday evening service, 7:15 p. m., first Wednesday in the month only.

"Everlasting Punishment" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches on Sunday, May 5.

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon was the following from the Bible: "Afterward Jesus findeth him in the temple, and said unto him, behold, thou art made whole: sin no more, lest a worse thing come unto thee." (John 5:14).

The lesson-sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Divine Science adjusts the balance as Jesus adjusted it. Science removes the penalty only by first removing the sin which incurs the penalty. This is my sense of divine pardon, which I understand to mean God's method of destroying sin." (p. 40).

BAPTIST CHURCH

Charlevoix Public School Notes

Elementary News.

A grade opera, "On a Midsummer's Day," will be presented in the school auditorium Friday night of this week, at 8:00 o'clock.

This program is free to the public, and we hope to have a large audience.

Instead of the regular matinee performance, there will be a grade assembly Friday morning at 8:45 o'clock for the children of the elementary and junior high schools. All friends of the school who find it quite impossible to attend the evening presentation, are cordially invited to the assembly.

County Normal Notes.

The County Normal as a whole wishes to thank very sincerely Mr. Palmer, Mr. Otterbein, Miss Biggs and Miss Griffin for furnishing cars for the trip to Mt. Pleasant.

Mrs. McGarry taught in the Training Room during the absence of Mrs. Dick, the training teacher, and the student teachers, who went to Mt. Pleasant.

The teachers in charge of house-keeping in the Normal room, Miss Straw, Miss Ellis and Miss Bogart, are planning a very appropriate Mother's Day program for this week.

The student teachers are all very interested in the "Township Days" now being held in the county. Each teacher gets one chance to go to some township to help judge the exhibits.

To all former Charlevoix County Normal graduates:

Remember the Alumni Banquet, June 1st.

Don't forget to send in your dollar before May 16, the 1st!

A large attendance is desired.

To the Freshmen.

In place of the regular quotation for the week the editor has substituted a few lines in memory of the Freshman class of this year.

There is a place in Charlevoix. A place of grief, a place of joy. Where plans are laid and men are made.

And superstitions melt and fade.

Let every freshman

Revere this place in Charlevoix.

Where Red and White will top the night.

And point the wandered bright.

Can You Tell Your Future?

The Ancient History students are studying astrology, or human destiny told by the stars. By searching through almanacs and other books they have been able to find their future and they plan to make booklets containing this material. It is of interest to trace the origin of this early science to the Egyptians, Babylonians, Chaldeans, Greeks and Romans. The subject of astrology was practically the only known science taught in medieval universities. Astrology is still popular with many people and we look upon this type of science as the foolish sister of astronomy.

Can You Feature the Freshmen?

Stan Heise worrying over graduation?

Marion Smith as a ballet dancer?

Norman Aice as Rudolph Valentino the second?

Ruby Supernaw as the screen vamp?

Franklin Curtis as a heavyweight wrestler?

Margaret Smith as the "first lady of the land?"

Joe Arvilla as a sentimental poet?

Kathleen McCall dieting?

Clarence Smith bashful?

Mary Margaret Orlovski "express-simless"?

Lila McMillan a journalist?

Typical of a Freshman.

The teacher asked several of her freshmen pupils to bring some article to class to illustrate songs. One pupil brought an apple, which was to signify "In the Shade of the Old Apple Tree," another brought a banana, which immediately brought to mind, "We Have No Bananas Today," and the third lay brought a whip to show, "Thanks For the Buggy Ride."—The Michigan Farmer.

Ancient History.

The classes in Ancient History are engaged in making rose windows and Miss Keller has received some very handsome ones. Marion Smith, Geo. McKinzie, Dan Geneit and Lila Van-Dusen handed in, exceptionally good ones, although all of them showed originality and touches of beauty.

General News.

The Junior play, "All-of-a-Sudden Peggy," which is to be given in the high school auditorium is expected to be a great success. The cast have been working very hard and faithfully under the direction of Miss Hood and Mrs. McKinley. A big crowd is hoped for.

The band boys returned from Lansing last Saturday after attending the State Band Tournament and the state band tournament and winning sixth place.

Graduation is near at hand and the seniors are scurrying around to get everything in order for the big event. It only happens once in a life time.

A Senior's Viewpoint of the Freshman Class.

Viewing the freshman class of this year and then reflecting on the freshman class of three years ago it is beyond the shadow of the slightest doubt that the class of 1929 is doing. Among the freshmen there are several members of the high school band, members of the city band, promising basketball and football material, and real students.

The Freshman party which was held in the gymnasium Thursday evening, April 25, proved to be great success.

The party progressed according to the program which had been planned by the committee, and the evening started with a game which supplied the people with partners for the Grand March.

Supper was then served, being all that one could ask for, having some old favorites which everyone enjoyed to the utmost. After supper an attempt was made to square dance, also round dancing, and games were played. A specialty was put on by the entertainment committee which consisted of a farce comedy entitled, "The Supreme Sacrifice." Chief Mud-in-the-Face, and Chief Hole-in-the-Breeches, receiving honorable mention. A pleasant ten minutes was spent while the play progressed.

May Orlovski also favored us with a specialty, being a clever little song, this was followed by another song by Stan Curtis and Joseph Arvilla entitled, "The Gay Cavalero." The party came to a close and everyone could truthfully declare that it was one of the best times they ever had had.

AT THE MOVIES

Actress Must Shriek in This Silent Picture.

What, no shrieks? Edlie Sutherland, film director, was confounded.

Given Lee, youthful featured player, couldn't even give vent to a healthy cee-ee-ek!

Cast in the part of a hysterical wife in "The Baby Cyclone," Miss Lee was supposed to yell her way in and out of screaming situations.

"But I can't scream!" she protested.

Lew Cody and Aileen Pringle, co-stars in the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, went through an ear-splitting routine of howls, shouts and yells but still Miss Lee couldn't muster up any vocal spasms of terror.

"The Baby Cyclone," made from George M. Cohan's great stage hit, opens Wednesday at the Palace theatre.

Filming "Wings" Proved "Anything Can Be Done."

Someone said "it couldn't be done." Mr. Someone Else disagreed. The result was "WINGS," Paramount's great spectacle of the air, which opens at the Palace Theatre next Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

But it wasn't easy. It was a new field and here are a few of the things Mr. Someone Else had to go through in order to win his point.

The first essential was a story. It came from the pen of John Monk Saunders, one of the better-known authors of the day and an instructor of aviation during the war.

Secondly, the problem of overcoming the slowness so typical of air productions of the past.

Then weeks of preparation, the selection of localities and the consideration of candidates for the cast. Nearly 600 pilots were interviewed.

Thirty of the younger leading men in Hollywood took tests.

Produce and Art.

The hen remarked to the muley cow As she cackled her daily lay (That is the hen cackled). It's funny how

I'm good for an egg a day.

I'm a fool to do it, for what do I get?

My food and my lodging—why

The puddle gets that; he's the household pet

And has never laid a single egg yet—

No even when eggs are high.

But the muley cow remarked to the hen

As she masticated her cud

(That is the cow did.) Well, what then?

You quit and your name is mud.

I'm good for eight gallons of milk a day

And I'm given my stable and grub

The parrot gets that much, anyway

All she can gobble and what does she pay?

Not a dribble of milk, the dolt!

But the hired man remarked to the pair

"You get all that's coming to you;

The puddle does tricks and the parrot

"kin swear

And that's better nor you kin do.

You're necessary but what's the use

O' bewailing your daily part?

You're burgoise; workin' your own expense

You can't do nothin' but just produce;

What them fellers does is art!"

See why Nash is lower!

ON the basis of quality, the Nash "400" should cost more than other cars in its competitive field. It actually costs less!

Nash engineers—one of the industry's outstanding engineering organizations—have created a finer motor car. They have developed the high-compression, 7-bearing motor to its highest point of perfection and power. The exclusive Nash outboard mounting of hydraulic shock absorbers doubles their effectiveness and creates supreme riding ease. And here is the "world's easiest driving control," in this new and finer motor car.

These are but a few of many "400" features of superiority.

Why then, is the Nash "400" lower priced?

Here is the explanation. Every Nash "400" is now factory-equipped with the accessories, purchased at factory savings and included in the factory price of the car. Bumpers, shock absorbers, spare tire lock and tire cover come with the car and are not added later as "extras," at retail prices.

You will find some dealers (not Nash dealers) charging as much as $50 or $60 extra for bumpers alone.

Compare the delivered, fully equipped price of any Nash "400" with the delivered, fully equipped prices of competitive cars. You'll see the saving!

ARTHUR CLEMENT TAKEN BY DEATH

DIED APRIL 27 AT HOME IN JOLIET, ILLINOIS.

Had Been Summer Resident of
Charlevoix Many Years and
Active on Belvedere Resort.

The following obituary of Arthur C. Clement, well known summer resorter who died at his home in Joliet, Illinois, on Saturday, April 27, was taken from the Joliet Sunday Herald, issue of April 28, brought to the Courier by Roy Ranger, a long-time close acquaintance of the Clement family, who returned last Thursday from attending the funeral:

Arthur C. Clement, 77 years old, retired attorney, died 11 o'clock last night in his home at Campbell and Clement streets, after a month's illness.

Mr. Clement had spent the winter in Florida and a week ago returned to Joliet in ill health.

Born in Joliet, January 16, 1852, in the first frame house built in this city, the son of Charles Clement, an early settler. The elder Clement, with Allen and Wilcox, in 1839 began the publication of the Joliet Courier in Merchants Row on North Bluff street.

The Courier became the Signal, True Democrat, Republican, Record, Sun, News, Herald and finally the Herald-News, an unbroken line of publication since 1839.

The first issue of the Courier was long a cherished possession of Arthur C. Clement.

Mr. Clement was taken by his parents to Chester, New Hampshire, on their removal from Joliet in the fifties and prior to his tenth year was a student in the public schools there. Later he returned to Joliet and resumed his studies in the schools here. His collegiate work was done in Cornell university, in which he matriculated in 1868, being graduated in 1872 with a bachelor of science degree.

As a student in the office of Olm and Phelps, Joliet attorneys, he began preparation for the practice of law and afterward spent a year in the Chicago College of Law, being admitted to the bar at Mt. Vernon, Ill., in 1875.

Locating in Joliet, Mr. Clement was a member of the law firm of Phelps and Clement until 1878, when, at his father's death, he became administrator of the estate and continued the law business which his father organized. In 1885 the firm of Clement and Oliver was organized, having an existence until 1891, after which Mr. Clement continued in business alone for some years.

In 1897 Mr. Clement formed a partnership with his brother-in-law, Samuel D. Chace, which continued until 1903. Since that time he has been engaged in the management of his own affairs.

Mr. Clement contributed in substantial measure to the improvement and progress of Joliet through the erection of buildings, including the Clement block, now the site of the Will County National Bank.

Mr. Clement was also one of the sponsors of Silver Cross hospital, serving as president at the time of the erection of its building.

He was married in Auburn, N. Y., to Miss Georgia Smith, a daughter of Alfred Smith, a prominent resident of that city. Mrs. Clement died some years ago. He later married Miss Mae Eaton of Joliet, Ill., who died April 25, 1926.

Surviving Mr. Clement are a son, Charles A. Clement; and one daughter, Mrs. August Belzner, also three grandchildren.

The funeral will be held from the home at 2:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. Burial in Elmhurst. The family has requested friends to omit flowers.

HAYES TOWNSHIP TO HAVE NEW TOWN HALL

Proposition to Change Location
Carried at Special Election.

With a large representation of voters at the polls of a special election in Hayes township Tuesday, the proposition to change the location of the present town hall and raise $1,000 for the construction of a new town hall carried by a majority of 48 votes.

The proposition last April 1 when a spring blizzard kept many voters away from the polls. It was an east side and west side proposition, and those living near the old hall went to the polls when those from the west side could not get there and voted the proposition down. The new location is at Burgess and we understand work of building will be started at once.

ford for Charlevoix, they served the warrant, placed the four under arrest and brought them to the county jail here, arriving shortly before noon.

The quartette are now awaiting hearing, which will be held Thursday morning. Several other warrants are also out for members of the family and will be served. Two charge James Martin, the father, with illegal netting on Gull Island Reef last fall and fishing without boys. The boys are also implicated. Other warrants are out for a variety of offenses and it is intimated the affair will be brought to a climax now "while the iron is hot." State Troopers Robert McGuire and C. E. VanBlunkens, who returned with the prisoners Wednesday, stated their orders were to teach the Martins respect for the law now that they have the "ball rolling."

The family have been a source of trouble to both county and state conservation officers for many years. Other residents on Beaver Island are not in the least in sympathy with the group and are taking no little satisfaction in seeing the trouble-makers brought to justice.

HILTON SCHOOL.

The sixth grade are making a geography booklet.

Joseph Pavlik was absent from school Monday, to help do the spring work.

We have some new borders for our boards representing the spring months.

Charles Peck, our third grader, started reading from his new reader this week.

We are all working hard preparing for examinations and getting ready for township day.

The seventh grade have finished their geography notebooks ready to take examinations.

We all enjoy our clean curtains very much, they surely add much to the appearance of our room.

Several from Hilton attended the program at Barnard last Friday evening and had the usual good time.

Miss Webster brought us a variety of magazines for our reading table last week. We find them very interesting.

We have eight new plants this spring to help decorate our room, contributed by the Rumisek girls, Lela Savara, Elizabeth Pavlik and Mrs. Henry Hilton.

Don't forget the Closing Day program at Hilton school, Wednesday evening, May 22, beginning at 8:00 o'clock standard time. Everybody welcome. Come and see us act. This will be the last you will hear from us until next fall.

We all enjoyed our Achievement Day and Patron's meeting last Wednesday very much. The club work was judged in the morning by Miss Wixson, the state club leader. Elsie Rumisek was placed first. We all congratulated her. The seventh and eighth grade gave a pageant consisting of three scenes, the home, the school, and the community, of modern rural life. After this lunch was served, and then Mr. Palmer gave us an interesting talk on "The Value of Club Work in the Rural School."

MARTINS PAY UP FINES AND COSTS

CASES DISPOSED OF AT SPECIAL COURT SESSION SAT.

Judgment, Interference Fines and Costs and Game Law Violations Were Settled.

A pack of troubles which descended in rapid succession last week upon the James Martin family from St. James, Beaver Island, were settled in an equally expedient manner at a special session of circuit court last Saturday afternoon before Judge Parn C. Gilbert, of Traverse City.

From a standpoint of law enforcement, the outcome of the Martin case has given state police, conservation officers and county officials considerable satisfaction. Acting under an erroneous belief regarding their rights on the lakes, the Martins became involved in numerous law violations, and backed up their supposed rights almost to the point of defiance of law and officers. The final outcome was the seizure of their fish tag last week and their arrest for resistance.

During a brief stay in the county jail here, Mrs. Martin and her three sons, Charles, John and Wilbur, were given a bit of good, sound advice which evidently dispelled their views along certain lines. They were released under bond Wednesday afternoon and Saturday appeared before Judge Gilbert, pleaded guilty to charges against them, and are now back at their home.

The judgment of $1,001 and costs of $131.30 given by Judge Leland W. Carr of the Ingham county circuit court in favor of the state conservation department was settled. Mrs. Martin and son, Charles, John and Wilbur were fined $100 and costs of $50 each on the interference charges. James Martin, the father, was sentenced to pay a fine of $25 and costs of $25 each on two charges of violation of the commercial fishing laws. The court ordered they be placed on probation until the May, 1930, term of court.

County Game Warden Henry Fike announced the arrest this week of two men for illegal "snagging" on Deer creek near East Jordan, and another party for spearing on Loch creek. The latter paid a fine of $5 and costs of $4.95.

SUNDAY SCHOOL RALLY HELD AT NORWOOD

Large Attendance and Fine Program Featured Gathering.

The county Sunday school rally held at Norwood Tuesday was a great success both as to attendance and inspirational features.

There were visitors present representing ten schools, viz: Barnard M. E., Boyne City M. E., Boyne Falls M. E., Burgess Union, Charlevoix Baptist, Church of God, Congregational and Methodist East Jordan, Presbyterian and Mountain Union. The total attendance including the Norwood people was 131.

The first session opened with a song service and devotionals conducted by the pastor, Rev. Geo. P. Stanford. The topics discussed were: "The Sabbath and Modern Civilization," by Rev. Helmer and Rev. Sidebottom; "Teaching Religious Truth Through Bible Hero Stories," by Rev. Rauch; "Teaching Religious Truth Through Memory Work," by Miss Black; "The Bible's Appreciation of Farm Life," by Rev. Mattson.

A solo by Mrs. Stanford, a duet by Rev. and Mrs. Rauch and several selections by the Barnard band were the special musical numbers.

The Barnard Sunday school was awarded the pennant for having the largest percentage of its enrolled members present. Announcement was made that the presentation of awards for the best exhibits of primary and junior handwork had been deferred until the annual convention in the fall.

The next all-county Sunday school gathering will be a midsummer picnic, the date of which will be announced in the near future.

REV. PYE PREACHED HIS FAREWELL SERMON

Others Spoke in Appreciation of Mr. and Mrs. Pye's Work.

On Sunday evening the Church of God chapel was filled with members of the church and visiting friends who came to hear the farewell sermon of Rev. George H. Pye, who preached from Acts 20:28.

At the close of the sermon Mrs. Pye spoke a few words, and this was followed by Rev. B. G. Mattson of the Congregational church of this city. His talk was much appreciated, both by the members of the Church of God and visiting friends. Mrs. B. Saltonstall, president of County Council of Religious Education, spoke a few words in appreciation of Rev. and Mrs. Pye's work with that organization. Mrs. Rife, president of the W. C. T. U., also spoke a few words in behalf of the local Union. Rev. Mr. Howe, of Charlevoix, spoke of the work that Rev. and Mrs. Pye had done during the past two years.

Rev. and Mrs. Pye will leave in a few days for their new field of labor, in Virginia. They will visit a few friends on their way and also their son at Baltimore, Md.

OPERATIONS WILL START NEXT WEEK

RAILROAD TO CEMENT PLANT DEMANDS FIRST ATTENTION.

Equipment Enroute at Present Time and Work Will Commence Upon Its Arrival.

Next Monday or Tuesday will see a crew of men at work constructing the railroad spur from the Pere Marquette main line to the site of the new Newaygo Portland Cement company plant, according to Robt. F. Sloan of the Charlevoix Abstract & Engineering company, who will superintend the job.

Mr. Sloan has equipment enroute to Charlevoix at the present time. A large crane to be used is expected here the latter part of this week or the first of next week, and operations are contingent upon its arrival. A switch was connected from the Pere Marquette main line Monday. A large wash-out near the railroad junction will demand first attention and work will progress from there. Bridges are to be constructed over Barber and Stover creeks and concrete reinforced tile is enroute for the viaducts.

Additional property was acquired last week along the railroad right-of-way by the Newaygo interests. Included in the transfers were 42 acres from Mrs. C. K. Bellinger; 5 acres from A. C. Hansen; 10 acres from Ed. Swanson, and between 3 and 5 acres from James O'Brien. The additional property was necessary to straighten out sharp curves in the railroad spur.

Just when actual work of laying out the new plant will start is still uncertain. F. E. Smith, general superintendent of the Newaygo Portland cement company, who has been in charge of local operations, is expected back here sometime next week. J. B. John, another high official of the company is expected within the next two weeks, and it is thought preliminary operations will be started on his arrival.

Charlevoix business interests have taken on a decided note of optimism following definite announcement that the new plant would be built. This new industry certainly will be a welcomed addition.

W. L. ZERBIS BUYS BUTTARS PROPERTY

Transfer Is First Change of Ownership Since 1869.

By a recent real estate transfer handed through the Earl A. Young agency, the Buttars property at the corner of Mason and State streets was purchased by W. L. Zerbis, manager of the Charlevoix Auto Sales.

An interesting angle of the deal develops when it is known that this is the first time the property has changed hands. The late Archibald Buttars purchased the site in 1869 when Charlevoix was first platted. Mr. Zerbis plans to make extensive improvements on the house.

Chas. Beattie's ACRE of Pickles yielded $128.06 last year, averaging $10.67 for each of the 12 pickings. His highest picking was $20.61 Aug. 28th, and he's getting a nice acre ready for planting in June again this year. The Co-op. Office will give you a Charlevoix contract.—Adv. 2011.

SPAWN GATHER- ING COMPLETED

SEVERAL HUNDRED THOUSAND RAINBOW EGGS TAKEN.

Present Condition Indicates Good Hatch and Nice Planting of Fingerlings in Local Streams.

Charlevoix federal hatchery men, under the supervision of Superintendent Hoofnagle, completed the work of stripping rainbows for spawn on Boyne river last Thursday and have brought their traps and other equipment back to Charlevoix.

In spite of many difficulties encountered, the undertaking has been considered fairly successful. It is estimated several hundred thousand eggs were taken, and their present condition would indicate a good hatch. Those in charge of the work were confronted with many difficulties. The male fish could not be kept in the trap. They would cunningly burrow their way up the river. At other times, after they were in the trap, they would escape back down the river again. This difficulty was not experienced with the females.

A change in the spawning run was also quite apparent. In previous years the rainbow have gathered in large numbers below the power dam between Boyne City and Boyne Falls, but this year they did not go up the river so far and it was necessary to change the trap location to nearer the river mouth before any quantity of fish were taken. It has also been noted that an unprecedented heavy run of rainbows is on in McGeagh, Inwood and Antrim creeks from Lake Michigan, where in previous springs the fish have been few and scattered. This condition has kept game wardens busy day and night to guard these streams from encroachment from law violators. When on the spawning beds the big rainbows are lazy and listless, and it is a very easy matter to catch them during this period.

Several parties have been taken for illegal spearing. Ernest McElish and Eugene Smith, both of Albia, were recently arrested. The former paid fine and costs of $30.50 and the latter $15.50. A short time previous McElish was fined for shooting partridge out of season.

With the experience gained, hatchery men expect to gather a large amount of spawn next spring. An estimated 80 per cent hatch from the spawn now in the hatchery will make a nice planting of rainbows in the rivers and streams of this county.

NORTH SCHOOLS TRACK MEETING

PETOSKEY LED BY CLOSE MARGIN—BOYNE SECOND.

Rain Makes Time Slow But Men In Mile Flash to Record—Six Schools Score.

Petoskey won the annual Petoskey invitational track and field meet there Saturday by a bare point and a half over Boyne City, with East Jordan, Charlevoix, Mackinaw City and Alanson trailing in order named. The handsome trophy cup offered to the visiting school scoring the highest number of points went to the Boyne City team. Boyne is the class C title holders for the Northwestern Michigan regional meet at Cadillac, having won the championship there last year. Points recorded were: Petoskey 60½, Boyne City 59, East Jordan 19, Charlevoix 7, Mackinaw City 5½, Alanson 3.

Petoskey showed to good advantage throughout, scoring in every event and getting five first places, five seconds and tied with three others for all places in the high jump.

Last Jordan flashed out to win the 100-yard dash in 11.1 seconds, Quinn doing the trick. Van Heusen, Boyne, third, and Knowlton, Petoskey, fourth. In the 220-yard dash Quinn again showed his stuff; Tomkins, Boyne City, third, and Knowlton, Petoskey, fourth. In the 440 Rockwell, of Petoskey, hoisted the home stock with a win in 59.8 seconds with Tryon, Boyne City, right on his heels. Kilborn, of Petoskey, was third, and Lee, of East Jordan, fourth.

Run Fast Mile.

Arnold, of Charlevoix, captured the mile in 4:59.7 with Harmon, Petoskey, second; Casper, Petoskey, third, and Moore, Alanson, fourth. This and the relay were the only events in which Boyne failed to count. The time for the mile is considered exceptional considering the slow condition of the track. Many coaches and others at the meet expressed the belief that on a dry, fast track the two men would have just about set a Northern Michigan record.

The half-mile went to Barnes, of Petoskey, with Fox coming up strong and fresh. The time was two minutes, twenty-two seconds. Had there been another ten feet to go Fox would have won, Barnes having spent himself right at the start. Erfourth, of Petoskey, was third, and Erfourth, of Boyne City, was fourth.

The half-mile relay should have been about the prettiest event of its kind in Northern Michigan, having five entries, all quite well matched. But for the mixup at the first station the final outcome might have been different. Petoskey's men ran a beautiful race, with Knowlton, Herick and Wells making up the team. The time was one minute, forty-eight and seven-tenths seconds. East Jordan was second, Charlevoix, third, and Mackinaw City, fourth.

Boyne City started right in to pile up points in the field events. Tryon led in the pole vault, his figure being nine feet, one inch. Desy, Mackinaw City, and Tomkins, Boyne City, tied for second and third, and Dombrowski, Petoskey, captured fourth. Van Heusen, of Boyne, won the shot put with a toss of thirty-seven feet, seven and three-fourths inches. Tillotson, Petoskey, was second; Desy, Mackinaw, was third, and Fox,

STORMS CAUSE HEAVY DAMAGE

MICHIGAN BELL HAD 12,000 POLES DOWN THIS SPRING.

Damage Estimated Over Million Dollars From Storms March 6 and 31 and May 2.

Telephone lines in Michigan have been harder hit by wind and sleet storms this spring than in any year since 1922, it is stated by C. L. Johnson, manager for the Michigan Bell Telephone company in this area. Three unusually severe storms, occurring March 6, March 31, and May 2, broke and displaced more than 12,000 poles and a thousand miles of circuits of the Michigan Bell company, causing a total damage estimated at over a million dollars. Many of the smaller companies and rural co-operative lines also were hard hit, it is stated. The last storm struck before damage caused by that of March 31 had been repaired, and it may be two weeks before service can be restored fully to normal.

The circuits were broken and poles were toppled under the weight of heavy wind and sleet. Ice formed on the wires from one to three inches thick, during these storms.

The district most affected in last week's storm was within an area bounded roughly by lines drawn from Grand Rapids to Owosso, on the north, and from Lansing, Jackson, Kalamazoo and Dowagiac, to Niles, on the east and south. Telephone plant was damaged most seriously in Grattan, Elmdale, Alto, Clarksville, Corning, Belding, Greenville, Ionia, Saranac, Lowell, Woodland, Lake Odessa, Freepoint, Mulliken, Caledonia, Middleville, Hastings, Nashville, Vermontville, Scott, Galien, Alamo, Paw Paw, Lawton, Lawrence, Dowagiac, Cassopolis, Marcellus and Decatur.

Service in other sections of the state was affected to a lesser degree, by that storm. Twenty-nine Detroit long distance circuits and several important arteries in the Thumb area were broken. Principal among the latter were the Saginaw-Rad Axe, Reese-Ellton and Bad Axe-Harbor Beach long distance leads. Long distance service in that area was completely cut off, temporarily. East Tawas and communities to the north also were isolated. Service to East Tawas was restored very shortly after the storm, and circuits to points farther north have been re-established, to some extent. Ten emergency repair crews are working in the Thumb area.

Those towns that suffered the greatest damage in the March 31 storm, and where repairs are about completed, were: Schwaniga, Bay City, Auburn, Freeland, Elby, Had Axe, Midland, West Branch, St. Charles, Clair, Standish, Linwood, Birch Run, Roschubush, Coleman, Saginaw, Ann Arbor, Peck, Crossville, Port Huron, Grand Rapids, Grandville, Byron Center, Clarksville, Rockford, Ionia, Belding, Lowell, Greenville, Sumner, Big Rapids, Grant, Cedar Springs, Caledonia, Sana Lake, Sparata, Lake Odessa, Caledonia, Kent City, Adair, Marine, Dutton, James-town and Grattan.

The Michigan Bell has had 100 crews of telephone repairmen working on an emergency basis, night and day, to restore the service, both long distance and local. Ohio Bell, Indiana Bell and American Telephone & Telegraph company crews are assisting. President Ruch Forker of the Michigan Bell company visited the affected districts, and inspected the damage and directed the beginning of general restoration work, following the May 2 storm.

Restoration of service after each storm was gotten under way before the storm was more than a few hours old, and carloads of poles, wire, cable and other equipment were being headed toward the affected districts. Temporary circuits were established at all points, and arrangements to handle emergency calls were completed within a few hours.

Officials of the Michigan Bell announced that an adjustment of telephone bills would be made, as soon as possible, in cases of service interruption over its lines due to the storm, and requested that customers affected who do not receive adjustment notify the company.

The same Van shot the javelin one hundred twenty-two feet, six inches for first place, with Casper, Petoskey, second; Walker, Boyne, third; Hartlep, Boyne, fourth.

Four Good Jumpers.
In the running high jump four men tied for the places, Douglas Wells and Dombrowski, of Petoskey, and Tryon and Renssenger, of Boyne City, all being halted at four feet, ten inches. They divided the eleven points. In the running broad jump Quinn, of East Jordan, showed the way with eighteen feet, two and one-half inches. Morgan, Boyne, was second; Herick, Petoskey, third, and Renssenger, Boyne, fourth.

Clarence Christopher, of Petoskey, served as starter for the track events. R. J. Shaw, sporting goods representative, assisted as a track judge for this meet. Arthur Treloar and Walter J. MacMillan were in charge as managers, the former on the track and the latter in the field.

SAFETY TESTS START MAY 20

AUTOMOBILES MUST BE INSPECTED AND REPAIRED.

All Local Garages Are Inspection Stations—Drive Will Close On June 30th.

According to an announcement by the Michigan Safety Council, all automobiles will be inspected again this year to check up on their safety equipment. The drive starts Monday, May 20, and closes June 30.

In conformity with the program a year ago, all local general repair garages have been appointed inspection stations and will repair all makes of cars. Automobile dealers whose garages are appointed which are not "all-car" garages will not be expected to test any make of car excepting those which such dealers sell.

Corporations or large companies operating fleets of cars and who maintain their own repair garages may apply for and have such garages appointed inspection stations. When so appointed such garages may test, repair and certify their company cars only, reporting same on state blanks in the usual manner.

In a public bulletin issued by the Michigan Safety Council, all garages are urged to keep the campaign plan uniform for the whole state. Otherwise disintegration will set in. A warning is issued to keep clear of the experimenter, the "crank" and the kind that "knows how to do it 100 per cent right." The police are in charge and others may assist if the police ask them to.

Toward the campaign's close many illegally equipped cars will still be without stickers. Usually owners of such cars know that their brakes or lights are unlawful. Police should courteously check the car and, if found in violation after free test opportunity, the owner will be ticketed to meet for violation of the state vehicle law.

Charlevoix city and county officers are co-operating in the campaign. All car owners should visit one of the inspection stations and have their car checked over for faulty lights, brakes, etc. The service will be free, but owners must pay for repairs found to be necessary. When approved, cars will be marked with stickers.

Experienced Drivers Say

"it's the Only Tread that Really Holds the Road"

You bet there's a reason why old-timers behind the wheel tell you "The All-Weather is the only real non-skid tread."

And it's the reason why the All-Weather Tread has stood pat for a generation, while other tire makers have had to switch about, changing their treads, trying to find something half as good.

We can show you the three-fold reason. First, STOPPING AND STARTING TRACTION—due to the CENTER All-Weather diamonds. Second, CURVE TRACTION—due to EDGING the tread with All-Weather diamonds. Third, RUT TRACTION—due to the All-Weather diamonds going so far up the sidewalls.

You get MANY DOLLARS' WORTH MORE of safety against skidding or getting stuck in the mud with Goodyear All-Weathers—yet you don't pay a cent more!

FLASH THE LEAD DOG

By
George Marsh

Again the treeing on was spun in the animal's voice on the ridge. With a roar of rage Flash sprang to his feet, joining the three dogs in their challenge to the thing on there in the mysterious gloom.

"What's up, Gaspard?" mimicked the wailing Brock, throwing back his red bit-skin robe.

The halfbreed sat in his blankets with head tilted to the side, listening. "Is that a signal? The dogs've gone crazy?"

Rising, Gaspard pulled forward his head, his ears tense, strained. Brock noticed the rattle in his friend's hand.

The boy kicked out of his blankets. Because of their danger, in case of attack, they slept in their mocassins that they might without delay leap away from the firelight and into the protecting gloom.

"No, dat ees nothing, lynch howling—no signal. But dere ees something out dere beside lynch," said Gaspard. "We get away from dis tree!"

Thoroughly awake, now, Brock scrambled to his feet and, seizing his gun, joined his friend out in the dusk beyond the fire glow, where a hidden enemy could not find a target. From the timber rose the angry yelps of Yellow-Eye and Flash, hemming back and forth. At their trees, Silt-Ear and Kona added to the din.

"You think they're trying to stalk the camp—some of these people?" demanded Brock.

"I don't know. Queer thing! Dose dog not howl at lynch unless dey smell hem. Dey can't smell hem on dat ridge—de wind ees wrong."

"From the noise, the dogs haven't struck a trail—they're still beating around."

"No, dey get de wind ov something out de wind ees ver' light."

Then the two friends, holding to the indigo gloom of the thickest scrub, worked their way toward the excited dogs who were seeking a trail out near the lake shore. Shortly Gaspard and Brock stood in the shadow of a spruce thicket bordering the white lake lit by the ash-gray moon and swarming stars. In the timber somewhere below them rose the familiar yelps of Yellow-Eye and Flash, still beating about for a trail of the thing whose scent scared harassed their keen noses. Across the lake rose a long spruce ridge, purple with shadow under the glittering stars.

"There go Silt-Ear and Kona!" whispered Brock. "That cawbirds' too strong. They had to chew it to get away!"

"Ah-hah! We use weaker place next—look!" Gaspard suddenly pointed down the lake shore. From the coal-black shadows a gray blur streaked out over the starlit surface toward the opposite shore. Then, after a space, another shape bounded out over the ice, followed closely by a third. "By gar! Wolf!" muttered Gaspard. "Flash and Yellow-Eye find bees trail!"

Like a gra, wrath, out over the moon-bathed lake surface fled the timber wolf, followed by the heavier-built and slower huskies.

"So that was the trouble!" laughed Brock. "Golly, how he can travel! He's gaining every jump!"

With no stomach for a battle with the great beasts that so outnumbered him, the crafty timber wolf was running as only a wolf can run, as he headed for the forest across the lake. Then Silt-Ear and Kona reached the shore and joined the hunt.

"We'd better run in and get some sleep—the dogs'll be back soon. They know they can't run that ground-fighting down."

"Ah-hah! We get some sleep, and leave here before daylight. Suppose dose people got camp near here? Dey look for us, for sure."

The stars were still bright when the boys turned out of their blankets to cook breakfast. Curled near the camp, with noses in tails, four tired dogs slept after their futile pursuit of the flying ghost who had approached the previous night, lured by the smell of food.

CHAPTER XII

The Battle on the Carcajou

All the morning the dog-team traveled north. At noon the lake narrowed to its outlet and shortly the boys were following a ridge which paralleled a headwater branch of the Carcajou. But, to their surprise, on inspection, they found that the trail which followed the ice of this little river, had not been used in weeks. Still, the cautious Gaspard held to the timber, rather than travel the easy river road. Once seen from the hills, they could be easily ambushed from the shore, so the team held to the hard and circuitous going of the thick scrub.

All morning they had traveled under a mid-day sun, and in the early afternoon the north anuried its lead-lined banners of ice coming snow. In mid-afternoon, to avoid a circle of the shore, Gaspard had followed up the shoulder of a high ridge from which the valley of the stream opened before them for miles. They stopped to rest one dog, for even with the good going of the hard crust, the five hundred pound load of food, which would carry dogs and men through to April, made rugged handling on the hills.

While Gaspard smoked a pipe, Brock, curiously examined through his glasses the unknown country to the north. How long and great a river was this Carcajou which flowed into the bay to the northwest of Cape Henrietta Maria, no one in Hungry House or Ellavan had known. Whether they were now on one of its headwaters, neither he nor Gaspard was sure. Somewhere to the west of the Carcajou lay the watershed of the great Windst. This river they followed might swing to the west—might, for all they knew, be White water. But of one thing they were sure. The Cree who hunted this country knew the fate of Pierre Leclair, and to learn what that had been, was the sole object of this wild adventure.

Brock had swung the glasses far down the little valley, when suddenly, he exclaimed:

"By golly, Gaspard! There's a dog team traveling north on the river trail!"

The halfbreed sprang to his friend's side. Brock handed him the glasses. For a space, through the falling snow, Gaspard studied the black speck on the river trail. Then he returned the glasses.

"You keep on wid de dog," he said. "I go have a look at dat Cree."

With heart pounding with expectancy, Gaspard swung and slid and dodged down through the timber on his snowshoes, for in timber the crust is flake and seldom strong. At the river shore, the halfbreed abandoned all caution and slipping out of his shoes, took to the ice, for the team he followed was traveling at a trail at least a mile below him. Down stream ran the fearless son of Pierre Leclair through the fast thickening snow, rifle and snowshoes in his hands. At last he approached a sharp turn, sure that his quarry was near, cut directly up through a shoulder of high shore to obtain a view of the river below him. Hurrying through the scrub he looked down stream.

"By gar!" gasped the panting boy, his eyes widening in astonishment.

On the river ice, hardly three hundred yards below, two dogs lay in front of their sleds. In a group four men talked, their laughter clearly audible to the hunter watching from the thicket.

"He peev den traveling upstream," muttered Gaspard. Then the deepest eyes of the boy opened, as his lips framed the name: Gros-Pied?

Gros-Pied, Big-Foot, one of the team of the missing Pierre Leclair, had risen and stood shivering the air, as the heart of Leclair's son pounded in his chest. Yes, it was Gros-Pied. There was no dog marked like him, with that black head and that single white sock. He was in the team headed down river—good! But where he was, Gaspard was in danger from the keen noses of the huskies. He must move back and warn Brock. From where he lay he could kill or wound them all, before they got to their rifles on the sleds, but he wanted an unhurt prisoner. No, he would not back and find Brock; then, in the morning they would ambush the sled-banded south, with Gros-Pied, his father's dog.

The light was going fast as the snow thickened. Brock would already be making camp back in the timber, upstream. He must find him. Tomorrow they would have a prisoner, and then—

After four hours of blind search through the timber below the ridge where he had left Brock and the team, Gaspard saw the yellow glow of the fire.

At daylight six inches of new snow lay on the crust and, to the boys, one thing was clear. If they wished to overtake the Indian heading down river, they would have to abandon the safety of the timber and take the hazard of the river ice.

So Gaspard went ahead to the river, to reconnoiter, while Brock followed with the team. In a half hour, as the sun rose, lighting the forest, the halfbreed met Brock packing the new snow ahead of the toboggan.

"I saw dem start—tree, up-river; one, our man, go down-stream. Ben little piece you swing out to de ice and follow me. I go ahead, to head hem off. He got no load, he travel fast."

With a wave of the hand, Gaspard was gone.

Carrying his loaded rifle, Brock traveled ahead for a half hour, then angled out to the river, followed closely by Yellow-Eye and the team. The three men found upriver should-now be far on their way, he thought, as he looked out to the ice where the broken snow marked the passage of sleds since the fall of the night before. Stopping the team, Brock went to the cover of some shore willows and looked upstream. The freshly broken trail ran for a mile and disappeared behind a bend. They were miles away by this time, so returning, he drove his dogs down to the ice and out to the river trail.

With the start of over an hour the Indian in front of him would be far down stream. Gaspard would have to travel hard through the bush to head him off.

Brock was excited. At last they were in the enemy's country—getting some action. Any moment, now, things might happen. The safety of his friend gave him little concern. Gaspard had but one man to deal with—a man traveling with his gun cased in his sled. Gaspard would get his man, unhurt, without a fight. It was the safety of the dogs and the precious load of grub on the sled that occupied Brock's thoughts.

He had traveled for an hour, when, as he approached a sharp bend in the river, throwing the trail close to a shore, thick grown with scrub, like the last of a whip a premonition of danger flicked his nerves.

With a lurch, "Uaw, Yellow-Eye!" Brock swung the team to the opposite shore, and with a rough "Marche!" led them on the run into the scrub.

He had barely reached the cover of the spruce when the opposite shore roared with the explosion of rifles. A cut spruce twig fell on his shoulder. "I knew it!" gasped the crouching boy, white drawn to lose the dogs in a case of a rush over the ice.

Gripping the traces beside the trembling dogs, mystified by the shots from the opposite shore and the notions of their master, from his cover Brock watched the river ice. He had fooled the people in ambush—some! What would be their next move? For move they soon would.

If he cut the dogs loose, now, they would cross the river, only to meet a hail of lead. No, he must hold them—keep them with him, until he was rushed; if the Cree had the nerve to rush him. Then he'd cut the traces of Flash and Yellow-Eye and show these murderers how two Ungavacs could fight. And God help them, if the dogs reached them!

And Gaspard? Had he heard the shots? If he had he'd back-track on the run and his rifle would soon be singing. But suppose he traveled up the ice straight in to range of the Cree in the scrub?

Make no Mistake— there is only one RED CROWN ETHYL!

It is the gasoline that "knocks out that knock"—makes your car eager to get away—hungry for hills—and powerful in hard going.

There are a number of ethyl gasolines on the market but there is only one Red Crown Ethyl. It is made by combining proved, dependable Red Crown gasoline and Ethyl Brand Anti-knock Compound.

Red Crown Ethyl is sweet, clean and fast. All gums, sulphur compounds and other matter which might cause you endless trouble have been eliminated.

To rid gasoline of these harmful agents is expensive but it must be done. Their presence means corroded wrist pins and driving rods, etched cylinders and faulty pistons which call for expensive repairs.

You can buy cheap gasoline but can you afford to use it?

You'll never know what your car can do until you use Red Crown Ethyl. You can get it anywhere. It is sold at as low a price as you can afford to pay for an Ethyl gasoline.

UNDER THE DOME AT THE STATE CAPITOL.

Michigan's 55th legislature went home last week, after having laid on the desk of Gov. Fred W. Green, appropriations which point to a general property tax of some $22,000,000, the largest in the history of the state; a capital punishment bill; a state institutional building fund bill; a malt tax bill; and many other measures ranging in subject matter from sterilization of feeble-minded people, to the salaries of justices of the supreme court.

When the gavel of Lt. Gov. Dickinson, president of the senate, fell in the upper house, to be echoed by the resounding clump of the wooden mallet wielded by the sturdy hand of Rep. Fred R. Ming, speaker of the house, the time was 9:25 o'clock Wednesday night, May 8.

But with the arrival of the time when the legislators put on their hats and reached for timepieces or filled gas tanks to the top, the time also arrived for Governor Green to dip his pen into the gubernatorial ink well and proceed to slash away items in the huge appropriation bills dumped on his desk by the 132 legislators who filed out with decorum and quietude in marked contrast with the historic ribaldry which has marked previous sessions.

The tax levy probably won't be $22,000,000; the governor is almost sure to veto many items and reduce others in the appropriation measures. Last year's tentative levy was reduced from $27,000,000 to $20,500,000 by the governor.

The last week, or rather stub of a week, of the legislature, was a condensed review of the entire session, for it was then that important bills, long the subject of contention, and lesser bills thought buried in committees, were brought to the center of the stage for consideration which was rapid. Bills of weight and significance were rapped through the two houses with machine-gun celerity.

The last two days of the session were taken up almost entirely with the passage of the vital and highly important Hartman bill providing funds for the administration-sponsored plan for rehabilitation of state institutions. This measure was drafted for the program of construction and repair of state mental hospitals, educational institutions, prisons and a few miscellaneous items.

The history of the measure introduced by Rep. Gns. T. Hartman of Houghton, is a weary-long one, extending in all its intricacies, for nearly the entire length of the session. As originally introduced, it was a mill tax, providing for the levying of an eight-tenths of a mill tax on each dollar of taxable property in the state. The measure would have raised about $7,000,000 a year, or $28,000,000 in four years. It was in this form that the house of representatives passed the measure and sent it to the senate.

The senate finance committee re-wrote the measure, reporting it out as a straight appropriation bill, with about $3,000,000 cut out in the program for the first two years. The items in the Hartman bill for the last two years were untouched, in recognition of the fact that with the possible closing of the Green administration at the end of this term, the next administration could not be held to any appropriation promised by Governor Green. The senate passed the re-written bill, but the house spurned it, throwing it into conference. The differences between the two houses were not only technical but real, and in one instance, at least, resentment developed. This was in the rough treatment which the College of Mines at Houghton had received from the senate. The appropriation for this school, located in Representative Hartman's home town, was badly cut. It was restored in conference committee, however, and not until late Wednesday afternoon had both houses approved the measure.

Most startling of the final day's developments was passage of a malt tax measure, suddenly revived in senate taxation committee at the request of the governor who was pressed for means of reducing the property tax levy for the coming biennium. The measure, originally introduced by Rep. Charles H. Culver, Detroit, was brought from obscurity at a hurried session of the senate taxation committee and rolled through the upper house by a bare majority, getting a better margin in the house.

The malt tax provides for the collection of 25 cents a gallon of wort, malt extract and other fluids purchased for use in making home brew. The tax on malt will be five cents a pound. The measure was given immediate effect and little doubt exists but that it will be signed and enforced. The yield will be about $2,000,000 annually, which will reduce the property tax accordingly. When the house first passed the measure it called for a tax of two cents per pound for dry ingredients and two cents per gallon on the extracts.

Final passage of the Lennon death penalty bill, laid a death measure before the governor of this state, for the first time in more than 30 years. Sen. Peter B. Lennon, Genesee county, author of the measure, secured, by excellent missionary work, the passage of the measure which makes death mandatory following conviction of first degree murder, after conviction has been sustained and upheld by the state supreme court. Rep. John Espie, Eagle, was a tower of strength for the bill, also. Judges and juries would have no discretion once conviction is had.

Other important measures which were passed by the two houses of the legislature included creation of a permanent state commission to study the crime situation and codify criminal laws; the bill calling for the establishment of a state police radio broadcasting station at East Lansing; the measure prohibiting sale or use of fireworks in this state, save at supervised and public exhibitions; new hunting and fishing regulations; a new milk code, a potato grading bill; revision of the criminal code so as to remove liquor law offenses from the life penalty provisions of the code; increasing penalties for first offenses against the state's liquor laws; and many individual bills designed for the general purpose of making more difficult the way of the transgressor, or veto.

The measure from Rep. James S. McBride, Shiawassee county, calling for the appointment of a commission and endeavor to regulate the price of beans in Michigan, was tabled in the house, on the final day, and there left to expire. Several measure died on the table in both houses, during the session; scores await the governor's signature, or veto.

Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Rupert of Bloomington, Illinois, arrived Thursday to occupy their cottage south of the Belvedere club grounds for the summer. The Ruperts have been coming to Charlevoix for many years and are usually among the earliest arrivals.

Mr. and Mrs. Lisle Beaudoin, who have been wintering at Los Angeles, California, returned to Charlevoix Sunday. They made the trip by motor, accompanying Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Smith of Petoskey, who spent the winter there also. The party was nine days enroute.

Mr. and Mrs. Abonzo Powers were pleasantly surprised at their home on Belvedere avenue Wednesday evening when a party of 28 friends dropped in unexpectedly to remind them of their 40th wedding anniversary. A very pleasant evening of visiting and bridge was enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan C. Welch, who were expected here the latter part of last week, are now visiting for a short time with Mrs. Welch's sister, Mrs. Irene Edwards, of Buffalo, N. Y. They are expected in Charlevoix Thursday or Friday. Mr. Welch is private secretary of Andrew I. Creamer, manager of The Inn.

Miss Dorothy Hooker, student at Ypsilanti normal college, also Mrs. Ruby Ratz and daughter, of Flint, were week end guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Hooker. They returned Sunday afternoon in company with Harry Hooker, who will enter the university hospital at Ann Arbor for medical treatment.

Frank Welsh, owner of the Charlevoix Riding Academy, arrived Monday afternoon from Southern Pines, N. C., where he has had his winter headquarters. He was accompanied by A. W. Sankey, well known instructor, who will be associated with Mr. Welsh this summer. A string of 28 thoroughbred saddle horses were brought here for the summer.

Mrs. Julia Shrier, who has been spending the winter in Detroit with her daughter, Mrs. Nat Burney, has returned to her home here for the summer. She motored up with Mr. and Mrs. Burney. The former returned to Detroit Sunday afternoon, while Mrs. Burney will remain for a two week's visit with relatives and friends.

County Clerk George A. Roderick left Tuesday night by motor for Chicago, to arrange for the funeral of Mrs. Margaret Spencer, of Boyne City, for whom he has acted as guardian for some time. Mrs. Spencer died Monday at her Boyne City home and will be buried in Forest Park cemetery, Chicago, on Friday. Mr. Roderick expects to return home Saturday.

Andrew I. Creamer, manager of The Inn, Pere Marquette railway company summer hotel, arrived here Sunday afternoon from Southern Pines, N. C., for the summer. His assistant, William E. Flynn, came also, but was called away immediately to Rutland, Vermont, by the death of his brother-in-law. Mr. Flynn expects to return in about a week.

Mrs. Alish Reeman left Tuesday morning for Cadillac to attend the Grand Traverse district meeting of the Methodist Women's Missionary Society as a representative from the Charlevoix church. She was accompanied by Mrs. Martin Black and Mrs. Arthur Edwards. It costs very little to recondition a MODEL T FORD

THE Ford Motor Company is making a new car, but it is still proud of the Model T. It wants every owner of one of these cars to run it as long as possible at a minimum of trouble and expense.

Because of this policy and because of the investment that millions of motorists have in Model T cars, the Ford Motor Company will continue to supply parts as long as they are needed by Ford owners.

So that you may get the greatest use from your Model T, we suggest that you take it to the nearest Ford dealer and have him estimate on the cost of any replacement parts that may be necessary.

You will find this the economical thing to do because a small expenditure now will help to prevent costlier repairs later on, increase the value of the car, and give you thousands of miles of additional service.

For a labor charge of only $2.60 you can have your generator put in first-class condition. A new universal joint will be installed for a labor cost of $3. Overhauling the carburetor costs $1.50; steering gear, $3.50; radiator, $7.50. A complete overhauling of the rear axle assembly runs between $5.75 and $7 for labor. An average price of $22.50 covers the overhauling of the motor and transmission.

These prices are for labor only because the need and number of new parts depend on the condition of each car. The cost of these parts is low, however, because of the Ford policy of manufacturing and selling at a small margin of profit.

ROAD WILL CONNECT TRUNK LINES 27 AND 131

Contractor Carson Starts Work On Two Mile Extension.

Contractor Carson has started the work on the two mile extension of road eight miles east of Boyne Falls. This is the last two miles of county road required to connect trunk lines No. 27 and M-131. This road has been a rural free delivery route for many years. It connects Northwest, Michigan with points east and southeast. It follows from Boyne Falls the valley of the north branch of the Boyne river and makes use of an easy grade, past Mt. Pisgah and skirts for two miles the shores of Lake Louise (Thumb Lake) intersecting federal road 27 three miles north of Vanderbilt. This short cut to federal road has been visioned by hosts of motorists as a charming valley road for the summer months. This fine prospect cannot be exceeded for the eight months of mild weather unless it is the natural advantage it possesses for modifying the cold and humbling the winds of winter with its deep valleys and its high hills. It is entirely out of the dangerous and expensive Elmira Gaylord Snow belt as it is at the foot of the northern slope of the fearful "hog back" where the winds in winter fill the cuts with snow in an hour. It is hoped that the state will adopt this road as their own and christen it the extension of M-75. Experts claim one half of the expense which has been invested in attempting to keep M-32 open between Elmira and Gaylord during the winter would maintain the proposed new road and give the north country a year around highway.

English News.

The Sophomore English classes are studying figures of speech. Mrs. McKinley informed the students that if they did not memorize the definitions of similes, metaphors and other figures of speech, they would be required to remain after school.

Jokes.

Did you ever hear about the hyena that has eyes on only one side?

No, sir.

On the outside.

Miss Keller asked the history student to report on some Central American country. When Vernon Gimble was asked which one he wished to report on he said, "Italy."

Margaret Zietler was asked in Physiology class about what people ate 50 years ago. She replied, "Well, how should I know, I wasn't here."

Sophomore Diary.

The Sophomore class of 1928 consisted of 48 beautiful students (especially the boys). The majority of the class members prepare their lessons daily, taking what advice the teachers offer and love them in return, as much as they love their students.

The Sophomore girls deserve much credit for winning the class tournament. They fought stubbornly to the top with (Speedy Scott) the outstanding player.

Many parties were enjoyed throughout the year. Games and dancing were the usual form of entertainment for the evening.

Next year will be a happy one as the Sophomores will be no more, but Seniors.

Sophomore English Notes.

The second year English classes have been studying the lives, works, and characteristics of American poets of the nineteenth century. These include Emerson, Holmes, Whittier and Longfellow. Each member of the class took some stanza of "The Ladder of St. Augustine," by Longfellow, and wrote a theme, bringing out the idea that appeals to him.

Our school will close June 3. We are making plans for a picnic on that day.

The third and fourth grades are learning "Vacation Time" for language.

The first grade made posters to represent "Jack Be Nimble," last Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Schneider and family motored to Petoskey Saturday afternoon.

We were very glad to have Mr. Gregory bring us two new seats one day last week.

The seventh grade boys cleaned the school yard last Friday morning, and planted four lilac bushes.

Our four seventh grade boys are working very hard reviewing and getting ready for examinations.

AT THE MOVIES

Otto Brower Wins Spurs.

Otto Brower, who directed his first picture as a full fledged director with "Avalanche," a Zane Grey story with Jack Holt, gained so much praise for his work that he was immediately chosen to again direct Holt in "Sunset Pass," the latest Zane Grey novel to be filmed by Paramount. "Sunset Pass" will be shown at the Palace theatre Tuesday and Wednesday.

Brower's rise is the result of years of hard plugging. For the last four years, the young director has filled the position of assistant director on the Paramount "lot." It was while he was on a location trip with a company of players in 1927 that he got his first "break" and more important, made good at it.

New Team Wins Screen Laurels.

Joan Crawford and Nils Asther loom as a new team of screen lovers in "Dream of Love," which opens Saturday at the Palace theatre as a new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer feature. In this brilliant picturization of the old French play, "Adrienne Lecouvreur," Miss Crawford and Asther give the finest and most forceful performances of their careers and win new laurels as dramatic artists.

Fred Niblo, who directed the modernized version of the old play which Sarah Bernhardt made famous, surrounded the featured couple with an elaborate supporting cast, including Aileen Pringle, Carmel Myers, Warner Oland, and many others of note.

200,000 ATTEND CHICAGO OUT-DOOR SHOW

Charlevoix Exhibit Among Those Demanding Attention.

Earl A. Young, George Beeman and Clair Webster, who represented the city council and Charlevoix Association of Commerce at the Out-Door Exhibit held in the Coliseum, Chicago, throughout last week, returned Sunday with glowing reports relative to the success of the show.

The center piece of Charlevoix's booth display was the oil painting of a birdseye view of the city which has demanded so much attention in front of Mr. Young's office in past years. Ten other aeroplane views were arranged at the sides, with a large mounted mackinaw trout above. Decorations of evergreens and effective lighting heightened the attractiveness of the display.

Ten thousand maps, along with literature of individual local hotels were passed out. The estimated attendance at the show was over 200,000. While it is impossible to figure directly any benefits derived from the local display, it is certain Charlevoix will be visited by many this summer as a result of the exhibit.

John Hoffman's HALF ACRE of Pickles gave him $128.29 cash of $276.58 per acre last year. His highest picking was $344.02 Aug. 17th and only from the half acre. Your Co-op. Office will give you a Charlevoix contract.—Adv. 2011.

ANNUAL JUNIOR "HOP" AN EVENT THIS WEEK

Brilliant Affair to Be Held Friday Evening at Gym.

School traditions will be repeated Friday evening when the Charlevoix high school junior class entertain the graduating seniors at the annual J-Hop. The affair will be held this year in the gymnasium amid a profusion of decorations carrying out the colors of the two classes.

Besides the regular dance program, an innovation is being provided by the committee in charge, of entertainment through the addition of several feature dances which are to intersperse the dance numbers. Miss Elizabeth Hood, the junior class sponsor, has supervision of the "Hop," and the several student committees are working under her direction. Mr. and Mrs. Allen Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Wood and Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Harrington are the chaperons. Westfall's orchestra will furnish the music for the dance program and Mrs. A. J. Stelter and Wilma Bellinger are accompanists for the feature numbers.

In its early history, the "Hop" was largely a class affair. In recent years, however, the event has gradually increased in popularity until now it is the crowning social feature of the school year. Nearly three hundred invitations have been released, and this year's "Hop" will be no exception to others.

Right when a farmer's cream checks are low, the spot-cash Pickle money comes in mighty handy. Ask anyone at Co-op. Office for your contract.—Adv. 2011.

NORMAL TO CELEBRATE FOUNDING

ORGANIZE ALUMNI ASSOCIATION AT GATHERING JUNE 1.

Charlevoix County Normal One of Six in State With Continuous Twenty-five Year Record.

Pearl C. Bigge, principal of Charlevoix county normal, today announced plans for the celebration of the 25th anniversary of the founding of the normal in this county. The event will be marked by the first annual Alumni banquet to be served by the Pilgrim Circle at the Congregational church on the evening of Saturday, June 1, at 6:30 o'clock.

Charlevoix county normal was founded 25 years ago with the inauguration of the normal system in Michigan, and holds the distinction of being one of six normals in Michigan to have a continuous 25 year record.

The banquet June 1 has a dual purpose, that of celebrating the 25th anniversary and the organization of a permanent Charlevoix county Alumni Association. Invitations have been extended to 300 graduates, former teachers, commissioners and loyal alumni scattered throughout Michigan and as far east as West Point, N. Y., and west as far as Houston, Texas. The years of 1904, '5, '7, '10, '12, '18, '21, '22, '24, '25, '26, '27, '28 and 1929 are definitely represented.

Other interesting features are being planned for the gathering June 1, and the event promises to write a new chapter in the history of Charlevoix county normal. All graduates, teachers, commissioners and school board members are invited to get in touch with the local committee sponsoring the event.

CADILLAC WINS IN FIELD MEET

ENTERTAINING SCHOOL CHAMPION OF CLASS B.

Boys City High School Repeats to Cop Class C Honors; Charlevoix Won Mile Event.

The Northern Michigan Regional track meet held at Cadillac last Saturday was won by that city in Class B. This is the first time in 14 years that any other school but Petoskey has won first place in this class. Ludington was second, Traverse City third and Petoskey fourth, with Big Rapids fifth and Alpena in sixth place. The weather was extremely cold and some of the boys had difficulty in performing in their events. The crowd was very small in comparison to those usual on such occasions.

Boys in Class C.

Boys City came through in Class C to retain their title in Northern Michigan track for their class. Reed City was the only school to threaten and they fell seven points short of overtaking the Boys City. The points stood as follows at the end of the day: Boys City, 45 1-2; Reed City, 37; Hart, 22; East Jordan, 15; Ewart, 9 1-2; Mancelona, 6; Charlevoix, 5; Manton, 2.

Clarence Arnold, Charlevoix crack mile runner, placed first in the only event this school entered. Arnold was by far the class of the north in this event, and if weather conditions had been right at Cadillac, it was confidently expected he would hang up a new mark. Arnold will represent Charlevoix in the mile run at the state track meet to be held Saturday at East Lansing.

H. R. FOWLER RESIGNS. ED ALDERMANIC BERTH

State Ruling Prohibits Holding Two Elective Offices.

Horace R. Fowler, appointed alderman of the second ward to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Ernest Howe, has resigned. He also held the office of justice of the peace and his resignation resulted from a decision from the state attorney's office ruling that a person could hold but one elective office at a time.

Mr. Fowler was automatically disqualified as justice of the peace when he took his oath as alderman, and it is understood he will be re-appointed to the former office. If voters of the second ward desire their own choice of alderman to represent them on the council, it is necessary for a representative number to petition the council to accept their candidate, otherwise the mayor will make an appointment subject to the approval of the council.

WOOD BROTHERS CONTEST NOW ON LINE UP WITH SHAKESPEARE NATIONAL FISH CONTEST.

Local Prizes, District Gold Prize and National Awards Available to Charlevoix Anglers.

Elsewhere in this issue Wood Brothers, hardware are carrying an advertisement containing an announcement of more than ordinary interest to lovers of the rod and reel from this district.

They have lined up with the Shakespeare $10,000 national fishing contest, which opened April 1 and closes October 1, 1929. The contest has many unusual features. For instance, the entire United States is divided into districts, with Michigan as No. 1. There are 17 other districts. Every angler who enters a catch of one or more fish in this contest is entitled to a Shakespeare Silver-gold Flutter lure (or a Silver-gold Flutter lure, if so desired). The fish does not need to be a prize winner.

The contest is open to everyone—everywhere (Shakespeare company employees excepted). Any fish is eligible for entry which has been caught with a rod, reel and line in accordance with state laws. Fish caught from state, club, or private hatchery are not eligible, either for the Shakespeare district or world's record prizes. The United States has been divided into eighteen districts, and the Shakespeare company will give one grand prize of $25 in gold for the largest fish entered in each district. Several fine pieces of tackle are offered as local prizes on bass, brook trout, mackinaw trout, steel head or rainbow, pike, etc., and each fish entered in local competition are also eligible in the national contest, for district gold prize and national silver trophies.

Wood Brothers now have entry blanks on hand and are waiting for fish. Each entry receives a free price. The catch is weighed and measured, the blank filled out and sent to the Shakespeare company and placed on record. Who knows! You might win the local, district and national prize. Competition promises to be keen and no angler will want to miss this contest.

THE INN PREPARING FOR SEASON

PERE MARQUETTE HAS SEVERAL CREWS AT WORK.

Swing Bridge Being Repaired and Other Buildings Put in Shape For the Summer.

Preparations for the 1929 summer season at Charlevoix, which, at the present time has every promise of being the best in recent years, have been started in earnest.

A program of improvements to entail an expenditure of many thousands of dollars is in progress at the various hotels and resort clubs. The Pere Marquette Railway company has three large crews at work making preparations for the summer and improvements of a permanent nature on their Charlevoix holdings.

L. T. Ennes is foreman of a crew of seven men engaged in making repairs on the railroad swing bridge over the channels between Round Lake and Lake Charlevoix. A pile driver and crew is in charge of Engineer Earl Pater. The entire south approach is being practically rebuilt. The new piling, cross timbers and supports are being erected and the former open trestle work enclosed and replaced by a gravel and crushed rock roadbed. New driving mechanism and gearing will be installed and electric signals and derailleurs put in. Plans call for new piling and strengthening the protection pier running parallel to the channel beneath the bridge. The present repairs will put the bridge in condition for 25 years. George Higginson, Grand Rapids, Pere Marquette bridge and building superintendent, is supervising the work.

A crew of six carpenters under Foreman Bailey are working at the Inn, and when completed there will make repairs on the bathing pier, deck and other property. Another gang of painters in charge of Merian Crook are at work decorating The Inn inside and out and will carry their work on to other buildings. The crew are occupying a work train of eight cars located on the siding north of the station.

Andrew I. Creamer, manager of The Inn for 23 years, has returned from the south. With him are William E. Flynn, assistant manager, and Dan C. Welch, his private secretary, and the task of handling advertising reservations is in progress. A crew of workmen are putting the grounds in shape. The Inn opens this year on June 28, with the convention of Michigan State Bankers' Association. The usual opening date is between July 1 and 4. Three other conventions have been booked, including two railroad conventions and the national society. The Pere Marquette has launched a $25,000 newspaper advertising campaign in leading daily newspapers with The Inn prominently featured. In addition several pieces of attractive literature has been printed for circulation.

A wreath of flowers and fern formed the base of the cake. Delicious refreshments were served after which John Struthers made a most appropriate and impressive talk presenting the fortunate couple with a substantial purse of gold, a gift of all the guests assembled.

Mrs. O'Brien's brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Earnest Underwood of Nashua, New Hampshire, were in attendance.

POOLING TIME IS SLATED FOR WOOL

Nineteen Points Established, For Handling Car Lots.

As in several seasons previous, the Michigan State Farm Bureau is setting up pooling places throughout the heaviest wool producing sections of the state for accommodating those growers who plan on marketing their wool in the most orderly manner throughout the season. Nineteen such local pools are being established this year, the Farm Bureau announces. Exact dates for the pools have not been decided upon as yet but will be some time in June, it is expected.

Charlotte, Richland, Dowagiac, Climax, Milan, Jackson, Dexter, Brooklyn, Hillsdale, Union City, Quincy, Coldwater, Marcellus, Cassopolis, Hastings, Oxford, Imlay City, Davison and Mt. Pleasant are given as points where wool is to be loaded by the growers and shipped in car lots direct to the Ohio Wool Growers' association pool at Columbus, Ohio, where Michigan Farm Bureau poolers combine their holdings with those of Ohio and two or three other states.

That the 1929 general pool will probably be bigger than the pools of recent years is suggested by Farm Bureau wool officials who point to the fact that many independent local buyers of wool still hold their purchases of 1928 wool with no profitable offers from the big buyers of the East. In Ohio, it is found, at least 2,000,000 pounds of the 1928 clip is being held by these local buyers, some of whom have three or four thousand pounds on hand.

Carefully graded wool is bringing a price now which is considerably higher than the general country quotations and it is through the pools that practically all graded wool is sold to the big buyers.

NEW ESSEX SPEED-STER ON MARKET

New Car Is Moderate in Price With Additional Advantages.

The most recent addition to the 1929 line of the Hudson Motor Car Company is this flashy, ultra-stylish, special "eighty" speedster mounted on an Essex the Challenger chassis. The body, custom built by Hiddle and Sharp, is low and suggestive of the fastest of race cars. It is equipped with a folding windshield and there is a surprisingly large rumble seat in the rear deck. A top and side curtains are included as part of the standard equipment.

The car comes in a variety of colors, and all bright work is chromium plated as on all Greater Hudson and Essex the Challenger models.

On account of the extreme lightness of this type of body, and the low center of gravity found in this model, Hudson engineers have found it practicable to incorporate an over-drive, which makes it possible to combine safety with the tremendous speed which this car attains.

By means of special construction which makes it possible to lower the back of the seat to the floor, it is possible to convert the entire rear of the car into a very comfortable bed.

Experienced Drivers Say
"it's the Only Tread that Really Holds the Road"

You bet there's a reason why old-timers behind the wheel tell you "The All-Weather is the only real non-skid tread."

And it's the reason why the All-Weather Tread has stood pat for a generation, while other tire makers have had to switch about, changing their treads, trying to find something half as good.

We can show you the three-fold reason. First, STOPPING AND STARTING TRACTION—due to the CENTER All-Weather diamonds. Second, CURVE TRACTION—due to EDGING the tread with All-Weather diamonds. Third, RUT TRACTION—due to the All-Weather diamonds going so far up the sidewalls.

You get MANY DOLLARS' WORTH MORE of safety against skidding or getting stuck in the mud with Goodyear All-Weathers—yet you don't pay a cent more!

FLASH THE LEAD DOG

By George Marsh

Copyright by
The Fox Publishing Co. W.N.U.
SERVICE

Fearing his plunging dogs would snap their traces, Brock unhooked the leader and rear dog and lashed them to separate trees, within easy reach of his knife. Silt-Ear and Kona he left trailed to the heavy sled. Then with elbow on knee he flung his sights on the thicket across the stream and waited for the flash and blue vesp of smoke from the Cree's guns to give him a target. For he knew that the Indians would not hold their fire.

For a minute the boy held his sights fixed on the bushes—but no rifles touched their yellow flame from the green scrub. His eyebrows, notched in surprise, then, like a flash, he guessed the cause.

The Cree were not there! They had crossed the river behind the cover of the bend, below him, and were stalking him in his own shore. With a leap he reached Kona and Silt-Ear and cut them loose.

"Get 'em, Kona! Silt-Ear!" he cried and pointed down stream. Yelping madly the two dogs disappeared. "Down Yellow-Eye!" he barked and commanded, whirling his wrist with the cut traces of the lead dog. "Shut-up, Flash! Steady, Flash!" He reached the puppy, frenzied with excitement, cut him loose, and ripping his traces with the hand carrying the gun, he plunged inland from the river shore.

"When they come, I won't be here!" Brock rasped, through his teeth. Straight back into the thick spruce he forced the rushing and howling dogs. Reaching good cover, he halted, holding the dogs by sheer power alone. Then, suddenly from the direction of the river rose the brittle yelps of Silt-Ear and Kona. They had found the Cree! A rifle crashed—then another.

With a Muffled Snarl the Mighty Ungava Bore the Indian to the Snow Beneath Him.

With a sob, Brock muttered: "If they've shot 'em! They'll pay for it—pay for it!"

His wrists were raw with the plunging of the maddened hounds fast getting out of hand, when he caught a fleeting glimpse of a dark patch moving through the scrub, trailing the dogs. Brock fired. The dark spot in the distance vanished. Pounding a shell into the chamber of his 30.06, he cautiously advanced, while the great Ungava roared ahead through the forest to the succor of their comrades.

Brock found the trail of the Indian leading out to the river. He had missed.

Where was the pup? Had he heard the firing? Was he coming? Where was Gaspard?

Free of his dogs, Brock started a counter stalk of the men hunting him. Eyes strained, nerves taut, with cocked rifle he followed the trail. Again rifles crashed ahead of him, above the yelps of Flash and Yellow-Eye—and again. "They're shooting the dogs!"

Then Brock McGinn reached the battle in the brush. With a sob, he saw, through an opening fifty yards away, a great yellow and white body stretched on the snow.

"Yellow-Eye! They've got Yellow-Eye!" choked the boy, as he ran, searching the scrub for the smoke of a rifle.

With his rifle covering his advance, Brock approached to where the great dog lay stretched in the snow, head on forehead. Then the roving eyes of the boy saw a hooded figure swing from the branches of a spruce to the snow, a grimace of satisfaction wrinkling his swart face.

Dropping on a knee, Brock lined his sights as a knife flashed from the Cree's snarl and the killer of the king-dog leaped over the motionless shape. Then, as his forefinger curled on the trigger of his 30.06, Brock gasped.

Up from the snow leaped the yellow and white shape. The great hounds snarled on the exposed throat of the man bent forward. With a muffled snarl the mighty Ungava bore the Indian to the snow beneath him, trice—richer, the long tapers ripped and tore at the juncture of the stricken Cree whose knife slipped from nerveless fingers.

The staring eyes of the thrilled youth saw the massive head of Yellow-Eye lift from the mutilated shape. The jaws opened. A hoarse rumble vibrated in the deep throat. Then the green head fell flung on the snow.

Standing over him, Brock's eyes saw a great wound in the Ungava's side from which blood welled out to crimson the snow.

Damned in death, as in life, Yellow-Eye had joined his fathers.

"They'll pay for this, boy—pay!" sobbed the lad as he hurried on in search of Flash. Somewhere, heathen through the brush, Brock heard the voice of his dog. Cautiously now, his eyes swept the trees for a sniffer. Then he struck a trail which led toward the river.

Trailing from clump to clump of young growth, he followed. Suddenly a rifle cracked, and, swaying for an instant on his feet as his consciousness faded, Brock slowly crumpled in the snow.

Two or three dozen yards on his flank rose a low grant of satisfaction. A loaded shape pushed aside the spruce seedlings and approached the huddled mass on the snow. The sprawled figure did not move.

The Cree swiftly advanced. As he moved, the hammer of his rifle clicked as his thumb cocked it. He raised the gun, or shot again the one already stricken, when a movement in the scrub behind him drew his eyes.

Then through the air catapulted one hundred and forty pounds of gray dynamite to strike the surprised Indian and hurt him to the snow, as the wind tosses a leaf. With a scream the Cree reached for his knife as the white tangle of Flash dashed again and again in demoniac fury, for he had scented his master and was seeking him, woe to be reached them.

Frenzied with battle lust, the great beast ripped and tore at the throat of the helpless man. Then, leaving the stiffening body, crawled whimpering, to the silent master he loved.

Nuzzling the head back from Brock's forehead, Flash licked at the putrid furrow across a temple, his black nostrils quivering in a low yawn. But the gray-faced master made no response. The dog worked off a mitten and covered the limp hand with the carresses of a hot tongue. But the fingers did not move in answer. Then, shivering long at the inert body, Flash sat down and pointing his nose at the sky wailed out his despair and his grief.

After a space, the dog repeated his attempts to arouse the man he worshipped. Then, as if he knew that Brock had left him, lay close to the still shape, his head on the chest, faint eyes closed to slits, as he breathed his sorrow in low, quivering whimpers.

Later, the guardian of the dead suddenly rose, baring his great fangs in a warning snarl. Wide-eyed with fear, Gaspard found them.

"Brock! He's hurt, Flash!"

With a side glance at the body of the Indian in the snow, Gaspard hurried to his stricken friend, his gray face set with anxiety. But the bally hulk of Flash quietly barred his way.

"What do trouble, Flash? You hurt Gaspard hurt Brock?" And the half-breed stared apprehensively over the barrier of Flash's intervening bulk at the furrow in the forehead of the body in the snow, offering no violence, with no cumber of hostility, Flash stood stoically on guard, refusing to share the beloved body.

Gaspard was in a quandary. It was clear Brock had been shot in the head—how badly he could not tell. There was the path of the bullet across the temple. He must listen to his heart! And there stood Flash, barring the way—Flash who had given his life and allegiance to one man, forever.

Sitting down on the snow, Gaspard began to talk and croon to the dog whose heart lay with the still figure he guarded. For a long space the dog ignored him, but, in the end, with rumbling protest, suffered the friend of Brock to touch the still shape.

Then the eager ears of the half-breed listened at Brock's chest. Yes, the heart was beating! The gauge in the temple had not fractured the skull.

Swiftly building a fire, Gaspard returned from the river with a young Cree, his prisoner, whose hands were bound behind him with thong. And with them came Silt-Ear and Kona, whose white shoulder was smeared red from a flesh wound.

Leaving the Cree at the fire, Gaspard found the loaded sled on the shore, and brought it to the fire with the aid of the two dogs, while Flash stood guard beside his master.

Shortly, Brock was wrapped in blankets on a bough bed, beside the roaring fire fed by the Cree, whom Gaspard had released from his thong. In an hour the laboring half-breed had revived the circulation in Brock's inert body. Later, the boy, sniffling from a slight coldness, opened his eyes and swallowed the steaming cup of tea offered him. With a groan of relief Gaspard cried:

"Brock, you know me, Brock? Gaspard fix you all right, old partner! It ces all right now! He shoot close—dat Cree, but old Flash get 'em!"

As returning consciousness lit Brock's eyes, the hot tongue of the friend who had nursed him touched his cheek. Then with a throat rumble of contentment, the guardian of the sleeping Brock soothed back, head on paws, for his watch through the night.

The stars still blizzed dimly above the camp on the canyon and the violet dusk hung in the spruce, when the silence of the still sleeping forest was marred by a long wail. Then a second voice joined the first, and in chorus, a mournful thrumming lifted on the freezing air. Shortly, on near the shore, other voices joined the two back in the thicket.

"What do do dat for?" queried Gaspard, standing near the breakfast fire. "Stop, Flash! You badder Brock!" ordered the youth, but with ease pointed at the dim stars overhead, the great husky added his lamentations to those of his comrades.

"Once two dat dere; where ces Yellow-Eye?" muttered the half-breed, blind head listening to the familiar voices of Silt-Ear and Kona. "Hey you, Yellow-Eye!" he called.

But the yelp of the king-dog would never again answer the voice of Gaspard.

"Our lead-dog, I cannot hear him!" said Gaspard, in Cree, to the boy whom he was treating as a friend rather than an enemy. For the prisoner's hands were not bound and he squatted by the fire watching the flying pan. "I saw but three dogs here last night," replied the Cree. "Shall I go to the river and stop my team howling?"

"No." Then Gaspard's face suddenly sobered at a sunrise which chilled his heart. "I go see," he muttered, leaving the fire.

Beside the stiffened body of their old comrade of the trail, Gaspard found Silt-Ear and Kona mourning the dead in the manner of their breed. Near them, ignored, the Indian lay rigid in the snow.

"By gar! Yellow-Eye! Poor old Yellow-Eye!" muttered the boy, sadly shaking his head, as his eyes found the wound through which the life of the damsel king-dog had ebbed. "You mark! Look right—keep down, after he shot you! Brave old Yellow-Eye!" Gaspard knelt on the snow and, dropping his mitten, placed his hand on the great skull, with its bared fangs, and its slant-eyes glazed in death. "You were de good worker and de wise lead-dog—dat you die for Brock and Gaspard. I wish you planted rabbit in de Happy Hunting Ground—Yellow-Eye."

With difficulty the saddened boy drove Silt-Ear and Kona before him back to camp. Reaching the fire, he nodded to the Cree. "Shot?" he muttered huskily in the Indian's native tongue.

"Shot?" came a weak voice from the blankets. "What you say? Who's shot—not Flash?"

"You, poor old Yellow-Eye. Now you be still and sleep, Brock."

"De one-eye? Gaspard old Yellow-Eye. I saw. I saw. I saw. . . . Then the dogged Brock shoo."

FOR HUSBANDS ONLY

How much is a housewife worth?

A lady on a farm down in Michigan had been married about 40 years. One day someone came along and talked about the lack of opportunity to even and produce which confronts the ordinary housewife. The conversation went a little farther and finally some figures were worked out showing that this woman had actually done in 40 years of life on the farm. A small value was assigned to all of the different kinds of work that the housewife had undertaken.

The total reached the surprising amount of $137,000.

You say that this is astonishing. Figure it out for yourself. Give the housewife credit for all of the bread she has baked, at a very small sum for each loaf. Figure up a reasonable labor cost on all the pies, cakes and cookies and credit that total to her account. Put a little value on each bushel of potatoes or vegetables that she has prepared, on each can or jar of fruit that she has preserved.

Then turn to the items of housework. Give her credit at about a third of what you would need to pay others for such things as sweeping and dusting. Give her some credit for the beds she has made, the number of pieces of clothing she has washed and the number that she has ironed.

Nurses cost money when there is sickness in the family. Just give the wife and mother credit at a fifth of the usual compensation for the care of the sick. Count up the number of ill ones who have been nursed back to health. Count the nights that have been disturbed and the nights and days of constant vigilance and care.

When these things are roughly computed, then allow the wife and mother just a fraction of a cent for every child's fare that has been washed or head that has been combed.

All these things will amount to thousands of dollars. The wife has earned it—the husband has not paid it.

Then take the discussion out of the purely material. Place a price on the things that are priceless—the affectionate care which marks every act of labor and helpfulness. That is a thing which cannot be bought for money.

As we said—count all these things up. See the amount. Add and multiply. Make the results as definite as you wish them. Look the facts and figures in the face and do not blink.

The outcome of the venture will be this—you will have a greater appreciation of the wife.—Grand Rapids (Minn.) Herald-Review.

PRISON SCHOOLS.

Arthur D. Wood, commissioner of pardons and paroles, wants elementary schools established in Michigan prisons. He says that at present, aside from the small manual training school conducted at the Ionia reformatory, the prisons afford no educational facilities.

The recommendation seems sensible. The old idea of sending people to prison for punishment no longer is foremost in the public mind. Offenders are locked up because they menace the safety of society. To turn them loose, unchanged after a period of years is a dangerous experiment. Schooling of the proper kind would be an attempt at least on the part of the state to improve the prisoner's mental equipment and attitude.

Especially for that numerous group of prison inmates for whom the state has been unable to furnish employment, going to school surely would be better than idleness.

It would seem, also, that prison schools would afford exceptionally favorable opportunity for psychiatric observation and testing. It is generally understood that a certain percentage of persons are in prison because of defects rendering them dangerously antisocial. A competent psychiatrist studying such cases in their daily school contacts might render valuable service in the application of the parole law.—Detroit

Your MODEL T FORD is still a good car

THE Model T Ford led the motor industry for twenty years because of its sturdy worth, reliability and economy. Those same reasons continue to make it a good car.

As a matter of fact, nearly one-fourth of all the automobiles in use today are Model T Fords. Millions of them can be driven two, three and even five more years with reasonable care and proper replacements. Figures show that the average life is seven years.

Don't sacrifice your Model T, therefore, but take it to the Ford dealer and have him estimate on the cost of putting it in A1 shape. A very small expenditure may be the means of giving you thousands of miles of additional service.

For a labor charge of $20 to $25 you can have your motor and transmission completely overhauled. This price includes new bearings, reboring cylinders and any other work necessary. Parts are extra.

Valves can be ground and carbon removed for $3 to $4. The cost of tightening all main bearings is only $6. The labor charge for overhauling the front axle is $4.50 to $5—rear axle assembly, $5.75 to $7.

New universal joint will be installed for a labor charge of $3. Brake shoes relined for $1.50. Rear spring and perches relined for $1.75. The cost of overhauling the starting motor is $3. A labor charge of approximately $2.50 covers the overhauling of the generator.

It will pay you, therefore, to see your Ford dealer and have him put your Model T in good running order. By doing so you will protect and maintain the investment you have in your car and get months and years of reliable transportation at a very low cost per mile.

COMMUNICATION FROM THE PROTESTANT MINISTERS.

For some years it has been the custom for the three churches, Baptist, Methodist and Congregational to unite on the Sunday preceding Memorial Day for a union morning service to which the G. A. R., the American Legion and the Women's Relief Corps have been invited to attend in a body. This has necessitated the closing of the churches not entertaining the patriotic societies.

Memorial Day has become more and more felt that the Sunday service usually designated as Memorial service should have reference particularly to the message of consolation of the Christian religion to these families which have been bereaved, as well as to its special patriotic character for the nation. In view of this personal and family aspect of the service of the day it has been increasingly felt that a union service with the other churches closed did not give adequate opportunity for this pastoral ministry of consolation and also made it difficult to carry through an appropriate program for the other ministries of the churches, particularly the session of the Sunday school.

We have therefore taken the question up in friendly consultation with the officers of the patriotic bodies and have come to hearty agreement to adopt the following plan; namely, to have one church each year invite the patriotic bodies to worship at the Sunday morning service of Memorial Sunday, the other churches holding their own service at the same time.

For the coming Sunday therefore it is understood that this invitation is issued by the Congregational church for the patriotic bodies to be present and share a special memorial service and that the other churches will hold their own services at the same time at the usual hour, 10:30 a. m.

We hope that this plan will commend itself to all, especially as there is always such a hearty response to the general community observance of the national Memorial Day here in Charlevoix.

The railroads in Michigan and the state highway department are co-operating to conserve human life by reducing all hazards at grade crossings throughout the state.

As quickly as possible detailed descriptions of every grade crossing in the state, accompanied by photographs, will be in the hands of the highway department. From this detailed description the department and the railroads will be able to seek out dangerous spots and have them eliminated.

Whenever investigation of a grade crossing reveals a dangerous situation, signal lights will be installed. The railroads, which in recent years have reduced the losses of lives on their lines to a minimum, are anxious to protect the lives of travelers crossing their tracks.

The time is not far distant when only the criminally reckless will meet accidents at grade crossings. Both the railroads and the state highway department should be praised for the work they are undertaking.

JUNIOR HOP WAS A BRILLIANT AFFAIR

One Hundred Fifty Couples Present Friday Evening.

The Junior Hop, given for the graduating seniors at the gymnasium last Friday evening, goes on the records of school activities as the most colorful and successful event in years. More than 150 couples were present, including many from out of town.

The decoration scheme at the gymnasium was carried out in blue, gold and silver, the colors of the two classes. Crepe paper hung from a large square of lattice work in the center of the hall was carried to the balcony and then down to the side walls, forming a beautiful false ceiling. In the center of the lattice work was a large dome, inside of which colored electric bulbs threw a soft light over the dance floor. The stage, from which Weststaff's orchestra played, was decorated by draping paper from the ceiling to a wire across the back of the stage. Four eighth grade girls presided over the punch table, which was decorated tastefully in the same color scheme.

The dancing program was varied by three feature numbers. Janet Livingston and Marjorie Partridge gave the "Yankee Doodle" dance and "Chicken Reel" and Miss Janet the "Doll Dance." The grand march, led by Miss Fern Crandall and Harold Campbell, Harbor Springs, started at 12 o'clock. Favors of yellow and blue horns were given out, followed by the confetti and serpentine, also of yellow and blue.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Wood and Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Harrington were the chaperons. Mrs. and Mrs. Alonzo Powers and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Foster received guests at the door, and programs were distributed by two freshman girls and boys.

Committees in charge of the affair, headed by the class sponsor, Miss Elizabeth Hood, were: Decorations—Arlene Supernaw, chairman; Audrey Staley, Franklin Ross, Marguerite Gimble, Bill Brown, Billy O'Neill; program and invitation—Fern Crandall, chairman; Clara Kelderhouse, Rex Supernaw; music—Dorothy Withers, chairman; Bill Foster, Bonita Higman; refreshments—Doris Solomon, chairman; Alice Partridge, Eleanor Tumath.

FARMER REIMBURSED FOR FEEDING OF DEER

Sometime ago Frank Weber, publisher of the Montmorency County Tribune, called attention to the unusual number of deer in that county and to the manner in which William Klein residing in Rust township had fed thousands of deer all winter.

Mr. Weber's article secured wide publicity and attracted wide spread attention not only in the state but outside the state and he was the recipient of many letters.

Requests were made of the Conservation Department of the state that Mr. Klein be remembered for his expense in feeding the deer. This request was denied by the Conservation Department. Sportsmen around Hillman, however, raised a fund equal to that asked of the state and presented it to Mr. Klein last week.

Don't Let Your Community Make the Same Mistake

Within recent years many communities have made the mistake of paving their roads and streets at what they considered a "bargain price." The taxpayers thought they would save thousands of dollars. In many instances the maintenance has not only wiped out the hoped for saving, but has exceeded original cost. And in many cases also it has been necessary to build entirely new pavements—of permanent construction.

There are communities, however, which know the cheapest is not always the best. Many of these also built roads and streets several years ago. And they built for permanence with concrete.

These concrete pavements, built in accordance with approved standards of construction, are in as good condition today as when they were built.

Which of these communities will yours be?

"The Trail of '98"

with Dolores Del Rio, Ralph Forbes, Karl Dane, Harry Carey, Tully Marshall, Emily Fitzroy, Jenen Holtz, Russell Simpson, Cesare Grainva, George Cooper, John Down and Allyn Warren. "The Trail of '98" is a real epic of north magnificence and power of spectacle places it in front rank of world's great example of cinema art. What "The Covered Wagon" was to the west, "The Birth of a Nation" was to the south, "Way Down East" was to New England, is just what "The Trail of '98" is to the far North. It is only once in a while that film producers succeed in turning out a real epic. Not that they don't try—it's because there isn't enough material of the right kind to make many epics.

PLYMOUTH Looks Quality—Acts Quality —Is Quality

There are people to whom Plymouth's big attraction is its Chrysler-designed smartness.

Some people buy the full-size Plymouth largely because it is the largest and roomiest car to be had at any price.

To other people, the main reason for buying Plymouth is Plymouth's impressive power—its amazing pick-up, its unflinching stamina, its delightful smoothness and flexibility at all speeds.

Still other people choose Plymouth primarily because it is so safe to drive, with its perfect balance and stability, and the easy, positive control of its Chrysler weatherproof internal-expanding 4-wheel hydraulic brakes.

AT THE MOVIES

Gripping Picture Reveals China's Town's Tong Secrets.

Melodrama, action, mystery, suspense are collected in the great picture, "Chinatown Nights," which Paramount made from the story by Samuel Ornitz, well known authority on Chinese tongs of the United States. "Chinatown Nights" reveals the intimate, little known side of the Oriental underworld of the large cities of the United States and, into it, is woven a strange and absorbing romance.

An excellent cast of players, headed by Florence Vidor, Wallace Beery and Warner Oland, enacts this gripping drama which will feature the Palace theatre program for the two days of Thursday and Friday. William A. Wellman, the man who made such outstanding motion picture successes as "Wings," "Legion of the Condemned," "Beggars of Life," "Ladies of the Mob," directed this picture. The sets are actual replicas of noted scenes in New York's Chinatown, famed in recent history as the center of the fiercest tong wars.

The popular conception of the dancing girls in the great gambling casinos and saloons of the frozen north, at the time of the mad gold rush to the Klondike in 1898, is all wrong, according to Gracie Robinson, one of the two first white girls to reach Dawson City after the gold strike.

Gracie was a vaudeville performer and dancer at Juneau, Alaska, when word arrived that the creeks above Dawson were glittering with free gold. With another girl she joined a band of men taking the White Horse Pass into the Yukon.

Arriving at Dawson, she worked in the little theatre throughout the next year and was personally acquainted with practically all the place with the idea of making a fortune.

"The popular conception of the morals of the dance hall girls is all wrong," says Miss Robinson, who advised Director Clarence Brown during the filming of the big dance hall scenes in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "The Trail of '98," shown at the Palace Theatre Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

DRIVE WITH SAFETY.

Another statewide car test has been announced. In spite of safety campaigns, urging automobile owners and drivers to make "safe driving" a part of their daily ritual, it has been found by actual investigation that a large part of those owning and operating motor vehicles on the highways are careless to the extent of inviting accidents.

It would seem that any owner or driver of an automobile would as a matter of self preservation protect himself or herself with every safety requirement. Yet thousands of people drive every day knowing that their brakes are in poor condition, drive at night with insufficient lights, and when involved in a wreck on account of their own carelessness are inclined to blame everybody else but themselves.

A good application of old-fashioned everyday common sense would eliminate most of our accident troubles.

COMMISSIONER WOOD'S REPORT

Delving deep into "Cause and Prevention of Crime," Arthur D. Wood, commissioner of pardons and paroles, makes some startling and striking suggestions in connection with his biennial report recently sent to Governor Fred W. Green.

After more than two years in dealing directly and intimately with the criminal classes, he is convinced that

Michigan still has a long hard road to travel before success of any appreciable measure is reached in bringing about the reformation of those already convicted of crime, or in preventative methods to discourage others from taking up crime as a means of livelihood.

Commissioner Wood is convinced that many mistakes are being made in our present treatment of the criminal classes, that we are not giving them the individual attention these outlaws of society should have in bringing them back to good citizenship, and that many opportunities for correcting these ills are being overlooked.

In his report Commissioner Wood declares he would welcome a crime commission, composed of men especially trained to study the case of every person imprisoned for crime who would submit a report to his department that would form the basis for the release or detention for that particular individual.

He would have all offenders sentenced to Jackson prison for the first 30 days of their incarceration where they could be placed under scientific observation. Following this period they would be sent to the penal institution holding out the most hope of salvage.

In commenting on the different penal institutions Commissioner Wood recommends Marquette prison be reserved entirely for hardened criminals, Jackson for the less violent type, and Ionia for youthful offenders as well as need first termers.

He scores the present overcrowded condition of our prisons, their lack of equipment for teaching trades and promoting educational facilities. He condemns the dormitory system at Ionia and says it should be immediately be abolished and cell blocks substituted.

A thousand sermons could be written from the report of the commissioner, who after two years of intense study is still at a loss as to how our crime situation can best be handled, but who is convinced that in spite of our mistakes we will eventually find a way for salvaging more of this human driftwood.

SMALLEST IN TWENTY YEARS.

The farm population of the United States is the smallest in 20 years, according to the bureau of agriculture. Figures for January of this year show 27,511,000 people on farms. Compared to 32,000,000 of 1909—there is a considerable decrease.

No doubt, economics is the main factor in this human train from the rural to the urban districts. The white lights—better educational advantages—high wages—amusements—conveniences—all these have lured the people from the farm to the crowded cities.

Even though the agricultural conditions have been improved and there was a recent slackening in industrial employment, fact figures show a decrease of 188,000 in 1928 alone. There were 3,000,000 more people left the farms for the cities last year than there were people that left the cities for the farm.

Despite these figures—and despite the fact that every year the cities lure a few more from the country—there has been and there will always be a certain type of farmer that won't go to the city. The tall buildings stifle him; the noisy din of the locomotives presses on him from all sides; the bustle of the metropolitan city chokes him. As long as there are green grasses and the smell of new mown hay there will be farmers—the nature lovers of America.—Rawlins Republican.

BEWARE TIPSTER SHEETS.

We have it on reliable information that this section is being deluged with "tipster sheets," which are sent out literally by the millions from the investment centers of the east. They are camouflaged under an apparently unbiased opinion from responsible bankers and brokers, but such is not the case.

These fellows have a way of mauling the public peculiar to themselves. In some manner they secure addresses of persons known to have made investments and through the use of these "tipster sheets" are able to defraud thousands of people out of millions of dollars every year.

They do not deal with the type of stocks listed on the big exchanges but promote issues which are not known in high class financial circles. They keep angling until they have their dupes hooked and through "hot tips" have his money and are moved to a new location, even to another city, before he awakens to the fact that he has been taken for a financial ride.

There is one way that the investment public can protect itself. Legitimate brokers and bankers are glad to give scientific market advice. If before making an investment, no matter how alluring it may appear, you have your banker or broker make a careful investigation you will be saved much grief and financial loss.

RESPECT FOR THE LAW.

"What we are facing today is something far larger and more fundamental—the possibility that respect for law as law is fading from the sensibilities of our people. Whatever the value of any law may be, the enforcement of that law written in plain terms upon our statute books is not, in my mind, a debatable question.

"Law should be observed and must be enforced until it is repealed by the proper process of our democracy. The duty to enforce the laws rests upon every public official and the duty to obey it rests upon every citizen.

"No individual has the right to determine what law shall be enforced and what law shall not be enforced. If a law is wrong its rigid enforcement is the surest guaranty of its repeal. If it is right its enforcement is the quickest method of compelling respect for it. I have seen statements published within a few days encouraging citizens to defy a law because that particular individual did not approve of the law itself. I leave comment on such an attitude to any citizen with a sense of responsibility to his country."—From President Hoover's New York address.

FOR those who like to be out and going—top down—nothing but blue skies above—Nash designers built three smart "400" Cabriolets.

With the top up and windows raised, they are luxurious closed cars—with the top down and windows either down or up, they are smart open cars. All have a big, comfortable, roomy rumble seat.

The Standard Six Cabriolet is one of the most popular cars in its price field, because it combines the smart open-enclosed motoring vogue with Standard Six performance superiority.

It has a big, high compression, 7-bearing motor for power and speed—"400" steering for the world's easiest driving—Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers, for cushioned smoothness over all kinds of roads.

The Special and Advanced Six Cabriolets are distinguished by such "400" features as the new Twin-Ignition motor, Bijur Centralized Chassis Lubrication—press a pedal, your car is oiled—Lovejoy and Houdaille hydraulic shock absorbers.

And, every "400" model comes from the factory equipped with bumpers, hydraulic shock absorbers, spare tire lock and tire cover, at no extra cost. Some dealers charge as much as $50 or $60 extra for bumpers alone.

Compare these Cabriolets to others, then compare their fully equipped, delivered prices. You'll see the advantage in buying a Nash!

has declined only half that amount," states a recent treatise on the subject of health in high schools.

"The problems of mortality of this young group are not peculiar to tuberculosis alone," the treatise continues. "A recent analysis of heart disease figures show that, in the last ten years, heart disease has declined in every age—group up to age 45 except young people aged 15 to 24."

Further investigation has brought out the fact that young women are responsible to greater degree than young men for the lesser progress made in this age group in the reduction of the mortality rate from these diseases, particularly tuberculosis. In the age group from 15 to 19, for example, tuberculosis in 1927 took the lives of 207 Michigan young women, while but 102 young men died of the disease.

Young women of this age are of too much value to society to be lost just at the time when they are coming into the prime of life. A sane regime of living, healthy habits of eating, working, playing, and sleeping are necessary, as is increased vigilance looking toward detection of the first warning symptoms of tuberculosis. To no other group does the Early Diagnosis Campaign of the Michigan Tuberculosis Association carry more meaning, for in no other group has so little reduction been made in the tuberculosis death rate. If they are found in time, these cases of tuberculosis among adolescent girls and young women can be arrested and the toll of tuberculosis in this age period decreased to correspond with that for other ages.

Sunday service, 10:45 a. m. Subject: "Soul and Body."

Wednesday evening service, 7:45 p. m., first Wednesday in the month only.

"Mortals and Immortals" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches on Sunday, May 19.

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon was the following from the Bible: "God that made the world and all things therein, seeing that he is Lord of heaven and earth, dwelleth not in temples made with hands." (Acts, 17:24).

The lesson-sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Man in the likeness of God as revealed in Science cannot help being immortal. In Science, man's immortality depends upon that of God, good, and follows as a necessary consequence of the immortality of good." (p. 81).

COUNCIL AUTHORIZES MANY IMPROVEMENTS

Belvedere Avenue Boulevard Lights; New Information Bureau.

The city council committee on parks and public playgrounds was authorized Monday night to receive plans and specifications for the construction of a glass enclosure for the upper portion of the band stand in Bridge street park. It is proposed to convert the stand for use as a city information bureau.

It is practically a certainty that this very commendable, and needed improvement will be made. The council also voted an appropriation to be used for entertainment of the Michigan State Bankers' Association during their convention at Charlevoix late in June, and financial backing of the Charlevoix Tennis Club and Association of Commerce tennis committee in case of a deficit following tournaments to be held this summer. This splendid co-operation by the council is highly appreciated by those sponsoring summer entertainment features. A hearing has also been called relative to installing a boulevard lighting system on Belvedere avenue similar to that on Dixon avenue from Michigan avenue to The Inn.

Archie Livingston, president of the Charlevoix Tennis Club, has received a communication from John Hennessey, Indianapolis, Davis cup star and fourth ranking player in the United States, practically assuring Hennessey's participation in the Michigan Riviera tennis tournament to be held August 6-11.

CHURCH OF GOD

Rev. I. T. Mark, pastor of the Church of God in Petoskey, gave us a very interesting and instructive sermon on "Character Building," last Sunday morning and Wm. C. Palmer of Charlevoix, brought us a very encouraging message about "Heaven" in the evening.

Rev. Mark, our new pastor, who was formerly from Kentucky, is highly recommended and we feel that we are fortunate in securing his services. Many Charlevoix people heard him with pleasure and satisfaction while he was here recently holding the revival.

He will preach in Petoskey Sunday mornings at 10:00 o'clock eastern time and in Charlevoix at 11:00 o'clock central time. He will also preach here next Sunday evening, May 26, and after that, every two weeks on Sunday evenings, while each alternating Sunday evening will be supplied by Brother Palmer or some other local talent. Brother Mark will also be with us on Wednesday evenings for the prayer meetings.

The public is urged to attend these meetings as you will hear something worth while if you go.

Notice time of meetings:
Sunday mornings, Sunday school at 10:00 o'clock.

Preaching at 11:00 o'clock.
Sunday evenings, preaching at 7:30 o'clock.

Wednesday evenings, prayer meeting at 7:30 o'clock.

BANKERS TO MEET HERE JUNE 23-28

HALLETT'S INN OPENED ON WEDNESDAY OF THIS WEEK.

Other Hoteliers Preparing for Opening Dates Late in June and
First Week of July.

Through an error in an article carried in last week's issue, we stated that The Inn would open with the convention of the Michigan Bankers' Association of June 28th.

The convention opens officially on June 23rd, and there will be a train from Detroit that morning bringing convention visitors. The Inn opens June 22nd and will be ready to accommodate those arriving that day by automobile. The convention will close on Friday, June 28th, although it is expected many will remain over until Sunday night, when a Pere Marquette train will move them from here.

The bankers' convention will be the largest entertained in Charlevoix for some time, and an elaborate program is being prepared for their pleasure. While nothing definite is available on the program at present, full details will be worked out here Saturday when B. VanderMeulen, Grand Rapids; Charles McMahon, Detroit; Archie Livingston and Robert Bridge, this city, members of the entertainment committee, meet for that purpose. A golf tournament is a certainty and negotiations are under way to engage a Detroit orchestra and several teams of internationally known entertainers. A boat trip from Charlevoix to Harbor Springs and return on the S. S. Puritan, is also a possibility. This gathering will be the first land convention in several years and no stone is being left unturned to make it a pleasurable treat.

While preparations are being made at The Inn for the opening June 22nd, others of Charlevoix's popular summer hostilities are also busy with their preparations for the season. Hallett's Inn opened their doors for the summer on Wednesday of this week. Hotel Hallett will open for business on Saturday, June 28th, this date marking the arrival of the first Pere Marquette Resort special at Charlevoix.

Arthur VonDolche, manager of the Charlevoix Beach Hotel, announces the opening date there on June 10th, and a large crew is now busy getting the hotel in shape for the season. Similar preparations are under way at the Belvedere Hotel, which opens late in June.

VISITORS DAY AT SCHOOL A SUCCESS

Many Parents Viewed Excellent Displays Shown Last Friday.

Visitors day at the Charlevoix public schools last Friday afternoon and evening was a decided success, judging from the interest manifested and the number of parents who took the opportunity to visit the schools and view the work done by the students during the year.

Each grade room and all departments of the high school had a splendid display, showing specimens of work done by the students during the past year. Blackboards and walls were utilized for the displays, which included specimens of penmanship, maps, drawings, mounted cuttings, algebra and geometry propositions, etc., all of which reflected much credit to the students. A very fine display of dresses and other articles of wearing apparel was shown in the domestic science department, members of that class also serving coffee and sandwiches during the afternoon.

A full afternoon could have been profitably spent viewing the different specimens on display, and, at the same time, visits of this kind to the school give the parents a chance to become better acquainted with the instructors, get a better idea of the work done by their children and incidentally create a closer relationship between the parents and schools. Parents are always welcome and are urged to visit the schools at any time.

Baccalaureate Sermon Sunday.
Attention is again called to the baccalaureate sermon for members of the graduating high school senior and county normal classes at the gymnasium Sunday evening, June 2, at 8:00 o'clock. Rev. John E. Lockyer of the Methodist church will deliver the sermon on the topic: "Laws of Life's Architecture."

MAY COURT TERM NOW IN SESSION

Probation Cases Heard and Citations
Granted First Two Days.

The May term of circuit court reached its third day Wednesday with one issue of fact and law completed, several probation cases heard and five citations granted up to noon of that day. Sentence will be passed on some probation cases later this week.

In the case of August Wallen, Ontonagon, vs. East Jordan Lumber Co., trespass, a jury awarded judgment in the sum of $6,456.59 in favor of plaintiff. Wallen was represented by J. M. Harris, Boyne City, and VanSlyke & Bay, Ontonagon. E. N. Clink represented the East Jordan Lumber Co. The case is understood to have resulted from non-payment of commission on a large sale of timber land.

Citizenship papers were granted Rasmus Svendsahl, Knute Svendsahl and Peter Bakke, Charlevoix; Robert and Emily Jensen, Boyne City; Robert Wilson, East Jordan.

ARNOLD SETS RECORD IN MILE RUN

CAPTURED EVENT IN STATE
MEET LAST SATURDAY.

Charlevoix Sending Teams to District
Golf and Tennis Tournney at Traverse Saturday.

Clarence Arnold, Charlevoix representative in the state track meet at Lansing last Saturday, brought back glory in twofold measure to the local school.

Clarence won the mile event from a large field of class C entries, and in accomplishing this feat clipped 3.3 seconds off the state record. Arnold led the first lap, but fell back to eleventh place in the second. In the third round he stepped out to pass his opponents one by one and in a final dash finished five yards ahead of the field. His time was 4 minutes, 44.6 seconds.

Arnold was the only Northern Michigan boy to win a first place for class C. In class B McKinley, Cadillac, set a new record in the javelin with a toss of 163 feet, 10 1/2 inches. The old record was 159 feet, 3 1/2 inches. Fifteen records were broken in the state meet.

Charlevoix high school will be represented in both the District Golf and Tennis tournaments to be held at Traverse City on Saturday of this week. In the golf field Charles Blaha, Bill Supernaw, Rex Supernaw, Geo. Bergman and Robert McCall made a team of five. All have distinguished themselves in this line of sport on various occasions during their careers as caddies on the local links. It is believed all have won either the first or second flight of the annual tournament in recent years. They should give a good account of themselves at Traverse.

Charlevoix is sending a team of four for the tennis competition. In the doubles events Dick Marshall and Billy Novak make up one team and Joe Smith and Stanley Hammond the other. Marshall and Novak were winners at Traverse City a year ago when Charlevoix won both the doubles and singles events, but lost the meet on points to the larger Traverse City team. All four lads will enter the singles events.

PIANO CLASS WILL CONDUCT A RECITAL

Students of Mrs. Stelter Appear at Gymnasium Saturday.

The piano students of Mrs. A. J. Stelter will give a public recital at the gymnasium, Saturday, June 1st at 2:30 p. m.

The general public is invited. Relatives and friends are especially urged to attend. Your presence stimulates the pupil to do his best, and at the same time you will be gratified to see the progress these young people are making.

The program will be of a delightful nature; little songs played and sung by the youngest pupils, well known piano solos, and some excellent two piano numbers.

Come and enjoy this hour of music.

CHARLEVOIX IN- VITED JUNE 13

EMMET COUNTY AIRPORT DEDICATION ON THAT DAY.

Michigan Air Tour With Its 50
Ships Will Be There for Part of Two Days.

People of Charlevoix, Charlevoix county and all northern Michigan have been invited to be present when Emmet county dedicates her new county airport on the forenoon of Thursday, June 13th. Emmet expects to be the first county in Michigan to dedicate a field under the provisions of the new Michigan aviation law, and Governor Green, who with Mrs. Green will be on the Michigan Air Tour which will conduct the service, has been asked to speak. Department of Commerce officials also will speak. Robert Tripp, chairman of the Emmet county board of supervisors airport committee, will be chairman.

The Michigan Air Tour will land at the airport the afternoon of Wednesday, June 12, the 50 planes coming down one at a time to be parked in position by Homer Zipp, former world war flyer, of Petoskey. They are booked to arrive at 4:30 o'clock. Eastern Standard time at the field, which is about six miles north of Petoskey on the road from Harbor Springs.

Visitors will be admitted to the field for the landing of the planes, reception of the Tour officials, Governor Green and government officials and visiting tourists. Parking tags are being provided for automobiles, and the car with its entire party may be driven right onto the field. Car parking tickets are already on sale in Charlevoix at 50 cents each. There is no admission charge and the car parking ticket is good for as many visits to the field on June 12th and 13th as the car party cares to make.

Wednesday evening, June 12th, a big banquet will be held at the Hotel Perry in Petoskey, where places will be arranged for 100 at a very delightful dinner. Tickets are on sale at the Petoskey and Harbor Springs Chambers of Commerce at $2.00 per plate. A number of government officials and Governor Green have been invited to speak.

The Emmet county airport is located halfway between Petoskey and Harbor Springs on the concrete paved highway. It is between the highway and Lake Michigan, with the land so arranged that no matter what direction the wind, planes may take off properly. The field is being properly marked, telephones installed and other conveniences arranged. For the dedication it will be fenced, so that the spectators will not get out onto the runways. The field will be open Wednesday evening for inspection and it is understood that plane pilots will be there to explain the fine points of their machines. Airplane rides also are being arranged for.

Observe Wedding Anniversary.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Emory Gimble on State street was the scene of an enjoyable gathering Sunday on the occasion of the couple's 23rd wedding anniversary. Covers were laid for 18 at a delightful dinner served at noon. Out-of-town guests were Rev. and Mrs. Guldberg and family of Sutton's Bay.

WORK ADVANCING ON BRANCH R. R.

THOUSAND FEET TRACK AND FIRST FILL COMPLETED.

Arrival of Large Crane Will Expedite
Work of Handling Equipment and Track Laying.

Rapid progress is being made on the railroad spur from the Pere Marquette main line south of Charlevoix to the new cement plant location. Crews are now busy on both ends of the line, one on the railroad and another tearing down the plant of the old Rock Product company.

Approximately a thousand feet of track has been laid up to the present time. New chemically-treated ties are being put down beneath the 60-pound standard railroad steel and new tie plates. The track now laid gives ample room for unloading of equipment which is arriving daily.

Work the fore part of this week has been centered around laying a concrete tube at Barber Creek. This job was completed Tuesday and work of moving 5,000 yards of dirt for the fill got under way Wednesday following the arrival here Tuesday afternoon of a large crane which has been on the way over a week. Delay in the delivery of this necessary piece of equipment has impeded the work to a great extent. Sixteen huge concrete tubes, each weighing close to two tons, were used for the conduit. They were moved by means of block and tackle from a distance of several hundred feet to the creek bed and concreted in. In spite of the fact that the tubes were moved by hand, they were in place and the work practically completed in 20 hours' time.

With the combined capacity of the huge crane and motor trucks dirt for the fill will be moved rapidly. Three hundred feet west on the line another fill will be encountered. Another force of men are clearing the right-of-way of brush grown in since the line has been out of use to make way for laying of track.

R. F. Sloan is personally supervising the work. At the present time around 15 men are employed and this force will be increased as the work demands.

LOCAL COUPLE WERE WED LAST THURSDAY

Rev. G. A. Weaver Performed Ceremony at Quiet Wedding.

Miss Ann Jardine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Jardine, and Earl Harrington, both of Charlevoix, were united in marriage at the home of the bride's parents on Mason street last Thursday afternoon. Rev. G. W. Weaver, Petoskey, performed the ceremony in the presence of immediate relatives, using the ring service.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Harrington are very well and favorably known among the younger set. They graduated from Charlevoix high school with the class of 1926. Following a short honeymoon trip to Grand Rapids, Lansing and Flint, the couple have returned to their home on Antrim street. They have the heartiest congratulations of their many local friends.

WILL CONDUCT VACA- TION BIBLE SCHOOL

Baptist Church Announces Classes to Open June 10th.

The Charlevoix Baptist church will conduct a daily vacation bible school beginning Monday, June 10th, and continuing for two weeks, according to the announcement of Rev. W. H. Rauch.

The number of vacation church schools keeps steadily increasing year after year because no other sort of religious school can hope to achieve such fine results with an equal amount of time and effort.

Meeting mornings only during the summer period, the vacation school need not compete with the public school for the attention and activity of the child. Instead of a crowded session of an hour the vacation school has two and a half hours each morning, which makes possible a program that is educationally complete and balanced.

All boys and girls above six years of age are urged to take advantage of this opportunity.

MOONLIGHT GAR- DENS OPEN JUNE 5

JEFF'S NEW DANCING PLACE
ACCLAIMED CLASS OF NORTH.

Fuller's Canadians to Furnish Music on June Dates and Each Night
Following July 1.

Charlevoix's newest entertainment place for summer visitors, Jeff's Moonlight Gardens, open for the season next Wednesday evening, June 5th. With characteristic thoroughness, A. T. Jeffery, popularly known in Charlevoix as owner of the Chic Chic Poultry Farm, has left no stone unturned in his efforts to provide a summer dancing place de luxe, and outside critics have acclaimed his Petoskey avenue pavilion the best in Northern Michigan.

On the opening night and throughout the season, Lawrence Fuller presents the famous Seven Canadians in a program featuring singers, entertainers and rhythmicists. This popular band is well known throughout the Northern Michigan region as entertainers of the highest calibre. In the month of June dances will be held evenings of the 5th, 8th, 12th, 15th, 18th, 22nd, 26th and 29th, and starting July 1, dancing every evening except Sunday.

Decorations in the pavilion, which is located just west of the 14th hole at the Charlevoix Golf Club, are carried out in cream and blue. Tactful cedar bark canopies filled with artificial flowers hang in the arches. A rainbow lighting effect is obtained through the use of powerful search lights playing on a crystal globe hanging from the ceiling over the center of the floor. Another series of colored lights are located in each ceiling support.

On the right side of the entrance is a refreshment booth and on the left the checking room. The orchestra platform is in the center on the north wall, with ladies' and gentlemen's rest rooms located on each side. The dance floor is 30x60 feet, raised in with an eight-foot aisle outside, used for seating and tables. Large windows on all four sides of the pavilion insure proper ventilation at all times. Artistic landscaping of the grounds has completed what promises to be one of the outstanding entertainment places of the North.

NUTRITION PRO- JECT A SUCCESS

SERIES II CLOSED AT BOYNE
LAST THURSDAY.

Thirteen Groups Complete Course;
Fine Program and Interesting Meeting Held.

Charlevoix County's Nutrition Project Series II closed May 23 with a very successful achievement day held in the Presbyterian church in Boyne City. In spite of a down-pouring rain there was a splendid crowd and most of the groups were represented at roll call. The Peninsular group responded with 14 present.

The forenoon meeting was called to order by the county chairman, Mrs. Maude Kightlinger. Community singing led by Miss Dundas, accompanied by Mrs. Charles Masche of Charlevoix. Miss Dundas, specialist of East Lansing then gave a fine report for the county.

There were 17 groups and all completed the course. There were 145 members enrolled at the beginning and a high percentage completed the course. From nine to 85 per group were helped outside of groups. Deer Lake being the finest group of helping 85 outsiders. Three hundred and two members talked to others about nutrition. Many members agreed the course to have been helpful in learning to economize in time and money and also was very practical. Many defects among school children have been discovered and corrected by this study course.

Mrs. J. R. Furman of the entertaining committee in her very clever way grouped the diners by tagging them into delectable menus from "frog legs" to "prune dumplings," which caused much merriment and was the means of introducing many who would not have otherwise become acquainted. About 50 guests sat down to a balanced banquet at 1:15. Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Soderstrom, of Ironston, very graciously left their dinner to entertain with two fine musical selections. Thanks! The meeting again adjourned at 2:15 Eastern Standard time in the main auditorium of the church with 100 or more attending. Group singing was again enjoyed followed by a pleasant surprise when a mixed quartet (Mrs. G. C. Fackel, Mrs. E. P. Thompson, S. Aronick, and S. V. Roeseger) rendered two beautiful selections, accompanied by Mrs. C. Bissel at the piano. O. I. Greag, East Lansing, landscape specialist, was then introduced and held the crowd in raptures while he converted an entire group of dilapidated old farm buildings into a scene of grandeur, all the while telling the story of an ambitious home-loving couple who had foreseen the possibilities of altering it from a run-down property into a beautiful modern home inside and out. It was a wonderful demonstration.

Mrs. Louise Campbell, State Home Demonstration leader, was introduced and also held the audience enthralled with her heart-to-heart talk in "Home Makes of Tomorrow." Mrs. Campbell makes one feel enthused to get started on the new project. She reported 1,314 local project-leaders in Michigan 88 per cent finishers. These leaders have extended the "cream of college work" to 12,000 women within the 49 counties who have sponsored the work with an average of 500 women per county who have extended it to 24,000 others. Isn't that fine record and how much we should appreciate our M. S. C. Boards of Supervisors, and County Agents. B. T. Mellonecamp has been untiring in helping to make a success of the several projects in the county.

The exhibits were fine and showed thoughtful study and planning.

The properly appointed table was much admired both for its beauty and simplicity. The leaders were made to feel that their labors had been repaid with the cooperation and assistance of their group members. Many were heard to say, "it's the best achievement day we've had," and the leaders hope to have an increase in membership for the new project, "Home Management."
